Senators Jab Hopkins for Silence on Ky. Election

Campaign Committee Also Gives a Rebuke To Security Board on Use of U. S. Funds in State Primaries.

By Robert C. Albright.

The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee yesterday demanded action by the Works Progress Administration and the Social Security Board on alleged political use of funds by local officials in the recent Kentucky primaries.

The committee wrote Works Progress Administrator Hopkins that WPA officials and employes flagrantly violated regulations in the Kentucky campaign and called Hopkins to task for not reporting the result of his own investigation.

Another letter to Chairman Altmeyer of the Social Security Board said that funds were solicited or virtually assessed from welfare employes, paid partly from Federal funds, all "in the political interest of Candidate A. B. Chandler."

Gov. Chandler recently was defeated by Senate Administration Leader Barkley in primaries marked by reiterated charges that WPA aid was freely given Barkley and that Chandler had used State and local social security machinery for his own advantage.

"Disappointed" With Hopkins

Altmeyer was asked what "action the Social Security Board intends to take in view of this evidence" and he was requested to recommend legislation to remedy the abuses.

To Hopkins, the committee wrote it was "disappointed" at his failure to report results of his own investigation. He was asked for his views on the committee's evidence of WPA political activity in Kentucky, "all of which is supported by more than 100 affidavits." Like Altmeyer, Hopkins was asked what "action you contemplate taking."

The committee told Hopkins its efforts "will result in accomplishing little to prevent these abuses unless we have your enthusiastic and hearty support."

Early in the course of the Kentucky campaign Hopkins made an investigation of alleged WPA activity in behalf of Barkley following publication of a newspaper series charging more than a score of instances. Hopkins denied all of the charges but two.

"Deplorable" Situation

Subsequently the Senate Committee made its own investigation and reported a "deplorable" situation and several instances of WPA activity substantiated by affidavits. This evidence was turned over to Hopkins August 18. He was asked to make another investigation and report back. A Hopkins' assistant acknowledged receipt of the committee's letter but Sheppard said he has not since heard from WPA headquarters.

In the Hopkins rebuke yesterday, the committee outlined its own interpretation of its powers, and said it was limited to four courses of action.

These were:

1. Publication of the results of our investigations, all of which are initiated on complaints filed with us by candidates and other citizens.

2. Submission of our findings to Federal department chiefs for action where there were violation of law and regulations including criminal statutes by Federal officers and employes.

3. Presentation of our conclusions to the United States Senate, for the information of the Senate.

4. Recommendation of additional legislation to be incorporated either in general legislation or appropriation bills.

The letter to Altmeyer submitted evidence, supported by the affidavits on use of funds in the

President Off Today For James' Bedside

Mrs. James Roosevelt, as she arrived by plane at Chicago en route to the bedside of her husband, who is a patient at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., awaiting an operation for a gastric ulcer.

Roosevelt Will Take Special Train From Hyde Park to Be With His Son for Operation; First Lady Is Cheerful in Sick Room; Wife Flying to Rochester.

By the United Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 8.—President Roosevelt announced tonight that he will leave late tomorrow evening for Rochester, Minn., to be at the bedside of his son, James, who will undergo an operation for ulcers Monday.

The Chief Executive will leave Hyde Park by special train, reaching Rochester Sunday. His son and secretary became a patient at St. Mary's Hospital last night after examination at the Mayo Clinic.

Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary, said that the President would remain until after the operation.

James Roosevelt, who has been suffering from the ulcer ailment for some months, returned to the Mayo Clinic by plane Tuesday with his mother.

Some weeks ago he underwent treatment at the clinic and at that time attending physicians were hopeful that he could be cured without surgery. However, it was explained that the condition failed to show the necessary improvement and the operation was decided upon.

During the greater part of the summer young Roosevelt has been spending most of his time at Campobello, N. B., where the President

Youth Saved After 3 Days In Water

San Francisco Boy, Near Death, Tells of Seeing 4 Mates Drown After Boat Overturned.

By the Associated Press.

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 8.—Holger Nelson, 19, rescued from San Francisco Bay today after clinging to an overturned sailboat for 72 hours, told of watching his four companions disappear into the water.

The youth, near death from exposure, was rescued after a bridge-tender sighted the overturned boat in which the five went sailing Sunday. They were reported missing Monday.

Nelson said a sudden wind squall overturned the boat.

"The mast snapped off and three of the boys went overboard into the choppy water," he said. "I grabbed onto the hull and another boy held to the mast.

"Monday night we could see lights in the distance, but none came near. The boy on the mast did not say anything. I clung on. He finally let go and sank."

His companions were Stanley Norstrom, Floyd Hatley, Howard Larsen and Everett Cole.

Major Hoped To 'Beat Rap,' Witness Says

Brooke Mutters, 'It's a Lie' At Testimony on His Reaction When Urged To Confess.

By the Associated Press.

Columbus, Ga., Sept. 8.—Maj. John R. Brooke, on trial for the murder of his attractive wife, Elizabeth, turned pale and snarled at a prosecution witness today.

Capt. Thomas B. Drake, assistant provost marshal at Fort Benning and leading figure in military investigation of the case, told the court Brooke had intimated he would attempt "beating the rap."

Drake testified the following conversation took place shortly after Brooke was placed under military restraint the morning Mrs. Brooke's body was discovered in their home:

Drake—"Why don't you tell the truth of this thing and get it off your chest?"

Brooke—"If you were on the spot I'm on and had one chance in a million of beating the rap, wouldn't you take that chance?"

The major scowled at Drake. He clinched his fists and muttered, almost inaudibly:

"It's a lie."

Bride Breaks Back in Plunge, Oil Man Leaps to His Death

By the Associated Press.

Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 8.—An oil company executive plunged to his death from a fourth-floor hotel window today a few minutes after his young bride had broken her back in a fall from the same sill.

The tragedy ended the honeymoon of M. E. Lake, 35, vice president of the Coast Line Oil Corporation and the Lincoln Petroleum Co., of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife of three months, Maxine, 20.

Coroner F. S. Schilling, of Coles County, believed Lake had committed suicide, but officials declined to comment on the case of his wife pending further investigation. She was in critical condition in Memorial Hospital.

From eyewitnesses investigators gathered that Mrs. Lake climbed out and sat on the sill. Shortly afterward she dropped.

John Isabel, a taxicab driver, saw Lake appear on the window ledge. He begged him for several minutes to return to the room before the oil man plunged to the street. His skull was crushed.

Clint Milan, an independent oil man from Clarksville, Tex., said the Lakes had dinner with six friends here last night and that the couple quarreled. Later, he added, Mrs. Lake went alone to the hotel and Lake went there to see her some time afterward.

The visit ended when both plunged to the street about 12:25 a. m.

The police said a wallet containing approximately $200 was taken from Lake's body by a man who posed as a Federal agent and that a check for $500, made out to Ray P. Moore, a business associate of Lake, was found beside Mrs. Lake. The signature was torn off.

Md. Inquiry Renewed

Senate investigators last night were sent hurriedly back into Maryland for a study of last minute charges in that bitter primary campaign, as the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee cited the postmistress at Salisbury, Md., for violation of postal regulations.

Substantiating charges by Senator Tydings that Mrs. Maude Toulson is politically active for Representative Lewis, the committee said the Salisbury postmistress has violated "the letter and spirit of postal regulations."

Postmaster General Farley was out of the city, but department officials said the charges would be turned over to the Postal Inspection Service for investigation and report. Officials called the case "unusual." They said they could recall no previous instance of a postmaster being formally charged with political activity.

Civil service "warnings" against campaign activity by Government employes recently have been conspicuously posted throughout the department, they said.

A departmental investigation of alleged campaign activity for Tydings by Frank S. Revell, District Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization at Baltimore, was launched by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Miss Perkins said she would look into "many complaints that have been received as to the political activities" of Revell. Lewis is said to have charged the Labor Department official was unduly active for his opponent.

The evidence against Mrs. Toulson was turned over to the Justice Department and the Postmaster General for consideration and action under the law and civil service regulations. The Senate committee said it failed to confirm counter charges by Lewis that Morris Schapiro, president of the Boston Iron & Metal Co., contributed $5,000 to the Maryland campaign.

Va. Troops March Again on Md.Land, But It's Peaceful

Adamstown, Md., Sept. 8 (AP).—Virginia Cavalry and Field Artillery marched again through Maryland today but this time in the peaceful pursuit of mock warfare.

The Third Cavalry and the Sixteenth Field Artillery, a horse-powered regiment, maneuvered south through Maryland. The cavalry acted as a scouting force for the warring groups, which will participate in the Third Corps Area maneuvers starting at Fort Meade Tuesday and continuing until September 23.

The cavalry group made up of 490 men and 470 horses and mules, slept near here in pup tents through a rainstorm. They marched south to Corby Hall, Va., by way of the Point of Rocks bridge across the Potomac River.

The artillery men camped at Piscataway, Md., where they spent the night and marched toward La Plata today.

Indictment Flaw May Save Hines

Stryker Attacks Charges as Null Under Statute of Limitations; Both Sides Draw Rebukes From Pecora.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 8.—Some doubt that the State has made out a felony case against James J. Hines was indicated tonight by Justice Ferdinand Pecora in Supreme Court, in discussing with counsel a motion by the defense to dismiss the indictment against the veteran Tammany leader.

He listened without any indication of his judicial view to a long argument by Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief of defense counsel, that the conspiracy charge in the trial of Hines on charges of helping the Dutch Schultz policy mob against police and courts must be dropped because of the statute of limitations. The conspiracy charge involves a misdemeanor and a lesser penalty upon conviction than 12 felony counts which were brought in the Hines indictment, accusing him of assisting in "contriving, proposing, or drawing a lottery."

The numbers game in Harlem, which Hines is alleged to have protected, Justice Pecora conceded to be a lottery. But he pointed out to District Attorney Dewey that the bargain which Hines is alleged to have made with Schultz had to do with curbing police activities and obtaining the dismissal of cases in courts, rather than running or helping run the numbers racket.

Hines Called "Life Blood"

Dewey insisted that Hines, as a co-conspirator with Schultz, was "the life blood" of the racket, and called the political leader "the most vital and important figure" in Schultz's "combination" of policy banks. Without Hines, he contended, the "combination" could not have lived.

Justice Pecora disagreed. He said the policy ring had been operating before Hines is alleged to have helped it.

When Dewey concluded the first half of his argument, upholding the validity of his case on the 12 felony counts, Justice Pecora said to him: "I think you have made as strong an argument as possible. I want you to assume nothing from the court's attitude." He explained questions indicating some doubt of Dewey's contentions by saying: "I do that in all cases to draw out counsel on both sides for my benefit."

As to the matter under discussion, he said he had not yet made up his mind.

Sees Conspiracy Charge

The justice told Dewey he believed he should have inserted a count in the indictment, charging conspiracy to obstruct and pervert

In-Laws Deny Arming Against Czech Diplomat

Reports that the farmhouse of the Rev. J. B. Henry, of East Falls Church, Va., bristled with arms to resist search for his 7-year-old granddaughter, Mary, by agents of her father, Dr. Pavel Stransky, of the Czechoslovakian Diplomatic Corps, were called "hokum" last night by a member of the household.

"We have already invited a search," said a brother of Mrs. Anna Henry Stranska, who fled with her daughter several weeks ago from Prague. "We can definitely say that Mme. Stranska and the child are not here."

However, James R. Murphy, Washington attorney representing Stransky, said last night he was sure Mme. Stranska and Mary were hiding "pretty close to the home of her father." He said if the Labor Department did not act on the request of the Czech Legation to deport the child, he would hire private detectives to find her and her mother.

French Ships Ready

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Sept. 8.—With 1,200,000 men under arms on French soil to meet eventualities in the Czechoslovak-German crisis, it was disclosed tonight the naval ministry had followed the lead of the army and air corps by canceling all leaves in the Atlantic fleet.

The Atlantic fleet began loading munitions and other supplies which officers said would be enough to sustain the warships at sea for 60 days.

The loading of supplies was to be completed tomorrow. Whether the fleet would put to sea when this operation was finished was not divulged.

Sailors Hurry Back.

Cancellation of leaves became known at the Brest naval base tonight when officers and sailors returned hurriedly from shore leaves.

Completion of precautionary steps was signified in a semiofficial statement issued by Havas (French News Agency) that "no new military measures are planned for the present."

The last of reservists called for duty in the Maginot Line, France's eastern fortifications along the German frontier, marched into underground forts today.

These and thousands of conscripts of overlapping classes raised France's standing army to 1,200,000 men from the normal 700,000 and their officers reported tonight all were ready.

Reds Ask Firmness.

The Communist party, one of the dominant units in the governing people's front with 73 deputies in the lower house of Parliament, called for "firm and unequivocal manifestation of all democratic nations, affirming they will unanimously counter any aggression."

The appeal, by the party's political committee, declared, "Hitler does not mask his will for aggression against Czechoslovakia. He is accelerating his preparations for a new World War which his aggression may bring."

All officers assigned to the fortified frontier zone were ordered to take their posts "without delay."

Command Strengthened.

Concurrently, the official journal published orders realigning and strengthening the high command. Two changes involved membership of the superior war council and there were nine changes in the army general staff. Three shifts affected frontier commanders. Gen. Desire Sivot, head of the engineering division of the war college, became commandant of the Metz fortified zone.

Gen. Edouard Requin, commander of the Twentieth Corps Area, which includes a major portion of the Maginot line, was promoted to the superior war council.

Gen. Louis Hubert, who had been commander of the Metz Zone, was assigned to command the Twentieth Break Was Bad Tactics, He Thinks; Nation Is Out of Prague's Control, Nazi Press Says.

By the United Press.

Nuremberg, Germany, Sept. 8.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler tonight urged the Sudeten Germans of Czechoslovakia to resume negotiations with the Prague government on a minority settlement, and his move gave rise to hopes that the European crisis could be conciliated.

At the same time the Reichsfuehrer, working quietly behind the scenes as the Sudeten-Czech crisis was carried swiftly toward a climax, let it be known that he is willing to enter into negotiations with Great Britain on a formula for averting a general European war.

Hitler, it was said, has decided that the abrupt breakdown of negotiations by the Sudetens on Prague's "last and ultimate" offer of concessions was a bad tactical move.

Miss Perkins, Says Dies, Is Flirting With Impeachment

Port Arthur, Tex., Sept. 8 (AP).—Representative Dies (Democrat), Texas, said today that Secretary of Labor Perkins might face a move to impeach her if she doesn't "enforce the law under which Harry Bridges is clearly deportable."

The chairman of the Congressional committee investigating un-American activities, said Bridges, West Coast labor leader, was becoming a national issue.

Secretary Perkins stood pat last night on her decision to hold up deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader, until the Supreme Court decides a pending case which she considers similar.

Zoo's Pangolin, First in U. S., Dies Despite Diet and Care

The first pangolin ever to reach this continent alive died yesterday in its glass-inclosed cage in the small mammal house, Ernest P. Walker, acting director of the Zoo, revealed.

The creature, expired, Walker said, within a few minutes after eating its customary breakfast of egg yolk and milk and insects. Up to almost the moment of death it appeared to be as energetic and active as ever. It ate its breakfast with the usual avidity.

Exactly 13 days had expired since David Frazeur, sailor, 25 South street, New York, whose ship had docked in Baltimore following a nine-week voyage from Sumatra, walked in with the rare animal and sold it to Zoo officials.

Frazeur explained that while the ship was docked in a Sumatran port he awoke one morning with a severe hangover and found the creature in bed with him. He had a vague recollection of obtaining it from another fellow.

Zoo keepers, Walker revealed, followed the sailor's feeding schedule, except for the addition of insects. Consultation with a chemist, he said, developed the fact that Frazeur, in feeding the lizard-like anteater egg-yolk and milk and the juice of green beans, furnished a diet rich in vitamins and easily assimilable.

The sailor's success in keeping the pangolin alive throughout the long ocean voyage, Walker said, may make it possible to bring another specimen to this country.

As is the case with other animals that die at the zoo, the body of the pangolin will be turned over to The National Museum, where it probably will be embalmed for the purpose of studying its anatomy.

Cabinet Called

By Frank R. Kelley.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Sept. 8.—Prime Minister Chamberlain today summoned the British Cabinet into emergency session Monday, the day when Reichsfuehrer Hitler is expected to reveal to the Nazi Party congress in Nuremberg his intentions about Czechoslovakia.

Premier Mussolini, the other partner in the Rome-Berlin axis, will speak in Trieste the same day. The ears of the cabinet will be strained to catch every syllable spoken by the dictators, who may give the signal for war or peace. Although the British ministers will begin their conclave at 11 o'clock in the morning, it is understood they will "stand by" all day, ready to deal swiftly with any emergency.

It would require only a word from Downing street to set in motion Britain's vast defense machinery. Most of the home fleet will be lying in the North Sea off the east coast of Scotland, in readiness for an eastward dash. The Mediterranean fleet was reinforced only a few days ago, ostensibly because of "a certain liveliness" in the Straits of Gibraltar. Plans for sending most of the royal air force planes to bases in France, in case of trouble, were perfected months ago, as the result of the understanding—a military alliance in all but name—reached last spring by the British and French governments. It is said on reliable authority, that these arrangements were quietly tested during the week-end of May 21, when the first crisis developed from the dispute between the Czechoslovakian government and its Sudeten German minority.

"Inner Circle" Meets

Monday's cabinet meeting will be the first full and official session since the end of July, when Parliament adjourned, although with four absentees the ministers met last week to decide their policy toward the Czech problem. Since last week's deliberations the situation has "deteriorated" to such an extent, especially during the last 24 hours, that Chamberlain was forced today to summon his advisers to another meeting.

Chamberlain made his decision tonight after consulting the "inner circle" of the cabinet this morning and again this afternoon. The prime minister arrived in London early today from Scotland. Within a few hours of his return he was in conference with his foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax; Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs; Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Robert Vansittart, chief diplomatic adviser to the government.

The conference lasted 2½ hours. When it broke up, Halifax and Simon remained to lunch with Chamberlain. It was announced from the foreign office that Halifax had canceled his plans to leave London tomorrow for Geneva,

Sen. Lonergan Will Escape 'Purge' Drive

Cummings, After Talking With President, Says No Fight to Be Made In Connecticut.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The New Deal drive against recalcitrant Democratic members of Congress is over for the time being, it was indicated tonight after President Roosevelt received a report from Attorney General Cummings on the "general political situation." There will be no concerted New Deal opposition to Senator Lonergan, of Connecticut, it was learned, and probably no further move against Representative O'Connor, of New York.

It was learned that Cummings had sent word to the Democratic leaders of Connecticut that Senator Lonergan was not to be singled out for defeat at the Democratic State convention next week. The Attorney General, moreover, reporting that the "situation generally was satisfactory," gave no hint that the President would go to any greater lengths than he already has to accomplish the defeat of O'Connor. O'Connor was bracketed with Senator Tydings, of Maryland, in a newspaper editorial which the President appropriated several days ago as the vehicle for making known that he desired their retirement from public life.

No Friend of New Deal

Although Senator Lonergan is regarded in New Deal quarters as no more deserving of re-election than some of the conservative Democrats who have been under open fire, neither the President nor any other spokesman for the Administration has ventured to speak out against him. One reason for the New Deal's reluctance to mix up in the Connecticut senatorial race, it was indicated, is that the chances of success would be slight with the choice resting with the party machine which controls the convention. A second reason was that the New Deal was unable to find a formidable challenger.

President Roosevelt, it was said, would send a New Deal spokesman to the convention as an unofficial observer. Cummings will head the Fairfield County delegation.

Senator Lonergan will get no help from the New Deal, it was indicated, but there will be no concerted effort to obstruct his renomination. New Deal delegates presumably will support one or the other of the Lonergan opponents—Representative Koppleman, of Hartford, or Archibald McNeil, of New Haven.

To Support Project

To a delegation of citizens of Hastings-on-Hudson, headed by Edward Wilkes Henry, the President promised his support of legislation to recondition the Hartford, the flagship of Admiral Farragut. The delegation expressed the hope that the ship would be berthed permanently at Hastings-on-Hudson, where is situated Grace Church, to which the admiral contributed $500 of the award made to him by Congress to the building fund.

The delegation presented a replica of the flagship.

At lunch at Valkill Cottage, the President received a report on the program of the National Youth Administration from Aubrey Williams, Deputy Administrator of the Works Progress Administration in charge of youth activities, and Charles Taussig.

maintains a summer home, and at his farm at Framingham, Mass.

His wife, the former Betsy Cushing, of Boston, now is en route by train to Rochester. She is scheduled to reach there in the morning.

It was understood that the President has talked several times to James since his admittance to the hospital and decided within the past 24 hours that he should be on hand, before and after the operation.

White House attaches would not say how long the President planned to remain at Rochester nor would they give the name or the names of the doctors who are in attendance.

The Gallup Poll

Senator Walter George Still Holding 2-to-1 Lead Over Nearest of Two Opponents.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Sept. 8.—As the Roosevelt Administration prepares to meet its third important test of the Democratic Party "purge" in the Georgia primary next Wednesday, a semifinal survey of pre-election sentiment shows Senator Walter F. George, the target of the Georgia purge, still running far ahead of his three opponents.

GALLUP.

The study indicates that if the Georgia primary were held today the veteran Senator would poll twice as many votes as either of his two principle opponents, New Dealer Lawrence Camp, the President's choice, and former Gov. Eugene Talmadge. Camp and Talmadge are running neck and neck for second place, with the fourth candidate, William G. McCrae, a Townsendite, trailing far behind.

Investigators for the Institute have been making a continuous check-up of sentiment in Georgia since the last week in August. The results of their first complete swing around the State, reported September 4, showed George well in the lead, with Camp second. The present survey, which represents the second complete check of the State, compares with the first as follows:

	Sept. 4	Today
George	52%	52%
Camp	23	24
Talmadge	20	24

McCrae polled a relatively small handful of votes—between one and two per cent in the two surveys. With his total included along with the leading three candidates, the Institute's results are: George, 51%; Camp, 24%; Talmadge, 24%; McCrae, 1%.

A final survey will be completed in Georgia by the Institute just before the campaign closes. The results will be reported next Tuesday in The Washington Post, one of 66 newspapers which make Institute surveys possible.

Political observers consider the Georgia race especially significant because it is the purge test in which President Roosevelt took his strongest public stand against an incumbent Senator. Whereas his criticism of the two other targets of the Senate purge, Smith, of South Carolina, and Tydings, of Maryland, has been largely indirect, he lashed out at Senator George in forthright language in his Barnesville, Ga., speech last month.

In sponsoring the candidacy of Lawrence Camp, the President has defied a local Georgia tradition. By custom Georgia sends to Washington one Senator from the northern part of the State and one from the southern. Senator George comes from the south, and Senator Russell, the junior Senator, from the north. If Camp, who is a resident of Atlanta, were to be elected the State would then have two Senators from the north.

Cotton Crop Control Fails To Cut Surplus

By the Associated Press.

American farmers reduced their cotton production by more than a third this year, the Government crop forecast indicated yesterday, but they still face a problem of price-depressing surpluses.

The forecast was for a yield of 11,825,000 bales. Such a crop, while 7,121,000 bales smaller than last year's record production of 18,946,000 bales, would provide a world supply of 25,225,000 bales of American cotton, or 330,000 bales more than last year. Surpluses still on hand from previous years have been estimated at 13,400,000 bales, about half of which the Government holds as collateral for loans to growers.

Unless domestic and world consumption of American cotton expands considerably during the months ahead, the surplus next year may be even larger, Agricultural Department officials said. World consumption during the past season totaled 11,240,000 bales.

Faced with prospects of continued excessive supplies, the Agriculture Department began making arrangements to conduct another referendum in December to determine whether growers favor continuing marketing quotas they voted on this year's crop.

Under quotas producers will be penalized if they grow and sell more than their alloted shares of the crop.

A referendum would serve as a test, officials said, of sentiment regarding the Administration's new farm law. Approval of two-thirds of the voting growers would be required to continue the marketing quotas.

Officials said this year's reduced crop reflected "almost 100 per cent" compliance with the Federal cotton program and indicated that farmers would approve marketing quotas for another year.

Trade and official reports offered only slight encouragement to authorities who hoped that foreign and domestic markets would help reduce the present huge supplies. Exports have been running slightly below those of a year ago, due mainly to unsettled economic and political conditions in Europe and the Orient.

GARD.

Gard, widely known in the educational field through his two decades of service with the Junior Red Cross, has been assistant national director since 1930. He joined the Red Cross staff in 1919 as associate editor of the Junior Red Cross magazines.

A native of Indiana, he was graduated from the University of Indiana and entered newspaper work in Texas. He later became Washington correspondent for a group of Texas newspapers.

Announcing appointment of Gard as national director, Chairman Davis praised his "fine service to the organization" and said the appointment was in recognition of the "universal admiration in which he was held throughout the Junior Red Cross movement."

Tydings Puts Case Before Labor Voters

Baltimore Audiences Cool to Senator's Explanation of His Stand Upon Wage, Security Laws.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Baltimore, Sept. 8.—Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, made a bid for labor support tonight during a swing around Baltimore that included eight speeches in widely scattered sections.

Speaking at a labor gathering in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation surburb at Dundalk, Senator Tydings defended his opposition to the Wagner act and the social security act before a none-too-receptive gathering.

He opened his speech with a statement that the amendments to the Wagner act sought by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, were identical with the amendments he had proposed. The social security act amendments he had proposed, the Senator said, now are being studied by the Social Security Board.

Posters Ordered Seized

Meanwhile, a reproduction of a newspaper photograph showing Senator Tydings standing with Mayor Howard Jackson, gubernatorial candidate, under a Nazi swastika, threatened to cause trouble in Baltimore in the last stage of the bitter campaign.

Posters were reported to be ready for distribution over Baltimore out of Lewis' headquarters, but it was understood Mayor Jackson had ordered police to seize the posters to avoid racial disturbances.

Tonight Senator Tydings will make what he expects to be his most important address of the campaign to date over a State-wide radio hookup and Station WRC, Washington. The speech, which will begin at 6:15 p. m. will "cover all issues," including the President's role in the campaign, Tydings said.

Advertisement sent out by Tydings' headquartedrs labeled it "An Answer to President Roosevelt."

Tydings Defended

Senator Tydings attached a new label to his opponent in one of his speeches tonight in a renewed attack on Drew Pearson, Washington newspaper columnist, whom he has frequently accused of writing Lewis' speeches.

"If Mr. Lewis were elected Senator," Tydings said, "he would not only be a rubber stamp for the President but a Charlie McCarthy for Drew Pearson."

Senator Tydings and Representative Lewis spoke at the same meeting tonight on Belair road, but failed to meet, as the Senator did not arrive there until close to midnight.

Senator Radcliffe (Democrat), of Maryland, campaign manager for Tydings, issued a formal statement today defending the latter from a charge by Lewis regarding a $10,000 note in the Baltimore Trust Co.

Radcliffe denied that Tydings ever had been a director of the bank or that he had failed to pay off the note.

Business to Fight D. C. Budget Boost

Any recommendation by the District Commissioners to increase the District budget will be vigorously opposed by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, that body announced yesterday.

Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the association's tax committee, said:

"The proposal to increase the present budget by almost $20,000,000, the association considers absolutely unjustified and unthinkable at the present time. Taxes upon business have increased so rapidly during the past few years as to become a burden that is almost unbearable and a further increase would force some companies out of business."

Hearings on proposed estimates by municipal departments are scheduled Monday and Tuesday. Requests total more than $66,000,000. The present appropriation, including deficiency items, was about $50,000,000.

Political Arena

In Politics It's a Long Fight for What You Believe, Ickes Says of Purge.

To say that the score is 6-0 against President Roosevelt's attempt to make the Democratic Party the country's liberal party is a "very superficial observation," Secretary of Interior Ickes commented yesterday.

ICKES.

"In politics," he said, "it is a long fight for what you believe, and loss of a few battles does not mean loss of the war. It is the man who puts his hand to the plow and goes straight to the end of the furrow who gets to his end."

Declaring for a division between parties on the basis of liberalism and conservatism, Secretary Ickes saw almost no chance for the development of a third progressive or liberal party. He said that Theodore Roosevelt, with whose Bull Moose campaign he was associated in 1912, had failed in such an effort.

He became the first Cabinet officer to comment on the President's recent press conference declaration that he would not oppose liberal Republicans and thought they might be more to the public interest than conservative Democrats.

"Would you favor the election of liberal Republicans over conservative Democrats?" he was asked.

"Yes! What do you think I have been most of my life?" he replied jauntily.

Someone suggested he had been "the only liberal Republican around here for some time."

"Thank you. Me and John Hamilton," Mr. Ickes said with a grin. Hamilton is Republican national chairman.

"How about Mr. Wallace?" (Henry A, Secretary of Agriculture), he was asked.

"I am not going to implicate any other member of the Cabinet. They will have to speak for themselves," said Mr. Ickes.

As to the chances of making the Democratic Party dominently liberal, Mr. Ickes said:

"I think that is the best chance we have today. Under the leadership we have had in the last five years, it came more nearly being a liberal party than any we have ever had."

The Young Republican National Federation announced yesterday 10 topics which contestants in its $25,000 national oratorical contest may use.

They were:

Can the initiative of youth be maintained under the New Deal?

Should the doctrine of State's rights be maintained?

The minority party—its duty to the Nation.

Dangers of Government by propaganda.

Industry and labor—enemies or partners?

Are compulsory restrictions necessary to the solution of the farm problem?

Observance of the Constitution is essential to individual liberties.

The New Deal: a menace to individualism.

America's choice: Government control or free enterprise.

Must America fight another war?

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 8 (AP).—Henry J. Berrodin, chief of the Ohio Division of Aid for the Aged, declared today of the controversy between Gov. Martin L. Davey and the Federal Social Security Board over pension administration, "to hell with this squabble."

"I'm not interested in the politics of Washington or Gov. Davey," said Berrodin. "I'm interested in the cause, and I have taken it on the chin already to further the cause."

He disclosed that he had made airline and hotel reservations to answer the summons to the board's hearing in Washington, when Gov. Davey ordered him to cancel them.

In "boycotting" the hearing, Davey wrote to the board a "dare" to cut off Federal contributions to the pensions, and accused it of playing "dirty politics."

Berrodin, accused with Davey by the board of injecting politics into the Ohio pension administration, met today with W. H. Whetro, an organizer for the American Federation of Labor. Whetro said the real reason for the board's criticism of the Ohio system was an effort by professional welfare workers to control its administration.

'Loved Her,' Strangled Her, Says Bouncer

Seized While Trying to End Life, Tells Police How He Murdered Chicago Nightclub Hostess.

By the United Press.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Detective Chief John L. Sullivan tonight said that William Frank Raab, 38, had confessed he choked Mrs. Marie Lamont, 28, attractive night club hostess, to death with his "bare hands."

The husky former night club "bouncer," in whose hotel room the nearly nude and strangled body of the attractive auburn-haired Mrs. Lamont was found, admitted to police after several hours' questioning that he had killed her.

Couldn't "Get Together"

"In a fit of passion I choked her to death with my bare hands," Sullivan quoted Raab as saying.

"I loved her and she loved me—but I didn't see any way we could get together."

Sullivan said that although Raab insisted he choked Mrs. Lamont to death with his bare hands, he believed Rabb strangled her with the electric light cord found near the woman's body when it was discovered in Raab's room by a maid yesterday.

Sullivan said Raab denied killing Mrs. Lamont, a convent-reared hostess and mother of an 8-year-old daughter, throughout an evening of sharp questioning, but suddenly bowed his head and said he did it.

Found at Pond

"He acted befuddled all evening, mumbling and staggering when he walked," Sullivan said. "He evidently hadn't recovered completely from the condition in which he was found today."

A policeman found Raab lying at the water's edge of a park lagoon early today. Witnesses said he apparently had been attempting suicide and was drunk.

It was not until the man was hauled into the police station and pulled out a water-soaked social security card to identify himself, that police realized they had a man who had been hunted throughout Chicago for 12 hours.

Victim Garroted.

Police said Raab had been working in nightclubs since 1923, when he was paroled from Joilet Prison after serving two years for burglary. A powerfully built man, about 38, he was employed in various capacities, and during the last few months had been "bouncer" at the Club Alabam.

Mrs. Lamont, 28 and attractive, had become separated from her husband, Robert W. Lamont, several years ago but had refused to divorce him. She left her daughter with her husband's parents at Kendallville, Ind., and came to Chicago to earn her living.

She went to work in a florist shop, and later got work at the Club Alabam, where she met Raab.

A coroner's physician who examined her body said Mrs. Lamont had not put up any kind of struggle. There were slight welts on her neck and bruises on her thighs but otherwise her body was unmarked except for a heavy blue line made by an electric light cord around her neck.

New U.S. Bonds Overbought In 24 Hours

$700,000,000 Securities To Be Allocated by Ratio to Total of Subscriptions.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Morgenthau announced last night that the Treasury's first large offering of securities to finance the Government's new spending program had been oversubscribed quickly.

Although not giving figures on subscriptions, Morgenthau said offers to buy $400,000,000 worth of 2½ per cent bonds and $300,000,000 of 1⅛ per cent notes were enough to permit termination of the securities sale last night, less than 24 hours after it began.

Holders of $433,000,000 worth of Treasury notes maturing December 15, who were given a chance to trade their old securities for either the new bonds or notes, will have until tonight to accept.

Bonds or notes thus taken will be in addition to the amounts offered for sale.

Investors who put subscriptions for the new securities in the mail before midnight last night will be given a proportion of their requests based on the ratio of total subscriptions to the $700,000,000 of securities to be sold. The allocaiton is expected to be announced late tomorrow.

The ready purchase of the new securities by banks and other investors had been expected generally because the idle money of banks alone amounted to $3,030,000,000 on September 7.

2 Children Slain As Mother Fears Them Diseased

Old Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 8 (AP).—A mother who feared her children might inherit her ill health was said by Police Inspector Harold I. King to have stabbed her two children to death today and then plunged a carving knife into her own body four times.

The woman, Mrs. Helen Novinski, 27, wife of the chauffeur for Karl H. Bissell, New York broker, was critically wounded, and is in Meadowbrook Hospital.

The tragedy occurred in the chauffeur's house on a corner of the 50-acre Long Island estate in Wheatly Hills.

A note made public by Inspector King said in part: "I could not bear to live to see my children suffer as I have suffered."

The children, Anthony, 2½, and Mary Ann, 5, and their mother were found on the top stair landing in the two-story frame house by their father and husband, Anthony Novinski, 30.

Aircraft Industry Asks Lower Wage Plans

The aircraft industry asked the Labor Department's public contract board yesterday to cut down the 60 cents an hour minimum recommended by the board for workers on Government aviation contracts.

Layton Rogers, representing the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, contended the proposal was too high and asked for an increase in the board's recommended 15 per cent allowance for beginners. Representatives of labor, including the International Association of Machinists, told the board the minimum wage should be not less than 62½ cents an hour with no allowance for beginners.

Detective Leon Nowitzky, coroner's investigator reported Kaldenback left a note in which he requested he be given a military funeral in Arlington Cemetery, and in which he listed the time of his suicide as 3:05 a. m.

Bus Engine Takes Fire At 5th and W Streets

A Capital Transit bus suffered damage estimated at $150 last night when its engine burst into flames while parked at Fifth and W streets northwest. No one was on the bus.

Police said the driver, Maurice H. Herndon, 28, of 1245 Raum street northeast, had turned at the end of the line and was waiting for time to start the return trip when he noticed flames at the rear. He discovered the motor on fire and called the fire department.

Miss M'Connell Will Rule on Child Labor

Miss Lenroot Also Names Mrs. E. B. Coleman, New York Expert, as Her Assistant.

Miss Beatrice McConnell will be in charge of administration of the child-labor provisions of the fair labor standards act, Miss Katherine F. Lenroot, chief of the children's bureau, Labor Department, announced yesterday. Since 1935 she has been director of the bureau's industrial division.

Simultaneously, Miss Lenroot announced appointment of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Coleman, of New York, as assistant director of the industrial division in charge of child-labor administration.

The indutsiral division will be expanded to include the section devoted to child-labor administration and a section devoted to research.

The administrative section will include specialists and field representatives in employment-certificate issuance and child-labor inspection and regional child-labor consultants, who will develop co-operative relations with State agencies responsible for administration of the child-labor laws.

The research section will carry on existing functions in general research, as well as additional studies and investigations to determine hazardous occupations.

Miss McConnell is a native of West Virginia, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and was director of the Bureau of Women and Children, Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry.

Tydings to Win, Kiwanis Hears

Senator Tydings will win the Maryland Democratic primary contest, Earl Godwin, president of the White House Correspondents Association, predicted yesterday in an address before the Washington Kiwanis Club at the Mayflower Hotel.

Godwin declared New Dealers close to the Administration will attempt to convince the public of the necessity for a third term for President Roosevelt.

"With the Democratic Party being torn by its liberal and conservative wings and the President attempting to establish a new liberal party, the public is beginning to suspect third party efforts," Godwin said. "Yet there has been no successful coalition in years. State election laws today present an effective handicap to the success of a third party movement."

Woman Explains Attack Tale Was Fund-Raising Trick

In a signed statement dictated at police headquarters, a 23-year-old white woman yesterday denied that she had been held up at the point of a butcher knife, forced to disrobe, and then fled through a woods to safety.

"The whole report is false," the woman declared after officers of the police pickup squad had questioned her about the story she had told to Prince Georges County officers, and later to newspapers.

She said she had taken a ride with a man she did not know, and that she wanted no further police action. She explained she had told the story to newspapers in the hope her mother, who lives in Charlottesville, Va., would read it and send her money to come home.

2 Buildings Taken For U. S. Offices

Two Fourteenth street northwest buildings were taken over by Federal Government agencies yesterday.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority will occupy the Stanley Horner Building, at 1015 Fourteenth street, providing 26,300 square feet of office space. The new space will be in addition to that now used by the authority in the Commerce Department Building and in the recently rented Garfinckel Annex at Fourteenth and G streets northwest.

The Department of Labor will use the building at 1512-20 Fourteenth street, containing 21,000 square feet. The Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization will occupy this building. The new wages and hours division of the Labor Department will move into the third floor of the Securities Building, 729 Fifteenth street northwest, also leased yesterday.

Although employes of the Immigration and and Naturalization Bureau voted to occupy the attic of the new Labor Department Building, a survey revealed that the attic could not be ventilated properly.

Legal Schooling Barriers Assailed

Unnecessary obstacles are placed in the path of aspirants to the bar in Washington by new educational requirements sought by the District Bar Association, Dr. John R. Fitzpatrick, dean of Columbus University Law School, told the Junior Board of Commerce yesterday. The board met at luncheon at the Annapolis Hotel.

Dr. Fitzpatrick said the District Court has a standing committee on admissions which requires only high school graduation, or its equivalent. Last June, he said, the bar association passed a resolution, now before the United States Court of Appeals, requiring two years' college work.

Further, he said, an additional three years' regular law course, or four years' night law study, would be required above the two years of college.

Second Best National Income Since 1930 Forecast for Year

Commerce Department Predicts Figure of 64 Billions, 6 Per Cent Below 1937, With Net Loss In Business for the Year Despite Increased Purchasing Power of Wages.

Commerce Department officials estimated yesterday the national income for 1938 would run close to $64,000,000,000, if current business improvement trends continued to the end of the year.

This figure would be about 6 or 7 per cent below last year's total of $69,380,000,000, they said, but would be larger than that for any other year since 1930.

Again, comparing with 1937, they said that since prices were lower this year than last, and the dollar was thus buying larger amounts of commodities, the decrease in actual production would be less than the 6 or 7 per cent shown by the dollar figures.

The officials emphasized that their forecast was dependent upon business maintaining the rate of improvement shown by the last few months. The outbreak of a war in Europe could make the prediction meaningless, it was said.

In compiling such figures, the department draws a distinction between "income produced," or what has been actually increased or created, and "income paid out," or production translated into the dollars which are put into pay envelopes and salary and dividend checks. The foregoing figures were on the basis of "income paid out," since that is the measure of purchasing power.

A phenomen of the early years of the depression was that "income paid out' exceeded "income produced;" that is, business losses were made good by drawing upon the profits of the preceding prosperity years. In 1929, before the slump, "income produced" totaled $81,128,000,000 and "income paid out" totaled only $75,556,000,000. In 1930, production was $68,302,000,000 and payments were $73,290,000,000.

This excess of payments reached a peak of $9,010,000,000 in 1932, and thereafter dwindled to $458,000,000 in 1934. Production exceeded payments by $880,000,000 in 1935, and exceeded them again in 1936 and 1937.

Now, the department experts say, judging by corporate reports of dividend payments for the first half of this year, payments will inevitably exceed production this year; that is, the year as a whole will show a net business loss for the country. However, its extent can not be gauged as yet.

Income payments, which had previously been trending steadily upward, began falling in August, 1937. They then were at 88.6 per cent of the average for 1929. In Janary of this year the figure was 81.7 per cent, and it decreased to 78.3 in June. In July, the figure rose to 79.1, and preliminary figures for August show another advance.

Lewis Charges Big Interests Help Tydings

Primary Foe Says Senator Is Representative of Big Corporations in Upper House.

With a slashing attack on "the rubber stamp Senators who work only for big business and their campaign contributors," Representative Lewis last night accused Senator Tydings of being linked with "the big corporations which would drive a wedge between the man on the farm and the housewife in the city."

Lewis told a State-wide radio audience that his rival for the Maryland Democratic Senatorial nomination "either stands for or represents directly through his law firm" big business interests which keep consumers' prices high.

The 59-year-old Representative took as his text a passage from President Roosevelt's Labor Day speech in Denton, Md., in which the Chief Executive said that "economic lesson No. 1 of the past 20 years is that men and women on the farms, men and women in the cities, are partners."

Exploitation Charged

Pointing out that "the price of flour is lower than at any time since 1933 and yet the price of bread is at the highest level since 1922," Lewis declared that "the reason is that four big baking companies dominate the industry."

In addition to charging Tydings with being "solidly behind monopolistic interests and in favor of price-fixing," Lewis stated that the Senator's campaign had been financially aided by Charles Schmidt, head of the Schmidt Baking Co.; James Piper, "attorney for Ward Bread, one of the four big firms which dominate the baking industry, and, incidentally, a Republican," and the International Milling Co., of Minneapolis, which "has sent money all the way from Minneapolis to help send Millard Tydings back to the Senate."

Lewis asserted that the consumer price of liquor is "outrageous" and is kept up "through two things—the great whisky ring . . . and the Tydings price-fixing bill." "The bill," said Lewis, "was one of the greatest legislative gifts ever made to the liquor industry."

The Representative then said that clients of Senator Tydings' law firm are the Frank L. Wight Distilling Co., the Maryland Distillers Association and, "most important of all," the Calvert Liquor Co.

"Calvert," he said, "is part of the great Seagrams Limited, of Montreal and London, one of the chief owners is Thomas H. McInnerney, who is head of the powerful National Dairy Produce Corporation with which the Senator from Maryland has relations through its subsidiary, the Fairfield Western Maryland Dairy Co., and which his father-in-law's firm represents in Washington.

"Thus we have our Senator aiding in keeping up the price of milk to children through one firm, and keeping up the price of whisky to adults through another firm, and doing this very skillfully and effectively through his law firm and through the tactics on the floor of the United States Senate," said Lewis.

Speaker Is Cheered

Speaking before a working class audience of 500 in South Baltimore tonight, Representative Lewis was greeted with cheers and whistles when he declared: "I am engaged in this contest to justify Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his works."

After reciting Tydings Senatorial record, Lewis shouted "Maryland has been shamed before the democracy of the United States by the vote of one of its Senators in the United States Senate."

Roosevelt's program is not yet concluded, said Lewis. "In order to conclude that program it is necessary that there be in the United States faithful Democrats who run as Democrats and who vote as Democrats when they reach the Senate."

Lewis rang in his familiar note that "while the world does not owe man a living it does owe him a chance to make a living."

The diminutive Representative cast a sidelong glance at talk of a third term when he said, "If you wish to make good and real the two years remaining in the commission of our great President and his high program Davey J. Lewis will give you the best Democratic service."

At a rally in Baltimore's Harlem, Lewis told his colored audience that he was glad that Justice Black is on the bench.

Applause followed his statement that "this gives some substantiation to the theory of mine that everyone has the right to work."

Lewis ended his evening of speech-making by addressing a small audience in Northeast Baltimore. He taunted his rival with the quip that "Tydings might have to have an assistant Senator to vote Democratic." His reference was to Tydings' statement that Lewis was so old he might require an assistant Senator.

Lewis told the crowd that "I'm only 5 feet long." Some one interrupted to shout "But has plenty of power."

Italian Ship Quits Sea Treasure Hunt

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 8 (AP).—The Italian treasure ship, Falco, will load her bunkers with coal here Friday and sail for her home port—but without 17 tons of silver and jewels which her officers sought to recover from the sunken steamer Merida.

Capt. M. Latarvuli was granted permission yesterday by the Coast Guard to coal here. Permission was necessary because the Falco carries dynamite in her hold.

Capt. Latarvuli and other members of the treasure-hunting expedition said location of the sunken steamer had been marked by buoys and that the Falco would return next spring after the storm season to resume the search for the treasure.

Sea Unions Spur Fight On Foreign Competition

By the Associated Press.

The C. I. O.'s maritime unions called on the Commerce Department yesterday to publish statistics on the number of foreign ships chartered by American companies, and the amount of American goods carried in foreign bottoms.

This would enable the unions to "fight unfair foreign competition" that deprives American seamen of jobs, said a letter by Ralph Emerson, the C. I. O. union's legislative agent.

Center's Site Once Decried As Malarial

Formerly Spa, Vicinity North of Penn. Ave. 'Source of Agues' to Old Residents.

The more you read in history books about the site of the projected Municipal Center, the more you wonder whether the land is dried out enough for building purposes.

A hundred years ago little streams were bubbling all over the section north of Pennsylvania avenue. In 1848 one Baalam Burch drowned at Fifth and G streets northwest (a block from the new Police Court); the body was recovered two weeks later at Third street and Indiana avenue (northeast boundary of the new Center).

The streams, all long since closed over, were viewed with mingled emotions by the citizenry of the day. The stately Tiber, ultimate destination of most of the rivulets, was admired for the trees and flowering shrubs along its banks, and decried as "a fruitful source of agues and bilious fevers."

City Once a Spa.

A stream which meandered over Judiciary Square before joining Tiber Creek south of C street was accidentally responsible for Washington's brief fame as a spa. Some wily promoter discovered early in the last century that a well behind City Hall (now the District Court Building) yielded water of a peculiar flavor.

Naming it "Columbia water," he capitalized on its "mineral content" until authorities discovered its flavor came from the Judiciary Square stream. The stream abounded in sewage material dumped by residents of the square and of the old District Jail.

At Ninth and E streets, four blocks north of the Municipal Center site, the Judiciary Square stream fed a leech pond owned by Samuel De Vaughan, the city's outstanding "cupper" during the early 1800s.

Pioneer Sanitation Venture.

What with leeches and the Judiciary Square housewives, the authorities decided in 1829 to put in a sewer, which ran along Pennsylvania avenue between Four and a Half and Second streets. Thus the Municipal Center will cover Washington's pioneer sanitation venture.

The Tiber was the most colorful as well as the largest of the creeks. Sometimes referred to as "Goose Creek," it traced its more dignified title back to 1663 when Lord Baltimore deeded what is now Capitol Hill to a man named Pope. A modest man, Pope christened his estate Rome and the creek which skirted it the Tiber.

The stream was formed by two branches which met at North Capitol and M streets, cut through the northwest corner of the Capitol, traversed the Mall and emptied into the Potomac.

At its origin it was used to operate a grist mill owned by Notley Young, among Washington's original landholders. Along Indiana avenue, at high tide, it provided plenty of sport for the last century's canoeists.

Once a Canal.

For many years its course through the Mall was a busy canal filled with barges and lined with wharves. Dignified by the term "Washington Canal," it was diverted in 1822 for drainage purposes and is responsible for much of the reclaimed land in the heart of the city.

To get back to the Municipal Center—the District probably wouldn't have needed a Congressional appropriation to build it if they had started back in 1820. That year a landowner, anxious to rid himself of the swampy land bordering on Judiciary Square, offered an entire lot to a carpenter in exchange for a lounge spring.

Municipal Center Will Tower Where Tiber Creek Once Flowed

Historic map of Washington shows where streams that flowed through the area now known as Judiciary Square emptied into Tiber Creek just south of C street northwest. Site for projected municipal center borders the creek.

William T. Butler, colored, 31, of 213 Third street southwest, arrested at Third and C streets southwest, and William H. Hooper, colored, 40, of 486 L street southwest, seized in the 600 block of Fourth street southwest, were held in $1,500 bond each on numbers charges for later hearing before Turnage.

Butler Estate Set at $100,000

An estate valued slightly in excess of $100,000 was left by the late Miss Florence Helena Butler, former Washington resident, who died in Los Angeles, June 11, it was disclosed in District Court yesterday when a petition for the probate of her will was filed.

Gifts of $3,000 were provided for Reina Lawrence and Dorothea D. Lawrence, of Plainfield, N. J.; Ignia Streichi, of Florence, Italy, and Louise Limoges, of Paris, France, while bequests of $1,000 were granted Helen Veldee, and Florence Merrill, of Washington; Louise Riveria, of Auvergne, France, and Mary Bruce Mann, of Richmond, Va. A former housekeeper, Susie Wilkinson, was given $500. The remainder is to be divided among the beneficiaries according to their proportionate bequests.

Armed D. C. Man Jailed 9 Months

Possession of of a knife and a sawed-off shotgun yesterday netted Frank Watson, colored, of the 1300 block Sixth street northwest, nine months in jail when he appeared before Judge Hobart Newman in Police Court.

Watson was arrested by E. P. Tucker, attached to a Second Precinct radio car, when the latter noticed Watson loitering behind a gas station at 1301 Thirteenth street northwest early Monday.

Tucker told the court the man ran north on Thirteenth street for almost a block before he was captured.

YIP! THE Big Round-up

John Bailey Kinds, 2, of 1857 Park road northwest, gave his grandmother, Mrs. Ida Kinds, an anxious hour yesterday when he disappeared from the rear yard of their home.

Mrs. Kinds said she left the back porch while she went to the front door, and when she returned he had disappeared. A search of neighboring houses yielded no trace. She called police and learned that officers had found the boy.

Mrs. Kinds said he had found his way out of the yard through an unlocked garage door. The boy's parents are in Chicago.

Court Approves Coal Cost Publicity

Suit by 22 coal producers in the bituminous field to restrain the National Bituminous Coal Commission from making public cost data submitted to the commission in compliance with the coal act, was dismissed yesterday by Justice Joseph W. Cox in District Court.

The companies, doing business in Utah, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, submitted cost data on the forms required by the commission, and then sought to enjoin the publication of it. In his ruling yesterday Justice Cox asserted the data was part of the commission's record and might be made public.

The basic cost production is expected to lead to price fixing later on. The law states that any interested parties may examine the data of the commission so that rival mines can examine the records of others.

Pecora Admits Hines Charges May Have Flaw

Hines

justice. "There is no doubt in my mind on this evidence," he declared "that it would fit a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice like a new suit."

The hearing was adjourned at 2:53 p. m. until 2 p. m. tomorrow, out of deference to the funeral services tomorrow for Cardinal Hayes. Justice Pecora announced that the trial would be continued all day Saturday.

With the jury excused from the courtroom, Stryker delivered an argument of more than three hours, in moving that the indictment against Hines be dismissed. His argument and an ensuing one by Dewey were based on briefs they had exchanged in the morning and given to Justice Pecora.

Stryker based his plea for a dismissal of the 12 felony counts in the indictment on the ground that Hines' alleged activities — even granted the accuracy of testimony by confessed perjurers against his client, which he would refuse later to concede—did not constitute "contriving, proposing, or drawing a lottery" within the meaning of the governing statute, or even "assisting" in any such running of a lottery.

He alleged also that the conspiracy to which State's witnesses have testified was not a conspiracy to run a lottery, but to "muscle in" upon one that was running, and to "shake down" Harlmen's criminal policy bankers. It was not, he insisted, the conspiracy as charged in the indictment.

As for the single count in the indictment, charging Hines with conspiracy, he said, the people must prove within the statute of limitations that Hines was a co-conspirator since May 24, 1936, or two years before the defendant was accused.

He declared that nowhere in the testimony was that shown. The only testimony concerning payments of Hines in 1936, he pointed out, came from George Weinberg and "Big Harry" Schoenhaus, two Schultz gangsters whom he described in terms of blistering opprobrium. They merely testified, he said, that his client was paid "up into 1936," and not until May, 1936.

Dewey, on the contrary, contended that the conspiracy and Hines' share in it had been fully proved by the testimony of conspirators, substantiated by witnesses from outside the racket who were "unimpeachable." The racket, he conceded, might have been an extortion racket when Schultz muscled in, but when it got under way with Hines affording political protection, the bankers were willingly in it, and the whole "combination" was operating like a well-oiled trust in restraint of trade.

He agreed with Justice Pecora that the operations of the Schultz mob were something like those of business men who stifled competition and managed a group of small businesses to assure themselves the maximum profit. He agreed further that the participants, under other circumstances, might well have been prosecuted under the anti-trust laws, but theirs was a criminal business, he pointed out, and argued that Hines was a key man in it.

Arguments were marked by the bitterest exchanges between opposing counsel that have yet occurred, and by rebukes by Justice Pecora to both.

Stryker contended that Dewey, in substance, was trying to prove by indirection that Hines was bribing judges, a charge he would not "dare" to make on any evidence so far presented, as a direct charge, written into an indictment. He said the prosecution had used "Prussian methods" in making its case, and had so taken advantage of the conspiracy law that he predicted a future Legislature would repeal it so it could not be used for injustice.

Dewey countered that counsel for the defense had been "despicable" in calling one of his witnesses, an agent of the United States Treasury who had tapped a telephone in J. Richard (Dixie) Davis's apartment a "crook." "I call it despicable," he said, "to attack a Government witness working for the welfare of all of us as a crook."

Justice Pecora remarked that Stryker merely had been assailing the practice of wire tapping, a practice which also had been assailed by the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"In insist it was despicable," Dewey flung back, "even in the interests of a client who pays very well."

Kentucky campaign by State welfare employes paid in some instances exclusively by the State government, and in others, by both the State and Federal governments.

The committee said $7,700 was collected in Chandler's behalf from employes of the old age assistance division of the State welfare department operating under Title 1 of the social security act.

Each supervisor in the 19 districts in the State collected about 2 per cent of employes' annual salary, the committee said.

Other committee charges turned over to Altmeyer:

That at least three employes of the old age assistance division were engaged almost exclusively in activities for Chandler.

That about $3,500 was collected on a 2 per cent assessment basis from the 150 employes of the Unemployment Compensation Commission of Kentucky, operating under title 3 of the social security act. These funds, it was said, were turned over by L. G. Forquer, the commission's personnel supervisor, to Goodpaster.

That $4,243 was collected from State welfare department employes by H. H. Holman, and also paid to Goodpaster.

It said the money placed with the Chandler funds custodian was disbursed without the formality of a receipt or record through Eileen Mahoney, secretary to J. Dan Talbott, financial director of Kentucky and campaign manager for Chandler; Robert Humphrey, State commissioner of highways; P. Johnson and P. Kirtley.

The committee's WPA evidence submitted to Hopkins charged S. C. Taylor, area engineer for Pulaski and Russell counties, directed distribution of special WPA forms to workers, with instructions to foremen to have employes mark their political affiliations.

The committee summarized the following additional WPA charges:

That project workers had been approached by foremen to sign papers stating they would support Barkley.

That Barkley campaign buttons were passed out to the workers by foremen and other persons connected with WPA.

That men known to hold views contrary to Barkley were discharged, "there being always assigned some reason other than political and that being denied."

That in the 32 westermost counties, including Paducah where Barkley resides, "there was a recognized comprehensive canvass of the entire personnel of the Works Progress Administration in those counties comprising approximately 18,000 employes of which approximately 17,200 were certified workers."

Lewis Funds Inquiry Checks on Magruder

Charges

charges by Tydings supporters that the C. I. O. is financing the campaign of Representative Lewis.

Investigators were sent back to inquire into complaints by Tydings that Maryland Collector of Internal Revenue Hampton Magruder has been active for Lewis and the Lewis counter blast that a $200,000 secret fund is being used for Tydings.

Chairman Morris Sheppard announced he would hold a special meeting of his committee on Saturday or Sunday if necessary to get final reports before the Maryland primaries Monday.

Meanwhile the Maryland Senator planned to speak over a State-wide radio hookup at 6:30 tonight in answer to the President's Denton speech.

Tydings had charged that Mrs. Toulson during postoffice hours has been working for Lewis by urging other postmasters to support him, distributing advertising and publicity for him, and had even ridden with Lewis to neighboring counties.

"The committee is of the opinion, in view of the reports it has received from its investigators, that these allegations in the main are substantiated," Sheppard said in a statement.

"The committee is of the opinion that the postmistress at Salisbury has violated Section 211 of the United States code, Title 18, which briefly stated, forbids any Federal employe from giving or handing over money or anything of value (services, etc.) to any other employes or to a Senator or Representative in Congress for any political purpose whatsoever."

The committee said that the fact that Mrs. Toulson was acting voluntarily, as she claimed, or that she was actuated by a desire to support the National Administration's policies, "does not justify violating the law or the regulations of the Federal Government relating to Federal employes in the postal service."

The committee said other charges by Tydings and Lewis are now under investigation. These include Tydings' statement that Magruder told noncivil service employes in his office he was for Lewis and indicated their tenure of office might be affected by their vote.

Magruder has denied he intimated in any way how they should vote. Informed yesterday that Treasury officials had approved of the Magruder statement before he made it, Sheppard said that would be called to the attention of investigators.

Tydings' other two charges were that Eugene Casey, attached to Lewis headquarters, said "They either vote for Lewis, or out they go," and that another of Lewis' contact men "invaded" the postoffice at Havre de Grace and "then went around the town hunting for a new postmaster."

Subsequently Lewis asked investigation of an affidavit by Joseph Hardy, Baltimore WPA worker, that a WPA assignment clerk refused him a job because he refused to promise to vote for Tydings. In still another letter, Lewis said he had "reliable" information of a hidden $200,000 fund used for Tydings, and charged Schapiro at a dinner gave the Maryland Senator a $5,000 check. Denials followed each barrage of allegations from opposing sides

The Senate committee's investigation was originally launched when Lewis asked the committee to inquire into an advertisement authorized by Tydings' managers that he, Lewis, was financially supported by the C. I. O.

While the committee failed to sustain this charge against Lewis, investigators reported that the C. I. O. or its affiliates "have made two small expenditures totaling not more than $100." It said this was spent for a labor circular and the hiring of a hall "for a meeting of said affiliate in behalf of the Lewis campaign."

Sheppard said the affiliate in question was a unit of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Concerning the Lewis charge that Schapiro, of the Boston Iron & Metal Co., and the Globe Brewing Co. contributed $5,000 directly or indirectly to Tydings' campaign fund, the committee said:

"The evidence presented to the committee by its investigators does not confirm the report that Mr. Schapiro has, up to August 29, either personally or in behalf of the companies named, contributed $5,000 or any part thereof to the Tydings campaign."

A denial by Schapiro, accompanied by a statement that he nevertheless will make a substantial contribution if it is needed, was contained in an affidavit submitted by Schapiro to the investigators

New Commissioners

As Lieut. Col. David McCoach assumes his new duties as Engineer Commissioner for the District, interest naturally centers in the remaining vacancy on the Board of Commissioners. When a successor to former Commissioner George E. Allen is named the new members will constitute a majority and will soon be confronted by the question as to how far they will follow the policies of the previous local administration.

Selection of Col. McCoach was a relatively simple task. He was chosen from a comparatively small group of Army officers fitted by training, experience and temperament to serve as Engineer Commissioner for the Capital City. Officers assigned to this position have almost invariably rendered competent service As a successor to Col. Sultan, Col McCoach has a formidable precedent to uphold. But there are many reasons to believe that he is equal to the task.

Choice of a successor to Mr. Allen will not be so simple. The new civilian Commissioner must be selected from a much broader field. Moreover, he will, in some respects, have a greater responsibility. In addition to being a competent administrator, he ought to reflect in large measure the wishes of local residents as to the governing of this municipality. And if those wishes are to become effective, he must have sufficient prestige to command the attention of Congress when carrying District problems to Capitol Hill.

The importance of the post precludes a hasty appointment. Ample time should be given to permit the best qualified citizen to emerge from the long list of possible nominees. Yet it is to be hoped that the selection will not be unduly delayed. The Commissioners will be necessarily handicapped in formulating their new legislative program until this vacancy is filled.

Construction Of Homes

The widespread interest in home construction reported by Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, is one of the most encouraging aspects of the present economic outlook. The demand for mortgage insurance through the Federal Housing Administration has for some time indicated that the housing industry is playing a significant part in the recovery movement. Of course, this emphasis on private home building would not be complete without a supplementary program of slum clearance.

There seems, however, no reason to be worried about the boom in housing which Mr. Straus sees in the offing. Net building gains are relatively modest. This healthy resumption of activity should steadily grow without the sudden expansion and subsequent collapse which a boom implies.

Certainly the policies being followed by the USHA are not themselves conducive to over-rapid development. Mr. Straus expects the total $800,000,000 available for loans on slum-clearance projects to be allocated by Christmas. But this does not necessarily mean that it will be hastily spent on razing fire-traps and erecting modern low-rental dwellings. Setting aside funds is only the first step in a long process of evolving public residential projects.

When Congress increased the fund available to the USHA a few months ago there was fear that slum-clearance projects might be undertaken on an emergency basis. Now the prevalent complaint is that this agency is delaying the program by supervising every detail of each project from Washington. The act was passed more than a year ago. No contract for the actual construction of houses has yet been let. Two cities are advertising for bids and others will soon be ready to do so. But some local authorities complain that their plans are being held up by the USHA.

Mr. Straus was "enormously impressed" on his recent tour by the work of the local housing authorities and the men in charge of them. That observation may foreshadow a reorganization of the USHA. At present the measure of discretion left to these local authorities in planning their projects seems rather small. Most of the intricate details of designing suitable low-rental quarters must be worked out at Washington.

Some cities report a waning of interest in slum clearance because they are not permitted to develop the type of projects which they believe best suited to their locality. Fort Wayne has given up its earmarking of USHA funds and is reported to be going ahead with a project involving no Federal aid. Other communities have refused to sign the proposed USHA contract which, they contend, would deprive them of the right to control the development of projects for which they will be responsible.

The USHA must retain a close check on local agencies to which money is lent. But the PWA has already proved that the attempt to formulate detailed plans for work of this sort in a central agency is a mistake. If Mr. Straus' tour leads to a re-examination of USHA technique, it may greatly facilitate the work of slum clearance without any real danger of stimulating an undesirable boom.

Solution By Surrender

The London Times, often regarded as a mouthpiece of the British Government, suggests editorially that the predominantly German area in Czechoslovakia should be ceded to the Reich, thus ameliorating the Central European crisis by application of the principle of self-determination. While the foreign office has promptly denied sponsorship for, or agreement with, the proposal, it remains significant as representing a solution which would appeal to an important element in Great Britain.

The comment that this is an illustration of British willingness to solve a problem at the expense of others is not entirely fair. If there should be war over the future of Czechoslovakia the probability of speedy British involvement would be strong. But the extent to which the Dominions would back up the Mother Country in an issue of no direct concern to them is very questionable. To secure imperial unity the British would have to show that Germany deliberately forced hostilities, which would certainly be the case if the major concession outlined were followed by a continuation of Nazi aggression. For that reason the London Times suggestion must be regarded as one which any responsible British source is thoroughly justified in making.

It is rational for another reason. There is now something unrealistic in the argument that Czechoslovakia is the last reliable bulwark against Germany's eastward expansion. The little republic has undoubtedly been weakened by the minority campaigns, not merely of the Sudeten Germans but by those of the Magyar, Polish and even Slovak elements as well. The followers of Henlein in particular are now a source of weakness, not strength, for Czechoslovakia. The country might well be more, rather than less, stable without them.

A further point in favor of the secession plan is that it would automatically terminate Germany's claim to be the protector of the Sudeten minority. In turning these people over to the tender mercies of the Reich there would be an immediate test of the sincerity of Nazi propaganda. Any further pressure on Czechoslovakia would then be revealed as clear evidence of the Reich's aggressive designs, without benefit of the minorities red herring which Hitler has been using so assiduously.

That is one side of the picture. The reverse aspect is summed up by the abundant evidence that surrender to Nazi claims invariably whets the German appetite for more. This would almost certainly be true if the proposal made by the London Times were put into effect. The Sudeten minority is inextricably mixed with the Czech population. If districts 70 per cent German were now ceded to Germany it would be only a short time before the Nazis would be claiming sections with a 40 per cent minority of their own race. Indeed, they already assert a right to protect all Germans, regardless of the dominant composition of the area. This procedure threatens the total disintegration of Czechoslovakia and would be applied to that end.

Another consideration adverse to the London Times suggestion is its apparent dismissal of the current Czech proposal, which agrees to establish cantons with a very complete degree of self-government, including their own unsupervised police powers. This offer goes so far to meet every asserted minority grievance that the desirability of going further seems highly questionable from the viewpoint of the Sudetens themselves. After all, many of them are not Nazi. There is something alien to the English tradition in suggesting that this minority in a minority should be turned over to Hitler, Himmler, Hess & Co., just to ease Britain's diplomatic problems.

Furthermore, if it is proper to annex the Sudeten populace to Germany it is at least equally so to do the same for the South Tyrol, where Italy has for nearly 20 years been ruthlessly trying to stamp out the completely Germanic character of a former Austrian province. When Hitler demands that Mussolini restore all the Tyrol to Germany his cries for the Sudetens will begin to carry a conviction they do not have at present.

In balance, therefore, the suggestion of the London Times for solution by surrender is inadmissible. It appears so more clearly when the underlying issue in the German threat to Czechoslovakia is understood.

So far Hitler's efforts have been directed to freeing Germany from the fetters of the Treaty of Versailles, and all of these have now been shattered. The pressure on Czechoslovakia falls in an entirely different category. It does not seek the restitution of something lost by Germany. On the contrary it represents aggressive German pressure on a state which has never done the Reich any injury. The dividing line is important. And if Hitler is permitted to cross it only the fatuous, in view of the record, will believe that the cause of world peace will be served thereby.

Dewey Rests His Case

Three weeks after the trial began, District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York has rested the case of The People vs. James J. Hines. In that period 50 witnesses were called to testify for the prosecution and more than 4,000 pages of testimony were taken down.

Understandably the case has attracted a tremendous amount of attention. In the first place it involves the fate of a very important Tammany leader. In the second place it has intensified the spotlight on Thomas E. Dewey, which for some time has made his name familiar far beyond the confines of the metropolis. It is no secret that his political future may be largely influenced by the outcome of the present trial. To add to the drama the trial has concentrated attention on one of the darker aspects of our urban life—the frequently-suspected relationship between crime and politics.

Through the witnesses he has called to the stand, Mr. Dewey has sought to prove two main contentions. The first is that Mr. Hines was hand-in-glove with the late Dutch Schultz, czar of the highly-organized numbers racket in New York. The second charge is that in return for regular money payments from the racketeer, the Tammany leader used his influence to prevent molestation of Schultz's henchmen by the police, and to get them off free if, nonetheless, they were arrested.

The large majority of these witnesses were individuals belonging to Dutch Schultz's racket—his lawyer, "Dixie" Davis, for instance; one of his important subordinates, George Weinberg; and various other cogs in the Schultz machine. Their collective testimony, if accepted at face value, is impressive and it may be that the jury will accept the revelations so far made at the trial as the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

On the other hand, many of the key figures in the prosecution's case are individuals whose credibility is easily subject to attack. Perhaps they were telling the truth this time, but it may not be difficult for the defense to prove that they have not hesitated, in the past, to perjure themselves if anything was to be gained thereby. The nature of the principal defense attorney's cross-examinations thus far indicates that this potential weakness in the prosecution's armor will be exploited to the full.

For this reason the outcome of the case may well depend on one of the few bits of documentation presented by Mr. Dewey by way of evidence. This is a check for $500 allegedly indorsed to Mr. Hines by Schultz's attorney. If this check and Mr. Hines' indorsement on the back of it are held by the jury to be bona fide the prosecution's case would be greatly strengthened. If this bit of evidence is discredited the defense would gain considerably.

The second—and final—round of the Hines case has now begun. The defense now has its innings and it is probable that this second half of the trial will be as dramatic as the first. What the final outcome will be is for the jury to say. But in the meantime Justice Pecora's crowded courtroom will and should be watched with unflagging interest by the entire Nation.

Dictator For 20 Days

Following this week's abortive National Socialist uprising in Santiago, President Alessandri asked the Chilean Senate to grant him the right to suspend the constitution for a period of six months in order to prevent further outbreaks.

The remedy appeared as bad as the disease. The speed and relative ease with which the Nacista revolt was put down suggests that it constituted no very grave threat to the Chilean regime. On the other hand, the President's request did threaten to saddle the country for at least half a year, and possibly longer, with one-man rule no less obnoxious because its announced purpose was to prevent a dictatorship of another type.

Chilean public opinion, evidently did not take very kindly to Senor Alessandri's proposal, even though the immediate need of strong measures to prevent disorders was recognized. The Chilean Senate, while granting the President's request, limited the duration of the extraordinary powers he has been empowered to exercise to a mere 20 days.

This period should be long enough to permit a thorough housecleaning with respect to those elements in Chile that have been plotting the overthrow of the regime. At the same time the action of the Senate, in whittling down the proposed period of martial law from six months to less than three weeks, reflects a praiseworthy determination to ward off one-man rule. In Chile, as elsewhere in South America, the democratic urge appears to be finding increasing expression these days, despite the spread of a great variety of imported anti-democratic ideologies and the long tradition of dictatorial executives.

The State Rests

The Political Pot

Maryland Pride

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In their invasion of Maryland the Presidential purgers have overlooked one element which foredooms their plans to failure. What "Tommy the Cork," Drew Pearson, et al. do not, doubtless cannot, comprehend is that Marylanders have an intense pride in the "Free State" and its traditions. Incidentally, nowhere is this feeling stronger than among the fine old colonial stock on the Eastern Shore and in southern Maryland.

Be he liberal or conservative, the Marylander is deeply and instinctively attached to certain principles which form a part of the "Free State" tradition. Briefly, they are local self-government, orderly governmental procedure and tolerance. With this in mind, it should be easy, even for a brain truster, to foresee the unfavorable reaction to Federal interference in a purely State matter. This is especially true when the attempted purge is conducted by nonresidents and is accompanied by threats of reprisal and promises of reward.

Mr. Lewis defends outside interference, approves the Court-packing plan, lauds the appointment of Justice Black, is indorsed by the C. I. O., and squirms in agony while the Communist Party of Maryland officially pats him on the back. Therefore, he simply doesn't fit into the Maryland political picture. No wonder he has become merely the tail to the President's kite!

Senator Tydings protects local self-government by resisting outside dictation, guards orderly governmental processes by defending the Supreme Court and defying the C. I. O., and has preserved the Calvert tradition of tolerance, prized alike by Protestant, Catholic and Jew, by his opposition to the confirmation of Justice Black. In all of these acts he has consistently and courageously represented the "Maryland viewpoint."

These principles, fantastic though they may seem to the New Dealers, are the beacon lights that have guided Marylanders for 300 years. We will not yield them now.

Flexible Constitution

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I fear there are a lot of people who view the Constitution as a block of marble or granite in some graveyard, where you can go, take off your hat and read the inscription. I think that class is growing less as the years pass. I would like to ask who has done more than our able leader and statesman, now our President, to teach those growing up what our Constitution stands for, having taken the oath many times under it, having made a close study as to what it grants and stands for. I am, at 83, happy to say I think he has been true to the people under it. I take no stock in the abuse stacked up against him and what he has been trying to do for his country. Lincoln had the same uncalled-for fight made against him. Lincoln won out, and those who opposed him went into oblivion unhonored, unwept and unsung.

History may repeat itself when Roosevelt passes away, for "You cannot fool all the people all the time." O. S. HAMMOND.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 7.

Roosevelt Unity

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Roosevelt's statement in his Eastern Shore address that during his Administration "a common understanding of what unity means has grown throughout the land" is scarcely supported by fact. The actual truth is that during the present regime an incalculable amount of distrust, fear, hatred and unrest has been engendered. The New Deal machine, ruthless and relentless, treats dissenting factions and minority groups with indifference and contempt. Anyone that disagrees with Mr. Roosevelt is doomed politically, provided the President can have his way, as evidenced by the feverish and futile attempt to purge the party of those Senators and Congressmen that are unwilling to act as "Charley McCarthys."

The most fanatical New Dealer can hardly deny that the policy of "spending in order to save," as advocated by Harry Hopkins and indorsed by the President, far from creating unity, has produced incredible dissension. Nor can it be denied that our foremost industrial leaders, too numerous to mention, are unanimous in the opinion that the theory prosperity can be restored by unbridled waste of the taxpayers' money is not only fundamentally unsound but exceedingly dangerous.

Mr. Roosevelt has repeatedly pointed out, prior to his election, that taxes are paid by the workers' brow-sweat and that loose fiscal policies lead to ruin. With the Nation carrying a $40,000,000,000 load, hasn't the time arrived for the President to attempt to practice what he so fervently preached?

E. K. GOLDSBOROUGH.

Washington, Sept. 6.

The Purge's Success

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Instead of being a "100 per cent flop," the so-called purge is bound to be a success eventually, regardless of primary results in individual States. Allegations that it is a failure are, of course, purely propaganda whose purpose is to create a defeatist psychology in the ranks of the President's supporters.

Candidates favored by the President have been successful in most of the primary fights. These numerous instances are deliberately pushed into the background, while attention is directed toward the few cases in which the Roosevelt-indorsed man was beaten. Stop and consider the triumph of New Deal nominees in Oregon, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Kansas, Florida, Pennsylvania and various other States, and you will see how little reason there is for elation in the camp of the bourbons. Remember, too, that in several other instances local issues and differing factors produced results that have little or no bearing on the national situation.

In fact, there has been no contest in which an open opponent of the social welfare legislation of the Executive has been a candidate. Those legislators known to be reactionaries have painstakingly sought to conceal their hostility to Roosevelt's liberalism and strenuously maintained that they had merely minor and occasional disagreements with the President.

But even if it had been otherwise; even if Congressmen who have sabotaged progressive measures had won as out-and-out anti-New Dealers, and even if every incumbent opposed by Roosevelt should win, it would not mean the "flop" of the purge. If every reactionary Democrat now in Congress and up for re-election should remain in office, the President would be no worse off than now. Moreover, it is probable that some of the lawmakers whose seats have been contested will be less active in fighting progressive bills in the future. The President is gunning for bigger game than victories in the present primaries. He wants to make the Democratic Party what the rank and file of Democrats undoubtedly also want it to be, genuinely progressive. It was so under Thomas Jefferson, under Andrew Jackson, under William Jennings Bryan, and partially under Woodrow Wilson. Such is its historic and logical role. The 1940 national convention will probably determine whether it is thus to function or to relapse into reaction and suffer the same political penalty which it brought upon itself in 1860, when, having become the instrument of the plutocracy of the period, it was swept out of power and the new Republican Party leaped from the position of a third party to that of the dominant party.

The Congressional fights are but incidents in the struggle. The warfare is one of the people against law-makers who have thwarted the popular determination to obtain laws that curb the rapacity of the exploiting class. The people, after electing an Administration pledged and instructed to pass such laws, find their hands tied. They want to get rid of the legislators who impede the enactment of these measures. Unless they can do this, majority rule and democracy are meaningless words in the United States, and the dictatorship of a plutocratic minority will last indefinitely. LINN A. E. GALE.

Washington, Sept. 7.

Capitalism Indicted

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your editorial in The Post of September 7, "Liberal or Socialist," you label all those who rely primarily on government to effectuate reforms as socialists. And you seem to imply that this reliance upon government for reform, not to speak of bringing about a new society in the form of the collectivist state, is such a revolting idea that no argument is needed to refute it. But I, for one, have not been shown that the Socialist state is not the way out, nor have I been frightened or intimidated by all the Red scares and Dies committee reports of "Communist activities," which are aimed to intimidate everyone who wants a more just distribution of wealth.

I wish Dorothy Thompson would lay off the Sudeten Germans for one day and tell us just what is wrong with state socialism, since I understand she still believes in the capitalist system.

For about nine years now, we have had an army of unemployed numbering 11,000,000 persons, according to official estimates, though the number is nearer 20,000,000, since farm laborers, domestics and professional men are not included in the 11,000,000. The only way to put all these people to work is to reduce the number of hours to the point where all can be employed; but if this is done, then the employers cannot make a profit. In other words, the problem cannot be solved under the profit system. Should the Government take over the industries of the Nation, there would be employment for all, since there would be no need to make a profit.

It is this 20,000,000 unemployed which is included in that poorest third of the Nation which is "ill-fed, ill-clad and ill-housed" and which receives the paltry income of $471 yearly. Think of that. Over 40,000,000 Americans with an income of $471. In the face of these conditions you will have a hard time convincing me that we do not need a new society, and you will have a harder time convincing the "poorest third" that President Roosevelt is not making the most courageous effort that has yet been attempted to deal with this problem of the distribution of wealth.

ROBERT F. BAUER.

Washington, Sept. 7.

One Kind of Liberal

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that the New Deal has become shopworn and shows signs of a crackup, the master mind is fishing for leadership of a new and composite "liberal party" to carry out his program free of reactionary sabotage.

Why not? Have we ever had a leader more liberal—with other people's money? Incidentally, his brand of liberalism so much resembles the English Tory program of stop-gap relief and subsidy spending, to save to John Bull his precious landed estates, as to prompt the query: What's in a name?

He has said that taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors. So he proceeds to the piling up of a public debt that will insure plenty of sweating for generations to come. But as "leaners" more than laborers result from the spending, there will be fewer of the latter to sweat the more as time passes.

The Post Impressionist

Lincolniana.

OF ALL the great memorials of Washington, the most memorable in its classic perfection is, perhaps, the Lincoln Memorial. The brooding figure within is unforgettable. Yet there is another spot connected with Lincoln, in one sense not a memorial at all, where Lincoln lives today as real and as beloved as in the days of the flesh.

The old summer White House still stands on the grounds of Soldiers Home, not as a museum but a part of the daily life. It is easy to understand that this simple house surrounded by woods and field furnished a pleasant relief from formality to the man whose early life was lived in the wilderness, and whose pioneer soul must often have longed for the Kentucky mountains and rivers.

Today the feeling of the old soldiers toward the house is very different from the attitude of the casual sight-seer. Lincoln belongs in a very special way to them, their comrade in arms, their commander in chief, so that their recollections are personal and touching.

In one building there is an old clock which was once in the summer White House. It has never been sufficiently authenticated as the property of Lincoln to be sent to some museum, though it is believed to have been in the cottage during his occupancy. As one man said, "These old fellows all love it," and so it still remains on active duty, and some way we think that Lincoln would like to have it so; to have it remain part of the active lives of the men who cared for him, rather than a dead "relic" in a museum.

From the cottage where Lincoln stayed, it is a short walk to an elevation which overlooks the entire city. In the foreground the land slopes gently through fields and woods which have changed little since his day. Many huge trees were part of the primitive forest. Far to the south the Capitol's dome is a soft, pink pearl; a silver glint here and there marks the course of the Potomac; a soft haze envelops the Virginia hills. At night the city sparkles and flashes. Overhead the stars burn like soft lamps over the spot where a lonely figure often paced as he sought strength to carry out his crushing task.

Just a few turns along tree-bordered drives lies a little rose garden, apart from the main highway. Though the roses have been planted more recently, the garden is a part of the original grounds surrounding the summer White House of the '60s. Some way the atmosphere of the period has crept into the little garden. There are roses of every color, pale pink with golden tints, soft blush pink, and creamy white.

Near the center is a grass plot and a little fountain, very old-fashioned with its boy and fish. The clear water laps softly and overflows the edge of the basin, and birds are always drinking on the margin; splendid birds with lacquered feathers of purplish-black, perky robins, golden sparrows, and occasionally a cardinal.

There are usually one or two squirrels frisking about, digging violently or sitting with paws folded imploringly over small hearts. Rabbits sit at evening in the clover borders, small, touching figures with "donkey ears" pricked alertly to scamper at the slightest alarm.

The garden is always silent except for the soft splash of the water or a bird's call. It is something of a "Ghost Garden;" a dream and an enchantment. Ladies of the '60s in their flowing muslins, skirts looped over delicate wrists, should walk on the soft grass, gathering the roses to be arranged in blue bowls, in long, paneled drawing rooms.

In a far corner of the garden is a bench with trellis overhead. White wisteria with floating fronds falls in cascades over the arbor in springtime, making a pattern of lace against the dark background.

The autumn twilight deepens. The roses are fading, and yet in this moment so transient they have a fleeting beauty more poignant because it is so brief; the beauty of that which is passing, will soon be gone forever. A few petals fall upon the surface of the fountain. A bird's call is liquid in the fading light. In the west the sky is fading to a soft tint of apricot and gold, and above it is dimmed to silvery blue. A chill is creeping into the air, and there is loneliness, and a sense of old, half-forgotten sorrow.

It is only a shadow, a trick of the light and shade. Yet a tall, angular figure is standing by the fountain. In the half-light the face is familiar, like the face of a brother or long-lost friend, a face that is homely and yet supremely beautiful. There is a gust of the autumn wind—yet it sounds like a voice. "This, too, will pass."

The garden is still under the stars, deserted, a garden given over to night, the scent of dying roses—and memory. E. DALWICK.

Threat.

Patrolman John Rider, on duty for the first time as a city jailer, heard a commotion in the jail Thursday night.

Believing the noise came from the lodgers' quarters, Rider yelled:

"If you don't keep quiet, I'll throw you all out!"

U. S. Owes Nothing

Debt Called Bushwah

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Another twinge in the neck incidental to all discussions of this country's relations with other peoples in the recurrent bushwah about America's debt to this or that race or nation for its contributions to American literature, science and art.

This country doesn't owe any race or nation anything for any such contributions. Those which we have received and put to use have been paid for, and more, by American inventions, and many others which are talked up so highly were unsuitable to our nature and have been kicking around in the drawer like so many initialed belt buckles.

Moreover, those which we did receive, such as Shakespeare and the radio, our laws and liberties, were not intended as altruistic contributions to us any more than the electric light, the telephone and telegraph were intended as contributions to the peoples of foreign lands. We took something from them. They got more in return.

• • • •

YOU WALK down the street today and ask a thousand people to identify Giuseppe Verdi and tell you something he did or hum you a bar thereof, and not more than eight will even know what you are talking about. A slightly higher proportion may be able to remember having heard of Dante and a book with a lot of hell-fire illustrations, but in the main this country favors home-talent music and poetry.

Our songs are the Stephen Foster songs, plus "The Banks of the Wabash" and the songs of Irving Berlin, and that's about. Our favorite poetry is home-grown, and even if our best artists have gone abroad to study they are not our favorite artists, as our best artists often observe with a trace of pique.

Even our profanity is so distinctly native that Rudyard Kipling, who had messed with British tommies recruiting from the slums of London, was fascinated by the shocking force and originality of a phrase which he heard on the docks in Seattle.

• • • •

AND JUST as a rap on the knuckles of anyone who here attempts to reach out and claim the works of Irving Berlin as a Jewish contribution to American art let it be understood that there is a catch in such claims. Berlin is an American who does his stuff as an American, and anyone who claims his works as Jewish works must be prepared to accept the works of Dixie Davis as Jewish works, too.

Similarly, if the creditable works of Americans of Italian or German, Irish or whatever other birth or descent be claimed as contributions by the homeland to American civilization, then the discreditable acts of others of the same birth or strain must be accepted, too.

That wouldn't be so hot. In fact, whenever anyone takes some foreign-minded, hands-across-the-sea American at his word and offers to award full credit for all achievements, the bad as well as the good, which stand against the names of members of any particular group, the answer to that is a shrill, piercing scream of outrage.

• • • •

THE BAD WORKS are always the result of bad American environment and are to be charged against the individual miscreants as Americans. But the good works are foreign or racial contributions to American literature, science and art.

With no exceptions worth considering, all our immigrants came to the United States with no high-minded intention to contribute anything, but merely to escape the degradation, poverty, wars, plagues and oppression of their native countries. They and their descendants have made many contributions, if you want to use a noble word inconsistent with the individual, personally ambitious motives which impelled them. But they contributed as Americans.

They were, they are Americans, and they wrought in the same environment which is always offered as the excuse for bad conduct by others whose works it is desired to disown on behalf of various groups.

• • • •

BY THIS PROCESS the United States gets no credit for anything good produced by European refugees and their descendants, but blame for everything for which there is reason to be ashamed. As though there never were any slums, ignorance or criminality in the old world.

There is too much accent on Shakespeare, too, as a contribution to the American something, when the fact is that an all-American named Tunney was hooted in the streets as a pretentious intellectual fop for boasting that he had dipped his bill into one of the Henrys and, contrary to American experience, wasn't gagged on the first line.

Bullitt Denies Saying France, U. S. United in War

Paris, Sept. 8 (AP).—The United States Embassy on behalf of Ambassador Bullitt asserted today the Ambassador did not make the statement the United States and France were 'indefectively united in war as in peace," as attributed to him in Bordeaux dispatches of September 3.

The Associated Press Bordeaux correspondent who was present during the speech, part of which was extemporaneous, insisted today he heard the statement and was supported therein by the editor of La France de Bordeaux, who also was present and who published it in his newspaper.

The statement by the embassy said that that part of Bullitt's speech which dealt with American-French relations was prepared in advance and the Ambassador read it, as follows:

"It is no secret that the people of the United States today feel for the people of France the most profound sympathy. We are united by our devotion to liberty, democracy and peace. We are united by our old friendship, by the aid that each has brought to the other in the hour of need.

Bombing For Better Health

The racist review, Archiv fur Biologie und Rassengesellschaft, one of the organs of the National Socialist Party, published an article in its Volume 30 on "the utility of aerial bombardments from the point of view of racial selection and social hygiene." Its author is a high official in the Reichswehr.

"The most densely populated quarters," says the author, "will have to suffer most. Now, these quarters are inhabited by poor people, who have not been successful in life, the disinherited of society. These are the ones who will be disposed of in this way. Moreover, in addition to the numerous deaths, the explosion of the big engines, weighing a ton or more, will inevitably cause numerous cases of insanity. People with weak nervous systems cannot stand the shock. Therefore the bombardment will help us discover the neurasthenics and isolate them from social life. Once these sick people have been taken care of, all we have to do is sterilize their offspring. This will assure racial selection."

Just one thing more remains to be said. The authorities of Barcelona and Valencia should thank Mussolini and Hitler for the favor they have done these towns.

Capital's Past Under Scrutiny For Catalog of District Records

Archives Project Searching Musty Files of Churches and City's Office for Data to Be Collated and Included for More Convenient Use Of Future Historians.

Washington's "life history" is going to be gathered together in a "colossal" round-up of records so you can put your finger on its darkest moment—or brightest moment—in a moment.

Dr. Luther H. Evans, national director of the Historical Records Survey, a WPA project, outlined the plans yesterday as a corps of Government research workers lifted noses out of musty archives to talk things over in the National Archives Auditorium.

The plan to get under way in the District around September 15 is nothing less than stupendous, Dr. Evans explained, because for the first time all the records—vital statistics, legal data and other information of the District of Columbia—is going to be compiled.

Supervisors of the various units of the project at work in Washington now got together yesterday to get a picture of how their work fits in with that of their fellow workers—that is, to show how the workers whose jobs are in the stacks of the Library of Congress looking up laws affecting churches have something in common with the workers whose jobs are compiling the history of all the churches in the District.

The round-up of Washington's past, when completed and published in a voluminous set of books, will show the development of the District from the beginning.

Dr. Evans said about 20 staff workers will delve into the dusty records at the District Building for data on births, marriages, fires, and other events which might have had some bearing on the course of Washington's history.

Agencies of the project already are at work in every State of the Nation compiling comprehensive pictures of county governments as far back as possible.

Along with the survey of the records of Washington's business growth will be conducted an exhaustive survey of the history of every church in the District—its organization and its records. The survey of the churches, now under way, will be completed in about six months—about the time set for completion of Washington's growth and development, Dr. Evans said.

The survey of churches, carried out for each denomination separately, shows that churches kept records even before Government, he explained. Births, deaths, records of old wills and papers can be traced much further back in church records than in Government records, it was said.

Dr. Evans said the church records gave a clear picture of the moral and economic life of the particular period.

Results of the surveys will be compiled in mimeographed books which will furnish a key to virtually every question anyone cared to ask, he said. The round-up of Washington's governmental records will be under supervision of Erwin Wagner, an attorney. Mrs. Bessie F. Cary is the District supervisor for the project.

WPA Is Defended, Then Attacked as 'Bankruptcy Road'

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 8 (AP).—The WPA was attacked and defended—called the road to "national bankruptcy" by one speaker and hailed by another as "the biggest and most democratic peacetime adventure in public work in the history of civilization" — at today's session of the twenty-seventh annual conference of the Governmental Research Association.

Nels Anderson, director of the section on labor relations of the Federal WPA, defended both WPA and relief, saying proposals for local direct relief were "really part of a larger drive against any kind of Federal participation for the welfare of the people."

Anderson replied to a plea for local direct relief made by Carl P. Herbert, of the St. Paul (Minn.) Bureau of Municipal Research.

Herbert said that investigation by member agencies showed many cities were burdened with a relief and welfare cost exceeding the total real and personal property tax collections.

He said the United States was "rapidly approaching bankruptcy with a consequent breakdown of democracy."

French Sloop Is Due Here Next Wednesday

The Navy Department announced yesterday that the French sloop, D'Entrecasteaux, will arrive at the Navy Yard here next Wednesday for a nine-day stay. Commanded by Capt. P. M. L. Serpette, the 2,000-ton escort vessel is manned by 11 officers and 100 men. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison will entertain the French officers at luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

Rail President Calls NEC Report On South False

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 8 (AP).—The president of the Southern Industrial Council wrote the National Emergency Council today that its recent report on economic conditions of the South was "ambiguous and misleading" and held the South up to "ridicule and shame."

Fitzgerald Hall, council president and also president of the N. C. & St. L. Railway, wrote Lowell Mellett, executive director of the Emergency Council, saying:

"That the South is 'the Nation's No. 1 economic problem' is not, in my opinion, supported by the facts. Quite to the contrary, many facts indicate that the South is the No. 1 economic hope of the Nation."

Hall, who said his comments were made "in a spirit of helpfulness," added that the report "does not point out that the standard of living and the income of Negroes everywhere in the United States, in general, is lower than that of the white population" and that 29 per cent of the South's population is Negro.

Gov. Moore Protests U. S. Funds for Mills

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 8 (AP).—Use of Federal funds to establish hosiery mills on seven homestead projects in the South, Gov. Moore said today, would cause "the gradual disintegration and bankruptcy of an industry which has existed in the North for many years."

In telegrams to President Roosevelt, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Will W. Alexander, administrator of the Farm Security Administration, Moore said he was urged by the American Federation of Hosiery Works and Full Fashion Hosiery manufacturers to protest against the plan.

On The Record

Where We Stand

IN view of the situation in Europe, it might be well to review our own position in the event of a major European conflict. Perhaps the simplest way to do so is to compare it with 1914.

First of all, this country passionately desires to keep out of any war, and has engaged in numerous investigations and framed legislation with a view to preventing our participation in one.

Public opinion is overwhelmingly antiwar, and various polls show that a large proportion of people do not think we ought to fight under any circumstances unless invaded.

Some of these polls also show, however, that a very considerable percentage of those who vote against war think that if there is a major conflict, we shall not avoid being drawn into it.

Certainly nobody in the United States today thinks of sending an expeditionary force to Europe, and nobody in a responsible position in any European country either desires or expects us to.

But it is equally certain that the American position toward Europe is much clearer and more uniform than it was between 1914 and 1916.

There is, first of all, our changed position with regard to neutrality. In 1914 the basis of our neutrality policy was the historic doctrine of "freedom of the seas."

That simply meant that we claimed the right, as neutrals, to trade with anybody, neutrals or belligerents. Under this doctrine we attempted to run the British blockade of Germany, and in the first two years of the war we had serious conflicts with Great Britain, who, of course, attempted to prevent us from rendering impotent her most important weapon against the enemy.

Nazi Germany is almost completely isolated from American sympathy. A recent Gallup poll of considerable significance indicated that 65 per cent of Americans would, in a world war, sympathize with the western democracies, 32 per cent would be indifferent, and only 3 per cent would desire to see Germany or Italy win.

There are also much more realistic reasons for this distribution of sympathy than there were in 1914.

Although to a considerable extent the opposition to Germany and Italy is ideological and sentimental, we are actually—as we were not in 1914—in an open clash with German theory and practice in the economic field.

Secretary Hull's trade policies, which are extremely clear, consistent and liberal, are diametrically opposite to the Nazi trade system, which conflicts with us in South American markets and elsewhere all over the world.

The newest German deal whereby the products of oil fields expropriated from Americans and Britons is to go to Germany in return for German goods is only one example of how this policy has worked.

We have serious grounds of self-interest for resenting the German economic policy whereby Germany lives as a parasite on the free economies of the rest of the world, and we are paying by millions of unemployed for the fact that the world has been kept in political and economic unrest for the last five years.

We have, in our neutrality legislation, definitely abandoned this doctrine.

The new and legal theory is that we should keep out of war by keeping out of danger. But it is left to the discretion of the President to decide to what extent most of the neutrality act should be applied.

The sale of arms to both sides must be abandoned, providing it is decided that a state of war exists, but the Chinese-Japanese conflict indicates that when public opinion has more sympathy with one side than the other even this provision can be suspended by simply not recognizing that there is a war.

And apart from the sale of arms everything is discretionary, and at most the President is empowered to apply the cash-and-carry clause, which simply means that we sell only to those who can pay and cart off the goods.

Under the terms of the law, therefore, we could, and almost certainly would, cease immediately to have intercourse with Germany in case of a war between that country and the Western powers.

We would cease because Britain still controls the seas, and we would not attempt to run the blockade with our own ships, and because, even if she could carry, Germany has not the cash with which to buy nor any appreciable amount of American securities that could be mobilized to pay for American goods.

Although Mr. Hitler stated in his proclamation to the party congress at Nuremberg on Monday that Germany was capable of surviving a blockade, this opinion is not shared by official German economic and military publications.

The economic situation of Germany in case of war is admirably reviewed this month by William Woodside in "Harper's Magazine" in an article which takes all its information from German sources.

The "Deutscher Volkswirt," organ of Dr. Schacht; the "Militarisches Wochenblatt," the official publication of the army; and the "Frankfurter Zeitung" have warned repeatedly in the last few months that Germany is incapable of surviving a blockade.

• • • •

ON THE other hand, Great Britain and France have probably $10,000,000,000 worth of gold and American securities that could and would be immediately mobilized and utilized in this country.

Although the Johnson act forbids credits to nations in default to us—and that includes nearly everybody—it would play no role for at least a year.

In 1914 it took approximately eight months before the first substantial orders for war materials were placed in America. Then people did not believe that the war would last long.

Now plans are ready and orders would be placed immediately and the cash and securities available would be sufficient to finance all transportable purchases for fully a year.

Leaving all questions of sympathy aside, it would be difficult for any government to refuse orders which would, however temporarily, solve the problems of the American farmer, industrialist and worker.

• • • •

BUT QUESTIONS of sympathy cannot be ignored, and in this respect the situation is very different from what it was in 1914.

From 1914 to 1916, and certainly up to the sinking of the Lusitania, there was a very strong pro-German sympathy in The United States, fostered by our sizable population of German blood, by an enormous respect for German culture which had been strongly represented in the universities for a generation and, incidentally, supported by many influential Americans of German-Jewish origin.

A great many Americans who had no ties with Germany entertained grave and justified doubts as to the injustice of the German cause.

Prewar Germany was, in the eyes of hundreds of thousands of Americans, a great civilization, a part of the western Christian world, and, although not a parliamentary state in the stricter sense of the word, a state in which there were legitimate government, independent courts, free speech and free science and art—an intellectual society which was part of the common Western civilization.

• • • •

FINALLY, and very importantly, the opposition to the Fascist states is strongest today in the very circle which in 1914-16 were most pacifist—in the ranks of the Left.

If, then, war should break out in Europe there is every indication that the full moral and economic support of the United States would go immediately to the western democracies.

The neutrality policy is on their side; national self-interest is on their side; financial and industrial interests are on their side, and the masses are on their side.

All of which seem excellent reasons why the Fascist countries would do exceedingly well not to risk a major war.

A major war would be very serious for the western democracies.

But it would be disaster for the Fascist powers.

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

The Comptroller General's office, asked by the Civil Service Commission to rule on the standing of WPA employes with a view to ascertaining whether this group can be given status under the June 24 Executive orders, pointed out that such a ruling is not within the C. G.'s province, but might rather be for the Attorney General's decision . . .

And, meanwhile, the United Federal Workers of America turn the heat on Social Security Board's Frank Bane to find out the board's attitude about bringing its attorneys under civil service through the orders. And there still is a feeling among some of the lawyers about whether the commission could speedily assemble a list of attorneys to fill ultra-specialized positions; they wonder if the lawyers for Uncle Sam should be too hastily precipitated into the merit system. In the long look, we think they should be immediately brought under, letting the lists, for the moment be what they may . . .

The Postoffice Department is tired of receiving parcels containing written matter—and subject to first-class postage—which carries postage of third and fourth-class rates. Persons sending articles for repair are the chief offenders, it is said, among these being the senders of broken eyeglasses and camera films. Postmasters have been asked to watch all packages going to optical concerns and photo finishers . . .

The ten beauty contest finalists (I. D. R. A. contest) will be the guests of Mrs. Frances Sue Brady, of the Branch of Buildings Management, Interior, at her cottage at Plum Point, Md., this week-end. The ten are: Louise Kearney (Miss Interior, 1938); Lois Gulli, PWA; Louise Whatefield USH; Kitty O'Farrell, PWA; Joan Fern, Interior; Marie Bullock, Interior; Eugenie Vieceli, Interior; Reva Broudy, PWA; Jodell Thomas, Interior, and Lillian Lollet. Mrs. Brady asks that the other members of the I. D. R. A. who intend going to the outing, contact her immediately . . .

Tomorrow afternoon, local delegates to the American Federation of Government Employees' convention in Chicago begin the long trek—and will be wondering, as they ride the rails, what action the convention will take on many things and if a rumpus will ensue over the organization's stand on the reorganization bill, as is so widely whispered.

"Many inquiries have come to your correspondent for an opinion on the status of approximately 2,500 emergency employes in the General Accounting Office. They all wish to know whether the Executive order of June 24 is applicable there. Ordinarily, the writer would be reluctant to answer the involved question, but since he took an active part in fighting the first deficiency appropriation bill hiring G. A. O. emergency employes without reference to the civil service, and because he is very much acquainted with the history of the original legislation on G. A. O., the following opinion seems safe of expression:

"Did the Congress exclude G. A. O. emergency employes from civil service requirements? The original $1,000,000 deficiency appropriation excluded employes for a period of six months. Thereafter and until the expiration of the appropriation year for another six months. Because of the time limitation, it would appear that the intent of the Congress to exclude G. A. O. emergency employes terminated at the expiration of the appropriation year. Thereafter G. A. O. emergency employes had no status.

"But the President authorized two E. R. A. allotments and all G. A. O. emergency employes hold their jobs pursuant to the E. R. A. allotments by the President and not by act of Congress. In the opinion of the writer, the Executive orders of June 24 are applicable to the emergency employes in question."

We commend to your attention "Public Personnel Problems," by Lewis Meriam, of the Brookings Institution. It is a solid work, treating interestingly, and from an expert's point of view, such themes as selection of employes, salaries and salary fixing, hours of work, vacation, leave and holidays, sickness and sick leave, retirement, morale and discipline, employe representation, unions of Government employes, political activities and political contributions, careers in the public service and university training for the public service and organization of public and personnel administration. The author has made factual material interesting and that commends it to all who are anxious to know what makes the Government tick, but who aren't willing, ordinarily, to wade through technical material.

The renowned I. D. R. A.'s theater group meets this afternoon, immediately after work, in conference room 4021. All members who are interested in any phase of the dramatic arts are asked to attend.

NYA's Good Record

By Ernest K. Lindley

Why Not Increase Its Funds?

WHEN a New Deal program has escaped hostile criticism for three years, it's a fair presumption that it has been both well conceived and, on the whole, well administered.

Aubrey Williams, executive director; his assistants, and the regional and State directors of the National Youth Administration who are meeting in New York, Hyde Park and Washington this week must be keeping their fingers crossed.

When NYA was launched more than three years ago with a small amount of money and a noble ambition to do "something" for the unemployed youth of the country, there were misgivings in several quarters.

There was the fear of charges that the Roosevelt Administration was seeking to "regiment" youth. There were doubts that anything very useful could be done for the young people with the limited funds that were made available.

• • • •

The charges of "regimentation," which had been heard at the birth of the CCC two years earlier, but quickly dissipated, never materialized in the case of the NYA. And it was soon found that a small amount of money, plus ingenuity and the co-operation of local authorities and organizations, could be made to go a long way.

NYA has helped from 95,000 to 140,000 young people a year to attend colleges and graduate schools by providing them with part-time jobs. These young people, as a group, have made better than average college records and some of them have shown exceptional ability. The cost to the Federal Government has been about $105 per student per year.

At an even smaller cost—less than $5 per month per pupil—NYA has kept from 218,000 to 298,000 young people 16 years of age or older in high school. This small subsidy provides transportation, books and other incidentals—and often shoes and other articles of clothing, not only for the high school student but for a younger brother or sister who otherwise would not be able to attend school.

As a group, these young people seem to have come up at least to the average level of high school students, and many of them are superior students.

• • • •

STUDENT AID is administered by the colleges and high schools themselves. They are responsible not only for the selection of students but for devising suitable work projects. Initiated for college students by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration in the spring of 1934, this part of the NYA program has long since passed the experimental stage.

For more than two years NYA has been co-operating with State employment services in establishing special guidance and placement bureaus for young people under the age of 25. Because most of these young people have had little if any work experience, and so often have only the vaguest notions of their own aptitudes and of the types of work that might be open to them, they require special attention.

When these junior employment divisions have been put in working order and have proved their value, they are taken over by the State employment offices. The transfer already has been made in 12 or more States.

BETWEEN 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 young people are out of school and looking for jobs but unable to find them. Some of the boys go to the CCC. Some of the others—boys and girls—work part time on NYA projects.

Approximately 215,000 youths are now enrolled in the NYA "out-of-work" program, earning, on the average, about $15 a month each. A list of the types of work they do would require several newspaper columns; this part of the NYA program illustrates strikingly both the wealth of ingenuity that there is to be tapped in this country and the astonishing varieties of useful work that there are for young people to do without intruding on the domain of private enterprise.

This part-time work program costs about $242 per youth per year—about one-fifth as much per person as the CCC. And many of these young people are improving their education in their spare time.

• • • •

THE MOST recent and most interesting invention of the NYA is the resident center. Scattered young people in families on relief are brought to a resident center, usually, but not always, set up as an adjunct of an existing college or training school.

Here they earn their expenses by half-time work and devote the other half of their time to study and practical training for six months or more. For the girls, most of the training is in sewing, cooking, the raising of gardens, canning, the care of children and other household arts.

For the son of a tenant farmer in the cotton belt, it may be training in the raising of vegetables and poultry, simple carpentry and other elementary skills which he can use to raise his own standard of living.

• • • •

THE COMBINATIONS of work and related training provided at these NYA resident centers seems to be filling a need which the existing school system has failed to meet. Among the young people attending resident centers are many who didn't flourish in the regular schools. Some of them have not even finished grade school.

Begun in the South, where it is perhaps most needed, the resident center division of the program is now spreading all over the country. Already more than 225 such centers, containing more than 12,000 young people, are in operation, and plans for 75 or 100 more have been approved.

NYA has been granted a total of $75,000,000 to spend during the current fiscal year on all phases of its program. By current standards, that is small change; and when you have had a glimpse of the NYA program at work, you wonder why its funds shouldn't be doubled or trebled.

Howard Botanist Finds New Way to Germinate Seeds

Prof. M. A. Raines, Howard University botanist, is the originator of a new method of germinating seeds which facilitates the study of root growth and behavior.

Known as "wick-culture" because it develops plant roots on an apparatus similar to a wick, the new method will be used in investigations into the competition and adjustments between the root systems of neighboring plants—how, for instance, a weed retards the growth of a useful plant.

Study of this problem, it was pointed out, has been greatly handicapped in the past because of the difficulty of observing the growth and development of roots without disturbing them and thus upsetting the whole environment of the root system.

C. & O. Canal Due To Become Federal Property Today

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 8 (AP).—The 110-year-old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal will pass tomorrow to the United States for conversion to a recreational area unless last-minute objectors appear to stall the transfer.

Judge Frank G. Wagaman, who signed an order nisi for the sale to the Department of Interior for $2,000,000, said the objection date to the sale will expire tomorrow and the transfer "will most likely" be approved unless objectors appear. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, major stockholder in the 186-mile canal which meanders through most of Maryland, has offered $100,000 for other rights.

If approved, the sale also must be passed upon by the United States District Court in Washington.

British Cabinet Is Called in Czech Crisis

Crisis

where he was to have headed the British delegation at the opening of the League of Nations Assembly. Another cabinet member, Earl Delawarr, the lord privy seal, will act for him.

Sees Military Chiefs

Halifax, Cadogan and Vansittart resumed their discussions with Chamberlain at 5 o'clock this afternoon. In the meantime the foreign secretary had received the Russian Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, and the Polish Charge d'Affaires, Anthony Jazdzewski.

Maisky called to reject, on behalf of his government, the British proposal that Francis Hemming, secretary of the Spanish nonintervention committee, should visit both sides in Spain to "explain" any points in the scheme for the withdrawal of volunteers which might require clarification. Maisky counterproposed that representatives from Burgos and Barcelona be invited to London.

While Halifax was closeted with the Soviet and Polish representatives Chamberlain called in Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for the coordination of defense, and Sir Kingsley Wood, air minister. Malcolm MacDonald, colonial secretary, entered Downing street shortly afterward. Early this morning Inskip and MacDonald conferred with Eamon De Valera, prime minister of Eire, who was passing through London on his way to the League Council and Assembly meetings at Geneva.

Bad News From Prague

In his conference today Chamberlain and his aides had to face unfavorable news from Prague, where the negotiations between the Czechs and Sudeten Germans had not been resumed, following their suspension last night. Another topic for discussion was the report that Lord Runciman had offered to resign his post of unofficial British mediator in Prague because of the bad impression created by yesterday's editorial in the London Times, suggesting that the Czechs might do well to cede Sudetenland to Germany.

The sensation caused by this editorial did not abate today. Foreign office spokesman followed up yesterday's official repudiation of the view expressed by the Times by saying they thought Hitler would not care to have the Sudetens incorporated in the Reich. Officials said he probably would prefer to keep the Sudetens as a "Nazi cell" inside Czechoslovakia or as a state within a state. In such a position it was thought the Sudetens would be far more useful to Hitler as a lever to turn Czechslovakia into a vassal nation, severed from its alliances with France and Russia.

May Clarify Stand.

Because of the lurking fear that Der Fuehrer had not taken account of previous British warnings, it is possible that the government may attempt to "clarify" its policy by a statement after Monday's cabinet session.

The French government is understood to be urging the British to state their attitude firmly to Hitler, before he speaks Monday, the theory being that he may commit himself to an irrevocable step unless he sees the red light clearly.

The French also would like to know, it is learned, what steps comparable to the calling up of the French reserves Britain has taken, or is ready to take, to meet any emergency. A request for such information has been passed along to Whitehall by the French ambassador, Charles Corbin.

Because of this it was considered significant that Leslie Hore-Belisha, the war minister, canceled his visit today to army maneuvers near Winchester. He stayed in Whitehall for inter-departmental talks at the war ministry. It is reported that the committee of imperial defense has held several meetings recently.

French Say Limit Reached

Special Cable to The Post

Paris, Sept. 8.—The French press today takes the stand that the limit of concessions that may reasonably be expected of Czechoslovakia to obtain a settlement with the Third Reich on the Sudeten German question has been reached. This view is set forth by Leon Blum, in the Socialist organ Le Populaire, this morning.

The Paris Bourse was excited this morning by a rumor that a cabinet meeting would be held soon to decide on whether several more classes of reservists should be called to the colors. This led to an official denial.

Premier Daladier again conferred with Foreign Minister Bonnet today and later received the American Ambassador, William C. Bullitt.

Soviet Fights If France Does.

By the United Press.

Moscow, Sept. 8.—Soviet leaders tonight condemned Anglo-French "capitulation" to Nazi pressure in the Czechoslovak crisis and said only a show of united force by the world's democracies would be able to halt German aggression on Czech soil.

The government's spokesman on foreign policy refrained, however, from stating definitely whether Russia's vast army would be sent to the aid of the Czechs, under the Franco-Czech-Soviet military alliance, in event of a German invasion.

The Soviet press repeated the recent statement of Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov that Russia's armies will aid Czechoslovakia, on the proviso that France also goes to Prague's defense.

Red Cross to Report

First reports in the 1938 Red Cross Roll Call will be made today at a luncheon meeting of the general business group committee in the penthouse of C. & P. Telephone Co. at 12:30 p. m. The campaign gets under way officially September 26.

She Has Plenty of Talent

Miss Gloria Smiley will be one of three to compete tonight for the title of "most talented" among more than 40 beauties competing for title of Miss America. The young Florida high school girl is "Miss Jacksonville" at the Atlantic City pageant.

"Watch and Wait."

A member of the superior war council, Gen. Jules Garchery was named inspector general of infantry in addition to his other functions.

Uncertainty over Britain's "we-might-fight" attitude worried the foreign office, but official spokesman said there was nothing to do but watch and wait—watch for any overt move from Germany and wait to see if Britain would back France in defense of Czechoslovakia.

300,000 Await Orders.

Aspach-Moselle, France (at the German-Luxembourg Frontier), Sept. 8 (AP).—The most powerful French air and land force assembled before the German border since the World War stood ready tonight for orders from Paris headquarters.

Between 300,000 and 400,000 soldiers, it was estimated, filled the underground Maginot line fortifications and surface garrisons and barracks in northeastern France.

Location Jaunt Is Made to Fly Kites

Paramount's "Men With Wings" company went on location recently to fly a kite.

The location was a barley field in the upper San Fernando Valley and Virginia Weidler, Billy Cook and Donald O'Connor were to fly the kite.

Producer-Director William A. Wellman and his corps of assistants and cameramen enthusiastically tramped through the barley back and forth according to the demands of the script, while Paul Wing, business manager, sat in a chair and winced. He had to pay the farmer for the trampled barley.

Plan 'Mystery' Jaunt

A moonlight "mystery" hike, sponsored by the Capital Hiking Club, will be held tonight on the Virginia side of the Potomac, on the palisades not far from Chain Bridge. Hikers will meet at the Chain Bridge stop of the Cabin John car line at 7:45 o'clock. Robert Shostack will be in charge of the hike.

Hitler Tells Sudetens to Resume Parleys; Break Was Bad Tactics, He Thinks

Hitler

the discussions because it is not in the interests of the Sudeten Germans," the government spokesman said.

The German press asserted in chorus, nevertheless, that the Prague government's newest proposals were wholly inacceptable.

It was understood that Hitler, even in his concluding speech to the Nuremberg Nazi Congress on Monday, would make no startling references to Czechoslovakia and would limit his remarks on the subject to Germany's support of the Sudeten program.

Although angered by reports of Czech "brutalities" at Maehrisch-Ostrau, seven miles over the German-Czech border, Der Fuehrer was understood to fear that the breakdown might stiffen the attitude of foreign powers who feel the Sudetens are being obstructive.

Seeks More Concessions

It was understood that Hitler would ask Britain to exert strong pressure on Czechoslovakia, simultaneous with the expected resumption of negotiations, to go to the extreme limit of concessions to the Sudeten Germans massed behind Konrad Henlein, the "Czechoslovak Fuehrer," who has been in consultation here with Hitler.

The British Ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson, significantly has remained in Nuremberg after the departure of other foreign envoys who attended yesterday's diplomatic reception.

Henlein and Hitler were understood to have conferred privately today and Hitler's request for a resumption of the Prague negotiations was understood to have been conveyed to the Sudeten leader at that time.

Hitler Skips Sports

The close attention with which Hitler was following the Czech situation was shown during the day when he passed up many of the events of the fourth day of the party congress—the "day of community" including field and track events—and remained in consultation with his advisors.

Tonight there was a huge torchlight parade in Hitler's honor.

German newspapers today headlined the "brutality" of the Maehrisch-Ostrau incidents, even above accounts of the Nuremberg meeting.

Inspired articles had an angry tone, the theme of which was that the Czechoslovak government no longer was able to control the situation among its people and maintain order.

Play With Fire

The Press blast was similar to that unleashed against Austria in the days preceding Hitler's Anschluss.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, official organ of the Nazi Party, said in headlines:

"Prague government no longer master of its own police; Czech soldiers and policemen do what they like; they play with fire."

Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, added:

"Prague must take full responsibility for the grave incidents and is obliged to give the Sudeten Germans satisfaction."

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

A year is a long, long time. I have just completed one year in the Capital, and what has happened to me would happen to anyone. At heart I am still a country boy, a yokel in a white linen suit, dazzled and confused by the scene of which I am a small part. But not quite so confused as I was. You wouldn't be, either.

Tommy Corcoran . . . his barber

* * * *

At first everyone else in Washington seemed to have the solutions to all the puzzles, to be on the inside of all the secrets, to know all the answers. Everyone except me, and it was a painful experience. Why should this great shame come to one who had read all five of Claude Bowers' books and all six of Mark Sullivan's?

* * * *

It's a comfort to learn, after a year, that it isn't so. No one knows all the solutions, all the secrets, all the answers. If you look wise you'll be judged as much an insider as Tommy Corcoran's barber.

If you open a chat with "Take the Labor Relations Board—," follow that with a long silence, and wind up by saying "On the other hand, there's Social Security—" you can gain a great reputation for profundity. If that's what you want.

"—1937; packing the court"

Last year Mr. Roosevelt was sicking his New Dealers on the Supreme Court. Six months ago the New Dealers' breath was hot on the necks of the Executive bureaus, his very own, reorganizing 'em. Recently they've been offering the hemlock cup to those noble critters, the reactionary Senators.

Packing! Pruning! Purging! A fling at all three branches of the Government.

* * * *

So far his success in these pursuits has been, as John Hamilton himself would be forced to admit, only moderate. Yet our gooseflesh is commanded to stand up in great lumps because too much power has been concentrated in the hands of Mr. Roosevelt. He can run the Government as he pleases, it seems, except its three component parts. Maybe Mr. Roosevelt doesn't know his own strength.

* * * *

The Capital has been something of a trial to a country boy who never felt obliged to "Yes" both sides of a quarrel in the same breath . . . It's not so difficult to "Yes" a Roosevelt-hater on your left and a Roosevelt-lover on your right at a dinner party, if you keep your voice low.

But when you "Yes" a left-winger, and he walks across the room and pours himself a drink and returns wanting to be vessed as a reactionary, that's too much.

A year ago, to insistent imperative assertions I used to answer "Precisely!" because it left my mind free to think of other things. After a year I find it just as easy to say "Indeed!"

"—1938; purging the Senators"

Washington can be painful for a middle-of-the-roader nowadays. Everyone lashes you into pronouncing shibboleths . . . At every turn some one demands, "Under which flag, Begonian?" My respect for the middle-of-the-roader has risen even above what it was a year ago. The middle-of-the-roaders will keep us free.

* * * *

After a year, I prefer to think of Mr. Roosevelt as the President, which he undeniably is . . .

After a year, I think the honest, decent, humane, conscientious officials in Washington outnumber the chiselers and hypocrites 1,000 to 1 . . .

After a year, I know the country is governed by a lot of small-town boys from Stamford, Jamestown, Des Moines and Walla Walla . . .

After a year, I think the Republic is fully as heroic as it was when Walt Whitman threw all his nouns and adjectives at it.

* * * *

A year is only a short time . . . After a year, it becomes clear to any yokel that the big problem is to produce and distribute more consumer goods . . . But I knew that a year ago . . . Russia wants to do that via socialism, without going too capitalistic . . . America wants to do it via capitalism, without going too socialistic . . .

After a year, it's plain the politicians can do it one-handed, merely by yelling "Tremendous! Horrendous! Stupendous!" whenever Mr. Roosevelt bats an eye. The politicians have adopted the old ballyhoo jargon abandoned by the movies.

Barbers Tardy In Registering Facing Fines

700 Who Failed to Meet the Deadline Yesterday Are Subject to a Penalty of $25, Board Announces.

Employed barbers in the District who failed to register on time in accordance with terms of the barber and beautician registration act are subject to a fine of $25, it was announced yesterday by the local Board of Barber Examiners. Approximately 700 barbers failed to meet the deadline yesterday, Saviour Sidotti, board chairman, declared.

While only those barbers who are employed are subject to the fine, all who failed to register will be required to pay a $5 fee for a practical examination. The first examination will be held October 18 with others following on the third Tuesday of January, April and July.

In spite of the extra time made possible for registration by keeping the board officers open late at night, a checkup showed only about 1,800 of the estimated 2,500 Washington barbers registered on time.

Meanwhile, members of the Cosmetology Board, charged with registration of beauty shop employes and operators, estimated that about 3,300 persons had registered before the Tuesday deadline. Several hundred others failed to register. Unregistered beauty operators will also be required to take practical examinations in October.

Investigators will be appointed shortly to round up violators of the law and persons convicted of operating without registration will be subject to a maximum fine of $300 or up to six months in jail, or both.

Suburban Group To Spend $160,400 For Clean Rivers

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, object of criticism from residents of nearby counties, revealed yesterday it planned immediate expenditure of $160,400 to rid Maryland streams of pollution. Chief Engineer Harry R. Hall offered an analysis of work under way or authorized which indicates the commission plans 100 per cent purification of streams in its territory.

The engineer's plans showed plans are complete for elimination of 99 per cent of Rock Creek pollution by public sewers. The commission plans to connect with the existing trunk sewer 301 of 340 houses in Rock Creek Valley now dumping directly into the stream.

Other localities to be improved are those in Cabin John Branch Valley, Little Falls Branch Valley and Anacostia River Valley. In the latter two, $147,200 will be spent in trunk sewer extensions and new sewers.

Cosmopolitan Club Sees British Films

Dr. Francis M. Murray showed motion pictures of scenes in Ireland, Scotland and England at yesterday's meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at the Carlton. He was introduced by Dr. Edwin H. Silver, his sponsor for the day.

Way Clear to Start Building Jefferson Shrine in December

Construction of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial on the site specified by Congress southeast of Tidal Basin may begin in early December unless unforeseen delays occur, it was learned yesterday.

F. F. Gillen, National Park Service engineer, said the final 14 test borings for the memorial had been completed and the data furnished the architect for use in drawing the design to be presented to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Commission of Fine Arts at their next meeting, beginning September 29.

These bodies will criticize the designs after which the Jefferson Memorial Commission will rule on them. If they are approved by the commission, it may be possible to obtain bids for construction of the memorial by mid-November.

Test drilling, Gillen said, was made in an area about 400 feet square between Tidal Basin and the extension of Fourteenth street leading to Highway Bridge. Bed rock was found at a depth between 79 and 100 feet.

The condition of the ground, Gillen explained, should make it possible to sink concrete cylinders to bed rock, as was done for the Lincoln Memorial. The Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission probably will make suggestions at their September meeting for the exact site of the memorial, within the tested area.

Darby Praises Marvin Church On Its Jubilee

'Magnificent Contribution To Spiritual Life' of City by Methodists Is Cited at Festivities.

"Marvin Methodist Church has made a magnificent contribution to the spiritual life of Washington—not in numbers—but in the fine men and women who have gone out of its congregation into other fields of religious service," declared Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, last night at the golden jubilee celebration of the congregation at Tenth and Independence avenue southwest.

Other participating clergymen were the Rev. Meade B. MacBryde, pastor of the Grace Episcopal Church; the Rev. Harry V. Porter, of the Westminster Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Richard Scholl, of the Gorsuch Methodist congregation; the Rev. K. G. Newell, pastor of the Ryland Methodist Church; the Rev. Luther J. Franz, of the Grace Lutheran Church, and Mr. Ray Greer, lay representative from the Kendall Baptist congregation, and the Rev. Ralph M. Sharpe, Marvin Church.

A reception is planed for tonight and on Sunday the Revs. Claude M. Hasser and Robert L. Fultz, former pastors, will preach. Mr. Hesser is now minister of the Del Ray (Va.) Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Once known as the South Washington Mission, the church had its inception in 1888, then being a branch of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South. Services were held in the home of J. D. Gatewood, Seventh and E streets southwest, later in Potomac Hall and in Blake Hall. The Rev. S. W. Haddaway, former pastor of Mount Vernon Church, was the first minister of the organized congregation, which achieved independence in 1893.

Mercury to Dip Below 60 for First Time in 70 Days

The temperature will drop below 60 degrees before dawn today for the first time since June 30 and a record will be broken, the Weather Bureau predicted last night. In no other summer has the temperature stayed above 60 degrees for 70 consecutive days.

As the temperature began to fall from a high of 73 at 3:30 p. m. yesterday Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, ordered men on beats to wear their coats on the night shifts starting at 4 p. m. yesterday, 16 days before the formal arrival of fall.

The prediction for today is fair and slowly rising temperature.

Gov. Price Aid Asked For Yorktown Project

Richmond, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—George P. Coleman, of Williamsburg, former chairman of the State highway commission, today asked the aid of Gov. Price in obtaining more funds for the completion of the national monument area at Yorktown.

50 Attorneys Ruled Outside Merit System

Executive Orders Cannot Apply to Lawyers in Social Security, Civil Service Board Says.

The chances of approximately 50 attorneys in the Social Security Board being given civil service status through the executive orders of June 24 faded yesterday.

The board's authorities agreed that the attorneys were excluded from civil service provisions by statute. When this is the case, executive orders are ineffective.

The board had been asked its attitude toward recommending civil service status for the attorneys by the United Federal Workers of America. The U. F. W. A. requested "immediate and positive action to bring these attorneys into the competitive classified civil service."

Yesterday the board replied that such possibilities were explored "several weeks ago" and had been intensively investigated since the executive orders were issued.

Policy-determining positions and those expressly excluded by statute are outside the purview of executive orders. It would require legislation to bring these groups to status.

V. D. Colonna, Hero Of War, Will Be Buried Tomorrow

Funeral services for Valentine D. Colonna, 55, was veteran with a dozen decorations, who died at his home in Hyattsville, Md., Wednesday night, will be held at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow in the chapel at Fort Myer. Burial will follow in Arlington Cemetery. He had been ill for several years.

Mr. Colonna, a native of Rome, came to this country with his parents when a small boy. During the World War he was with the Fortieth Engineers and Ninth Infantry of the Second Division. He was wounded several times while taking part in major engagements in 1917 and 1918.

His medals include the Distinguished Service Cross, Croix de Guerre, Purple Heart, Second Division and State of Wyoming. He was active in American Legion affairs, having founded the Fred Coe Post in Cody, Wyo. He was also former State commander of Wyoming and a national representative at headquarters. He leaves a wife.

Lack of Funds for Relief Swells Rolls at Blue Plains

Lack of sufficient relief funds has resulted in an increased population at the Home for Aged and Infirm at Blue Plains, it was reported yesterday to the Board of Public Welfare.

Under a ruling issued in June by the board, persons over 65 years, not eligible for old-age assistance, were ordered dropped from relief and referred to the home.

The daily average population last month was more than 660 as compared with 644 in July and 595 in August, 1937. Twenty-eight inmates were admitted last month and 36 in July, in addition to 7 and 14 readmissions of persons formerly inmates or a total of 85 for the two months as compared with 47 during the same period last year, it was stated.

August wound up with 667 inmates in the institution as compared with 596 at the end of August last year. This included 148 white men, 75 white women, 265 colored men and 179 colored women.

Legion Maps 'Isms' Fight For Session

Committee Revelation Intensifies Veterans' Program to Make Americanism Chief Parley Topic.

A drive against the spread of communism, fascism and nazism is the principal project to come before some 1,333 delegates and other thousands of American Legionnaires at the national convention at Los Angeles September 19, according to plans disclosed in Legion circles yesterday.

The united "anti-ism" drive is not the result of disclosures by the Congressional committee now studying un-American activities, but the war veterans' determination to take a vigorous stand has been intensified by revelations. The Legion frequently has warned of foreign threats.

Americanism committees have been formed within the 12,000 Legion posts, as well as within the other service groups, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans, and other smaller organizations.

Each Post to Aid

But it was not until Homer L. Chaillaux, director of the Legion Americanism Commission, appeared before the Congressional committee, recently, that the veterans publicly served notice they might initiate the new drive.

The plan adopted probably will call for Americanism work in each community by its own post, in harmony with the other two principal associations of veterans.

The legionnaires will not be as one in other problems that will come before the convention. These will concern more liberal pensions for disabled veterans, regardless of the cause of the disability, and for a pension for the widow and orphans of all war veterans who died from a service disability that incapacitated the veteran as much as 10 per cent. Some will demand that this provision be applied to the dependants of all veterans whether or not he died from a service-connected wound or injury.

Pension Fight Seen

Another major item on the calendar, and which will find the delegates nearly united, it is believed here, is that all World War veterans who have reached the age of 65 years be given a pension of $60 a month.

President Roosevelt, this year, approved such a pension for Spanish-American veterans, and the legionnaires and all other World War veterans, are outspoken in criticism against the administration for not including their own comrades who have reached 65 years.

There are at least 20,000 in this group, and many are attaining that age each year.

Templars to Hold Mount Airy Picnic

The International Order of Good Templars will hold a picnic all day tomorrow at Wildwook Park, Mount Airy, Md.

Speakers will include Elton Raymond Shaw, chaplain of the National Capital Lodge; J. Raymond Schmidt, national superintendent of legislative work, and Dr. George W. Crabbe, of Baltimore, grand superintendent of legislative work.

Community singing will be led by the Rev. C. L. Dawson, of Ridgeville, Md., the grand chaplain, and music will be furnished by the Good Templars Band. Officers of the organization, devoted to the cause of temperance, include C. H. McElfresh, of Monrovia, Md., grand chief templar; R. E. Hardy, of Baltimore, grand secretary, and the Rev. H. O. Keen, of Baltimore, chairman of the program committee.

Central Heating Tunnel Enlarged

1. George Wort, construction foreman, looks over one of the many obstacles the new heating line tunel must pass. Driven 1¼ miles from the central heating plant to the Government Printing Office and the Postoffice, the tunnel is now being enlarged.

2. Workmen, protected by masks from swirling dust, bore with an air drill into the concrete wall of the tunnel, which is being enlarged to supply two more buildings with heat. Pipes in the new tunnel will carry 100,000 pounds of steam an hour.

3. To this maze of pipes and valves will be added those of the heating supply to the Government Printing Office and the Postoffice. The enlarged tunnel will add these buildings to the group already served with winter warmth by the central plant.

Board Named On Housing For Colored

Committee Appointed as $15,000,000 USHA Loan for D. C. Is About to Go Through Moving of Whites Is Studied.

Appointment of an advisory committee on housing for colored people was announced yesterday by the Alley Dwelling Authority as final preparations were being made to secure a loan of $15,000,000 from the United States Housing Authority for low-cost housing projects.

Members of the committee are Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools; Miss Mae C. Hawes, head worker of the Southeast Settlement House, and Charles E. Hall, retired junior administrative assistant at the Census Bureau.

At its first meeting with the authority yesterday the committee viewed plans for three colored housing projects expected to hold from 600 to 700 families.

Working on Five

The authority has architects at work now on five housing projects, two of them designed for white occupancy. Under the $15,000,000 which the USHA has set aside for the ADA a total of 12 projects are contemplated.

It is expected that final preparations will be completed in the near future so that a contract can be signed for loan of the money for a 60-year period.

Although no decision has yet been made it is likely that a majority of the 12 projects will be for colored occupancy. Washington has been surpassed only by New York and Los Angeles in the amount of new home construction during the past three or four years, but housing conditions have not improved for colored people here.

Watch White Shifts

Housing officials here are watching closely the shift of the white population to the new homes. The great bulk of new construction here has been homes and apartments too expensive for people in lower income brackets. Whether the shift to new homes will make decent dwellings available to people of low incomes remains to be determined.

In announcing the new committee John Ihlder, executive officer of the ADA, said that the varied knowledge of the three members would be valuable in planning colored developments.

Officers Urged To Exercise Care In Chasing Autos

Deploring the fatal automobile accident on Nichols avenue southeast last week, in which a 2-year-old child and a high school athlete lost their lives, members of the Congress Heights Citizens Association, in their first meeting of the year, last night urged all officers, whether District of Federal, to exercise great care when making arrests in traffic.

The accident, in which the two lost their lives, occurred when a car in which two liquor law violators were being pursued by Treasury operatives crashed against a car which was just pulling out from the curb.

Hal Roach Study Shows Hollywood's Dependence On Newspaper Clippings; 'Hold That Co-ed' Comes to Capitol Today to Be Greeted by 'Football Night,' With Local Grid Squads as Honor Guests.

By Gerald G. Gross,
Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

THAT the Hollywood movie makers read the daily newspapers is indicated by the substance and situations in "Hold That Co-Ed," as sketchily discussed in this space yesterday, and the theme of "Racket Busters." These two pictures open today at Loew's Capitol and Warner's Earle, respectively.

Feature film glorification also has been bestowed upon such headliners as the National Air Races at Cleveland, the late John Dillinger, the Dionne quintuplets and almost any marine disaster you can think of, to mention only a few, and there are now more real-life stories "on the fire" than you can shake a printer's stick at: The Corrigan thing, the Holmesburg horror, the sinking of the Titanic (finally) and many others.

With all that, however, I must admit to some surprise at the statistical report sent to this desk by Hal Roach, relating to the film makers' dependence upon the grist of the city room mill for ideas. According to the Roach researchers, fully 72 per cent of all current pictures are based upon newspaper items.

General news, it is stated, accounts for 46 per cent. This classification includes aviation, maritime disasters, divorces, depression stories and "natural catastrophes."

Crime news is credited with 9 per cent and letters to the editor 4 per cent. Lovelorn columns—get this Mary Haworth—and socety news rate 3 per cent each. The editorial page, political stories and the sports page come in for 2 per cent each and the comic strips 1 per cent.

Meaning tha Carter Barron & Co. are making his "football night" at the Capitol in celebration of the campus comedy's grand premiere and the imminence of the local gridiron season. The varsity squads from Georgetown, George Washington, Catholic U., Maryland and American, as well as the Washington Redskins, will be present and there'll be a special college medley by Phil Lampkin and his boys and the pungent odor of pigskin will be everywhere and everything, Ray Bell promises.

You know, there really seems to be something behind that this-is-motion-pictures'-greatest-year slogan. Local theaters, their marquees glistening today with Marie Antoinettes and Racket Busters and other promising tidbits, are already crowing over next week's bill of fare.

For example, the Capitol.

"You may be interested to know," says a telegram from Oscar A. Doob, Loew's publicity chieftain, "that 'Boys Town' opened today at the Capitol (New York) to the biggest attendance since 'San Francisco.' Everybody here pretty much excited over this unusual picture. To avoid waiting too long for an open date at the Palace (Washington) we are rushing 'Boys Town' into the Capitol (Washington) next Friday. When anybody asks 'what do you mean by motion pictures' greatest year?' we now say 'Boys Town.'"

And the Earle. Frank La Falce reminds us that "Racket Busters" will be followed by "Valley of the Giants," a sweeping story of the great North Woods filmed in Technicolor and starring Wayne Morris and Claire Trevor. (Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney are the boxoffice names in "Boys Town").

Simultaneously the Metropolitan will launch Joe E. Brown in "The Gladiator," which New York scouts tell me is probably the funniest comedy he's ever made. Then there's RKO-Keith's, ready to introduce Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball in "The Affairs of Annabel" just as soon as Washington has had enough of "Carefree," which may not be for some weeks yet.

As for the two stage shows during the week of September 16, the Earle will have none other than Ben Bernie and all the lads, with Col. Manny Prager, Bobby Gibson and Shirley Lloyd, Harris and Shore and others as entertainers. The Capitol's vaudeville will consist of the W. L. S. National Barn Dance, moved gag and baggage from the radio studio.

I have a faint recollection of having invoked the name of Corrigan in one of these paragraphs upstairs. Well, along comes a bulletin from the R. K. O. people announcing that Marcella Burke has been assigned to write the screen play of Douglas Corrigan's life and his flight from New York to Los Dublin (sic). Work on the script will commence immediately, says Pandro S. Berman, executive producer. Hollywood and headlines; yea, man!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Sept. 8.—Musical pictures are dead, so say our producers, in spite of the fact that "Alexander's Ragtime Band" has swept the country like a forest fire. So they've given back to Broadway its greatest talent. Irving Berlin has written music for a George Kaufman and Moss Hart play. Jerome Kern, Sigmund Romberg, Rogers and Hart, Cole Porter, Dorothy Fields, together with the Playwrights Producing Association, will give New York its greatest season for many years.

HEDDA HOPPER

The players whose options have been allowed to lapse will be there, too. Victor Moore will be back battling with Billy Gaxton. The Marx Brothers have taken over "Of Thee I Sing" for a Metro picture. But no one will give a portrait of "A Forfotten Man" as Victor Moore did when he played the Vice President in that play. Walter Houston will sing in "Knickerbocker Holiday." You know, he used to sing years ago in vaudeville.

The history of "I Married an Angel," which is the biggest hit on Broadway, is amusing. Five years ago the play ran one week in Vienna, then was bought by Paramount for Lubitsch. Paramount officials thought it too fantastic. Metro took it over. When Rogers and Hart finished their contract at Paramount they went to Metro, then wrote their song, "I Married an Angel," and a complete score for the picture, to be known as "Hollywood Party," for Jeanette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier to follow "Merry Widow."

But again it was too fantastic and was shelved for four years. Finally Stage Producer Wyman got hold of it, also Zorina. Metro backed its New York production, therefore owns it. It's never played to less than $27,000 a week, and brought back to the stage Dennis King, Vivienne Siegel and Walter Slezack, three people Hollywood said were not good enough for pictures.

When it's done into a movie, it will undoubtedly be without its star, Zorina, who made it famous in New York. But Sam Goldwyn, who holds her movie contract, has a wonderful idea for her next picture. I'm hoping he won't be sidetracked.

Fay Bainter says that playing a scene with Irvin Cobb is like an intricate puzzle. While doing a wordy one in "Arkansas Traveler" Irvin was at the telephone taking election returns, which he was to write on a piece of paper and hand to her. In the middle of the take he hung up and yelled "21" for no reason at all. Fay said it was funnier than the scene, but had nothing to do with the picture.

Olympe Bradna, who announced six months ago she'd never been kissed, now wears a wedding ring and is about to have a baby. But only for "French Without Tears." Yes, they grow up overnight in the movies.

When Claudette Colbert started "Zaza," looking like a Gibson Girl in 1904 clothes, she was afraid they were a little mad. Now we're all wearing them.

Still Man Collects Crosby Fun Shots

Hollywood's funniest collection of still photographs will never reach print, but studio attaches are having a merry laugh over them.

They are stills taken of Bing Crosby for the wardrobe and make-up workers on "Sing You Sinners"—but Crosby refuses to be serious about them.

Each time a still is taken to show where the smears are on his face after a fight, or the position he was lying in, or how his clothes were twisted—so that the next scene will match perfectly—he clowns, crosses his eyes or looks dumb.

With the result that the studio still photographer now has a rare collection of poses, postures and grimaces. And nobody laughs louder at them than the star himself!

Gag System Paying Off at Racetracks

Bing Crosby found to his amazement today that a horse-betting system contributed to one of his pictures "as a gag" is a money-maker.

"When Claude Binyon was writing the screenplay of 'The Unholy Peebes,'" said Bing, "I suggested that he put in a gag about the 'Australian system,' which consists of betting the horses with the most 'I's' and 'a's' in their names. As a result, I play the Australian system in the picture and win plenty. And maybe that system doesn't work!

"A better—pardon me, investor—playing the Australian system on a day recently chosen at random, would have bet on Asianna at Aqueduct, which came in 50 to 1. In other words, for $2 the investor would have received $102.

"Playing the same system, the investor would have bet on Miss Leannah at Suffolk Downs, War Admiral at Aqueduct, Imperial Polly and Spanish Maid at Detroit. Figuring a $2 bet on each horse, the investor would have collected in all $143.50 for a $30 investment, according to the odds quoted in the newspaper."

Asked why he hadn't bet, then, and cleared that much, Bing admitted, "I was trying out the system before putting any money down," he said.

The Post's New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Sept. 8.

REVENGE: The Cavendish Club is the most exclusive bridge club in New York. Its members include many eminent socialites as well as people who are prominent in the theater—Harpo Marx, the George S. Kaufmans, Ben Bernie, Howard Dietz . . . One of the club's most stringent rules prohibits any member from bringing a dog into the club rooms. One member, a lady, has obtained revenge for this antidog edict . . . She proposed for membership—and the committee recently approved—the name of a person who actually doesn't exist. It's her dog.

• • • •

CONFLICT: The most damaging testimony against Jimmy Hines was offered by Dixie Davis' sister, who told the court and jury that she delivered a $500 check to Hines. The check, which bears an indorsement, "J. Hines"—admittedly not in the handwriting of the defendant—also was indorsed by "J. E. Davis" and "Eddie Holly" . . . A number of local bookmakers now insist that Dixie Davis lost $200,000 gambling at the race track. Mr. Hines will offer proof that he never saw that check, that the signature, "J. Hines," was inserted later, and that it was issued in payment of a horse bet Dixie Davis had lost.

• • • •

ENTERPRISE: Dick Merrill, who last week denied that he is planning another transatlantic flight, has a new Seversky plane, ordered by the French government . . . Merrill has been invited to fly the plane across the ocean to France.

• • • •

ETHICS: Yesterday an Austrian actor named Max Willenz applied for a job at the office of George Abbott, the producer. He was interviewed by Ezra Stone, Abbott's assistant who is being featured in "What a Life" . . . "And in all the years I was starred in Germany and Austria," Willenz confessed, "only once did I violate theatrical tradition" . . . "When was that?" Stone asked . . . "I was playing at the Stadt Theater," the refugee explained, "the night Hitler marched into Vienna. When the curtain came down, I left—without giving two weeks' notice."

• • • •

LAMENT: At the Stork Club, Danton Walker—the Nijinsky of the New York columnists—danced a 20-minute rumba with Sally Clark, sister-in-law of John Roosevelt. They were the only couple on the floor. Walker leaped, kicked his heels fore and aft, and threw his hips out of joint—all under the careful appraisal of John O'Hara, the novelist . . . When the dance was over, O'Hara stepped to the floor, exhibited to the customers his own press card—the press card he has treasured for ten years—and tore it up!

• • • •

WEALTH: Miss Clark has dyed her hair blond, in preparation for her singing engagement at the Plaza . . . She discussed this engagement with John Roosevelt . . . "My job's better," she insisted. "Look how much more than you I'm getting" . . . "Yes," replied the $18.50-per-week employe of Filene's, "but I'll be able to save more" . . .

• • • •

CHANGE: Some months ago Look magazine featured a display showing costumes worn by brides of 1938 and the brides of 1890. The display showed the brides donning their clothes . . . A French woman's magazine, Marie Claire, reproduced this display last month. The editors used the same pictures, but reversed the series . . . They show the ladies—not putting on their clothes—but taking them off.

Cowboy Actor Will Stage Dog Benefit

Russell Hayden is preparing a menagerie of horses and dogs to appear at a series of dog and pony shows which the cowboy star hopes to stage for the benefit of a local animal shelter, it was learned last week.

Hayden, who is featured in Producer Harry Sherman's "Hopalong Cassidy" action dramas, maintains a haven at his Bakersfield ranch for homeless animals, many of which will perform in his shows.

"One tornado and three Hopi Indians . . . please!"

A STRANGE REQUEST? Not at all—in the world of the films. Today the call may be for "a tornado and three Hopi Indians" . . . tomorrow, perhaps, it will be for a trained ostrich and a replica of a 13th Century castle . . . and the day after for an under-sea cavern and a Roman legion.

Whatever the demand, it must be met—regardless of how difficult or how costly. Whatever a picture needs to bring it to life, it gets. Casts numbering thousands are costumed . . . equipped . . . rehearsed. Nature in all its many moods is captured to perform before the camera's eye. Scholars search the archives of history . . . expeditions fare forth to the far corners of the earth . . . specialists of every sort and kind are called in—to make a picture ring with sincerity, speak with accuracy.

And that is just a small part of the wonder-world behind the scenes where motion pictures are born.

Into the making of a picture goes the work of brain and hand of the men and women of 276 arts, sciences and professions—collaborators with the great writers and composers, the directors and players whose names you see on the screen.

Before a picture unfolds its story, artists and architects, designers and draftsmen, bricklayers and carpenters have labored—erecting sometimes whole streets or entire villages . . . building and furnishing slums and palaces—.

Lighting experts, musicians and mechanics, sound effects technicians, set dressers and seamstresses have worked day and night—each contributing his or her part to create the picture you see—each helping to make motion pictures what they are today—your best entertainment.

Around the corner from your home—everybody's home—there is a world quite apart from the one in which we live . . . a world into which each man and woman who sits in the darkened theatre enters and becomes a part—leaving the world of reality behind.

Here in this other world are brave adventure and tender romance. Here are side-splitting laughter and tense emotion. Here are music and drama. Here is LIFE.

Day after day the motion picture weaves its magic about the minds of millions of men and women. For them—we hope for you—the movies make this old earth a better, happier place. We who make and exhibit motion pictures like to think that they have brought more pleasure to more people at less cost than almost anything else the mind of man was ever responsible for—and have done the human race more downright good than all the medicines concocted since creation.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Should Mother Expect Daughter to Pay Piper For Scapegrace Brother, Always in Trouble?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Nearly a year ago I wrote you inquiring how much you think a young business woman should contribute toward the support of a family in which a brother and sister (both of age) are too shiftless to work, and always bringing trouble on the mother. Since receiving your advice, a new problem has arisen. My brother has become involved in some trouble, and needs approximately $400 to clear up the matter.

• • • •

Now, because I refuse to bear this expense (and please remember that it was his own meanness and devilment that got him into it; and there was no excuse for it's ever happening) my mother feels hurt and has stopped writing to me entirely. I might also add that I refused to take any time off from work to clear up the matter.

• • • •

I particularly need a disinterested person's opinion for this reason: The man I plan to marry—who knows of my brother's escapade, as well as the trouble and expense my family has been to me in the past—is very much opposed to my helping them further. His attitude may be influencing me unduly and I may, after all, be very selfish.

• • • •

I hate to break away from my family entirely, but it seems there is always something happening to them. My sister is always losing jobs and going to drive my mother crazy, or my brother is in trouble. Should I shoulder mother's burden forever and never complain? She states that even though I am disgusted with my brother, I should stand by her. I have tried to explain to her that I would gladly stand by her, but that my brother's present trouble is inexcusable and could have been prevented.

• • • •

On top of all this, my younger brother and sister are being reared just like the others, without any guidance or discipline; yet mother becomes highly insulted when something is said about it. I believe one should do right, as nearly as possible, and I've tried to do right, but this latest demand is getting me down. Please answer as quickly as possible. C. E. B.

An Unjust Demand.

DEAR C. E. B.: What your mother is asking of you, in effect, is to pay the penalty for your brother's constant misdeeds. In my opinion, she has no right to make such a demand of you; and you are entirely justified in refusing to meet it. You are justified on two grounds—on the ground of self-preservation, of protecting yourself against wilful exploitation, and on the ground of bringing your brother face to face with the consequences of his own actions, of tactily cooperating with society in meting out punitive justice to a chronic and stubborn offender.

• • • •

Since your brother was not taught the value and technique of discipline at home, he must now begin belatedly to learn it the hard and painful way, at the hands of society. And so long as you continue to follow your mother's rankly sentimental lead in rushing to his rescue when he gets himself in trouble, you are shortsightedly sparing him the necessity of learning the A-B-C's of acceptable behavior; indeed, you are encouraging him in a course of idle, irresponsible, dissolute mischief-making.

• • • •

If he were an adolescent and this his first major offense, one might feel very differently about it. One might believe, and argue, that you had an obligation to be your brother's keeper, to the extent of working and sacrificing unsparingly with your mother to clear up the situation and give him another chance to work out his salvation. But the fact that he has long since attained to his legal majority; that his case history contains chapter after chapter of willful misbehavior; that he is a chronic petty miscreant content to hide behind and cling to his mother's and sister's skirts causes one to believe that his only eventual salvation lies in being forced to deal, unaided, with the consequences of his culpable conduct.

• • • •

I think, in fairness to yourself, in justice to society and by way of warning and instruction to your brother, that you should make this occasion the opportunity for washing your hands of him and his chronic misdemeanors. Let him know that, unless and until he turns over a new leaf, he has permanently alienated one former willing friend-in-need. If your mother is so stupid, so emotionally prejudiced and so partisan as to construte such an attitude on your part as a personal affront to herself, that will be a matter for regret, certainly; but it should not be permitted to alter your stand. Since your younger brother and sister are growing up without guidance and discipline, the most valuable contribution you can make to their welfare is to give them the example of one intelligent, successful, hard-headed, unsentimental, straight-thinking, fair-minded, essentially just and honorable sister to pattern after. Bicycle Comes Back to Favor As Exerciser

Sport Offers Recreation and Limbers Many Muscles; Pedaling Recommended to Slenderize Hips.

By Ida Jean Kain.

ARE THERE any bicycle paths in your town? If there aren't, there should be, for bicycling is back in style and, since you pay for your ride with your muscles, it is as good exercise as you can find.

You begin to appreciate the popularity of this recreation when you hear that over a million machines were sold last year—an all-time high! In the large cities special provision is being made for bicycle traffic. Washington has had bicycle paths for several years now and even the Nation's dignitaries are seen pedaling their way through the parks of the Capital City.

Gains Popularity.

You can see that bicycling is taking hold as a national recreation. Why not try it yourself? And don't let your husband or anyone else tell you that you are too old! There are plenty of places where you can learn to ride . . . ask the instructor at your Y. W. C. A. to give you lessons in keeping your balance.

Bicycling is still best for you, however, because it takes you out into the open. Most of the feminine world devotes too much of its leisure to bridge or other sedentary recreations and does not get out of doors nearly enough. If we would only learn to play outdoors a little more we wouldn't grow old nearly so fast.

Many Muscles Used.

Bicycling uses many of the most important muscles — principally those of the feet, legs, thighs, abdomen and arms. By leaning forward and putting force on the trunk muscles you can even bring the hip muscles, the gluteus maximum, into position to work powerfully, and that slims the hips. Just to give you an idea of what a good reducer bicycling is, you burn 470 calories per hour when you go at top speed, and 200 calories per hour at moderate speed.

A Suit That Dips and Zips

SUITS are getting more unorthodox every day and are showing all sorts of surprising lines, panels and fastenings. Some call it the "dressmaker" touch, but probably Adrian, Hollywood designer, who created the suit shown above for Florence Rice, movie actress, would scorn the term. However, Adrian has done some startling things with this youthful suit of bright green wool. The closely fitted coat dips from front to longer back length, has a zipper fastening, intriguing stand-up collar and an interesting treatment of revers. The halter neck of the white silk blouse fits high. The hat is of matching green felt.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 8.

WE ARE NEVER absolutely sure that the crisis is over, the temperature down and the patient is on the road to recovery until the year's first big musical show goes into rehearsal and the expensive and famous stars get to brooding or brawling backstage. Once this really happens, we're certain sure that the frost would be on the pumpkin any minute—if, of course, we had a pumpkin.

ALICE HUGHES.

Well, it's happened, and the show involved is the Cole Porter saga, "You Never Know," which is destined for the Winter Garden if the big shots don't explode first. Its two leading ladies are those placid, reticent little wall-flowers, Miss Libby "Moanin' Low" Holman, late of Cincinnati, Ohio, and Miss Leapin' Lupe Velez, late of Mexico. There seems to be some professional feeling between these twain, which has risen to the point of driving the director practically out of his raddled wits. Little matters like who gets more and better songs to sing often explode these temperamental shows before they open.

Having shed Mr. Johnny Weismuller after years of storm and stress, Lupe has moved into a hotel here. Lupe is very cordial and hectic with the press, though she gives no conversation on the late marriage. Oh, well, we're more bored with it than she is, anyway. So Loopy is pigging along in three newly painted rooms, surrounded by chintz that doesn't remind me of Velez, at all. But then, a trouper's a trouper, and the last time I saw the Mexican leaper was in a dismal dressing room in Brooklyn, and that wasn't like her, either.

And her heart? "You cannot fall in love every two minutes, can you?" came back Lupe. I could only answer that it's been tried, and bow myself out.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Have you seen Schiaparelli's disappearing gloves? They are about the weirdest of all the imports I've so far inspected. Made of black leather, their side pieces are of lace so sheer as to be almost invisible—and from the next table you can't tell what on earth holds them on, at all. Bad things to look at when you've a drop taken. . . .

Respiration Fundamental Body Function

Oxygen Is 'Great Energizer' of Nature, but Humans Exchange Chemicals in Air With Plants.

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Oxygen is the great energizer of the world. We live in a sea of air and we use it every second. Perhaps the most astonishing adaption of nature is that we exchange chemicals in the air with the plants. The plants can't get along without carbon dioxide, which is pure waste to us, while we can't get along without oxygen, which is pure waste to the plants.

Respiration as a function of the body is not so simple as it appears. It requires the co-ordinated participation of muscles, lungs, blood, the central nervous system and tissue fluids.

Air goes into the lungs and there comes in contact with the blood cells in the capillaries. Or almost in contact, being separated only by the thin wall of the lung alveolus. The pressure of oxygen inside the alveolus is 100 mm, while that of the venous blood is 40 mm, so the oxygen enters into loose combination with the hemoglobin of the blood. This constitutes external respiration. Then an even more wonderful mechanism occurs when the blood is carried out to the tissues. The value of the hemoglobin or iron pigment of the blood, from a physiological standard, is that its affinity for oxygen is so nicely balanced that in the lungs it becomes 95 per cent saturated, and in the tissues and capillaries can give up as much oxygen as is needed.

Here, again, this process goes on automatically. We breathe just as much as we have to—slowly when sitting still, more rapidly when moving around, with painful frequency when we run a race.

These adjustments are carried out by a very delicate mechanism in the base of the brain called the respiratory center. This center was supposed formerly to occupy a very small amount of space, but studies in our own day indicate it is more diffuse and multiple. At any rate, it is very sensitive to the presence of oxygen and carbon dioxide in the blood. If the oxygen content falls, the center is stimulated to activity, so that the breathing is accentuated and more oxygen is taken in. If the oxygen in the blood is high, on the contrary, the center feels no necessity for rapid breathing and respiration falls to a low level.

Thus we have a paradoxical situation so that if an anethetist wants to restore a patient to better breathing, he gives carbon dioxide which is a kind of body poison. When enough of this accumulates, the respiratory center is stimulated and the lungs themselves wash all the extra carbon dioxide out and take the oxygen in.

The respiratory center is sensitive to many other influences, however, and is well adapted to regulating this most essential function.

Wash strawberries before you hull them—to prevent the loss of flavor and juice. Do not wash them, however, until it is time to prepare them for use, since they are apt to mold. As soon as possible after you buy them, spread them on a shallow pan and store them in the refrigerator.

Consumers Counsel

Advice on Food

The Consumers Counsel has broadened its scope to meet the demands of its readers. So many inquiries about household tips have been brought before the counsel, that suggestions on homemaking problems will be included in this column as often as space permits. A few timely hints on egg preparation, which may be of service around the home, are recommended here.

Egg Test, Preparation

To test fresh eggs, drop the egg into a deep saucepan of cold water. If fresh, it will sink at once; if it stands nearly upright, it is not fresh but it can still be used. If it floats on the surface it is not good.

When scrambling eggs, to save dishwashing and time, break them into a cold heavy frying pan, add a tablespoon of milk, a half teaspoon of butter, a speck of salt and pepper for each egg, and beat with a spoon. Scramble as usual over a low heat.

When poaching eggs, add a few drops of vinegar to the water and the yolks will not break.

Banana Slices for Pie

Mrs. George Guavreau, 2135 H street northwest, has inquired about a banana pie which does not contain mushy, dry crushed bananas. The recipe which follows is one of delicate flavor and makes use of the sliced fruit which Mrs. Guavreau finds difficult to locate in her cook books. While discussing simple inexpensive desserts with the Food Editor, she mentioned an unusual Apricot Betty which she has promised to submit to Counsel readers for their approval. A dash of Irish whiskey in her Betty, along with the cubed, buttered bread crumbs, cinnamon and apricots, sounds well worth waiting for.

Banana Cream Pie

Prepare favorite baked pie crust and cream filling, line crust with sliced bananas, over them spread cream filling. Cover filling with sliced bananas, and over the bananas spread whipped cream, which may be sweetened, if desired.

To sprinkle chocolate shot, use grated sweet chocolate or shaved toasted almonds over the cream, which gives added flavor. For orange cream filling:

Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 2 tablespoons cornstarch and when mixed add grated rind ½ orange, ½ cup sugar and ½ cup orange juice. Bring to boiling point, stirring all the time. Cook 15 minutes over boiling water. Add ¼ teaspoon salt and ¾ teaspoon lemon juice. Cool and fold in ½ cup cream beaten stiff.

Canned Corn on Cob?

DEAR MISS CLAYTON: Do you have a recipe for canning corn on the cob? If so, I will be glad to buy the recipe from you.

MRS. CHARLES LOOMIS,
108 South Royal street, Alexandria, Va.

There never is a charge for information furnished by the Counsel. The food editors only too glad to assist homemakers as closely as possible in daily homemaking problems.

As to your query on corn on the cob, it never is advisable to prepare corn this way at home. The United States Bureau of Home Economics and seasoned cooks agree that if you must have corn on the cob for future use it is best to purchase it already canned. Home facilities can scarcely equal those of professional canneries. An absolutely air-tight pressure cooker is positively essential for even plain or creamed corn, much less the more difficult cob variety. A non-acid food like sugar corn is subject to hasty spoilage if not pressure cooked. A heavy vacuum is the only type of container possible for corn preparation and even then when the cover is air tight, corn on the cob never is completely fool proof when cooked and canned at home. A recipe will gladly be given you for creamed or whole grain corn canning if you should care to tackle these less formidable preparations.

Congratulations, Potatoes

Dear Miss Clayton: I would like to submit the folowing recipe for your Consumers' Counsel feature. First, however, let me congratulate you on your splendid columns and on the recipes you feature. It is a fine medium through which the housewife can try new dishes that she has always longed to try, and yet never been able to find the recipe.

MRS. MAX McGLOHON.
Ayden, N. C.

Cheese Baked Potatoes

⅓ cup milk
¼ pound grated pimento cheese
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
Potatoes

Choose nice, big potatoes to bake and when they are done take from the oven, cut in half and scoop them out. Mash the potato. Heat ½ cup milk and add to it ¼ pound grated pimiento cheese and beat with an egg-beater until smooth. Blend this with the mashed potato, add 2 teaspoons paprika and fill the potato shells with this, fluffing up the tops. Bake in a hot oven for ten minutes.

Mary Pickford Plans To Buy Her Old Home

TORONTO (U.P.).—Mary Pickford may buy the modest home in which she was born 45 years ago, turn it into a tea room and donate it to the Hospital for Sick Children, she disclosed during a recent visit here.

Miss Pickford, known as Gladys Mary Smith when she lived here, said she had submitted the offer to the trustees of the hospital and was awaiting a reply. The house now is empty, its windows boarded over.

"I want to fix it up inside and out," she said. "Then I would like to see it turned into a tea room, where babies' and children's clothing would be sold."

She suggested the Junior League, or some other association could run it and give the proceeds to the hospital.

Post Contest Next Week to Boost Carrots

Mrs. G. P. Gregger's Letter Suggests Use of Humble Vegetable as a Foil for Housewives' Talents.

The theme of next week's recipe contest will be carrots. This humble vegetable, often neglected because it is erroneously considered dull menu material, is actually one of the most practical and economical vegetables obtainable and is pliable for year-'round menus.

Mrs. G. P. Gregger, of Warrenton, Va., in a recent letter to the food editor, suggested this rich vitamin food as contest material, and her request will perhaps urge many ingenious housewives to try out their forgotten carrot recipes. Mrs. Gregger writes, "I wonder if we might have a contest on carrots. This vegetable can be very unpopular around the dinner table, and yet it is supposed to contain almost all the vitamins. If as many original ideas turn up as for your other contests, then there will be a rush at the corner markets."

All tested recipes for this vegetable must be neatly written out and mailed to Alice Clayton, Post Food Editor, before September 17. Five cash awards will be mailed the five best entries; they include $3 for first award, $2 for second, and $1 each for three additional prizes.

Intelligent Use Of Leftovers Helps Budget

Most Logical Method of Curtailing Expenses Is to Fix Up Remains of Roast, Other Scraps.

By Alice Clayton.
Post Food Editor.

ARE YOU one of those homemakers who can never seem to balance household budgets with weekly pay checks? If you constantly have to be borrowing on next week's rent or car payment, perhaps these food hints may help you to come out ahead next pay day. Most homemakers have suffered the misfortune of desiring lobster theromidor for dinner, realizing tuna fish would have to suffice. These fastidious souls will find these suggested ways and means of stretching the food budget particularly helpful.

The most logical method of curtailing expense is to utilize leftovers. Don't just recall that you have a little corn on the cob and two extra meat patties left over from dinner, and then sigh because you have four to feed. Get busy, instead, with a frothy egg batter, and beat up some crispy meat and corn fritters and serve them with maple syrup as the entree of a tempting dinner. Ability to make intelligent use of leftovers is truly an asset to a housewife.

Refrigerator Inventory.

Cleverly disguising the remains of Sunday's roast or yesterday's odds and ends requires three small steps. First, before planning or marketing for today's food, take close inventory of refrigerator, pantry and bread box. Modern kitchen equipment has made it child's play to know your food assets and liabilities at a glance. Next, instead of taking the easiest course of letting last night's surplus play a secondary role in your menu planning, combine any little scraps of meat, vegetables or protein foods into a casserole, mould, pie or cream dish. Invariably, a family, bored with chops or steak, will greet one of your own inspirations with delight, for in many cases properly chilled leftovers take on a pleasing added flavor. This is notably true of roast and soup stocks. Lastly, balance your meal intelligently. After week-end guests have departed and you come to the disillusioning conclusion that biscuits and sponge cake went begging, don't plan your next day's meal around both of these leftovers.

A good roast beef, for instance, is best served first just as it comes from the oven, sizzling hot, savory with seasonings, and served with crusty browned potatoes. The second time you bring on this dish, it should be dressed up in a brand-new guise—say a toasted hot beef sandwich with creamy mushroom sauce. It's a sure-fire supper favorite with any family. To make the sauce, melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 3 tablespoons flour. Cook until bubbling, then add 1 medium (16 oz.) can cream of mushroom soup. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Then hard cook 1 egg. Toast on one side 8 slices of bread, crust removed. Heat in top of double boiler thin slices of cooked meat. Place slices of meat between untoasted sides of every two slices of bread, cover with the mushroom sauce. Press egg through sieve, sprinkling over sandwiches. Top with sprigs of parsley. Arrange leaves of lettuce, filled with ripe olives and fresh pickle, on sides of plates. (4 sandwiches.)

Macaroni Magic.

If you still have a few tag-ends tucked away in the refrigerator, wait a day or so and then serve these tender little nubbins of beef in a creamy casserole of macaroni. You might use the ready-to-serve variety of macaroni that comes done in a cream sauce with cheese, and it will take just a couple of minutes to mix, heat in the oven and serve.

Place in alternate layers in buttered casserole 2 medium (17-oz.) cans cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese. One and half cups diced cold cooked roast pork, veal, or ham. Sprinkle ¼ cup grated American cheese over top. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 20 minutes, or until heated through and cheese is slightly browned. (Serves 5 to 6.)

Don't rush the leftover meal on the dining table the very next day. Serve a different sort of dinner in between to pick up the family interest, then bring on the leftovers the third day.

Peachy Dessert.

3 sliced angel food cake
2 cups sliced peaches
1-3 cup confectioner's sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup whipped cream
1-3 cup toasted cocoanut

Arrange cake on serving plates. Top with peaches, chilled and mixed with the sugar and juice. Cover with cream and sprinkle with cocoanut.

Stuffed Tomato Salads.

3 small firm tomatoes
⅓ cup cottage cheese
¾ cup sliced radishes
1 teaspoon minced onion
1-3 cup diced cucumbers
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup salad dressing

Wash and peel tomatoes. Remove centers and invert tomatoes to chill. Mix two tablespoons of the salad dressing with the rest of the ingredients. Stuff tomatoes and serve in cups of crisp lettuce. Top with the rest of the dressing.

Spice, Nuts, Garlic Used to Add Zip In Post's Preserve Recipe Contest

Spicy tangs were evident in the preserve recipes which greeted last week's contest judges. Varieties of fall and late summer fruits were indorsed in such zestful new combinations that the judge's role was a thorny one. Tomato and watermelon recipes came near stealing the show, for there were a large majority of these fruits entered under enticing names.

Spiced watermelon preserves were well represented in this contest. Recipes varied from the tartness of spiced watermelon pickle to the umph of watermelon rind preserved with cherries.

Masquerade of Fruits

First award goes to Mrs. Louis Harris, 216 Spruce avenue, Takoma Park, Md., for a harlequin conserve. Her entry is aptly titled, for the rare flavors used are disguised in one smooth taste. The blend of peaches and plums with grapes, pineapple and oranges is zestful. When almonds and pecans are added the result is rare.

Mrs. L. Harris.

Harlequin Conserve.

30 yellow chopped peaches
15 red stoned plums.
1 lb. seedless white grapes
1 diced pineapple
2 sliced oranges
sugar
¼ lb. ground almonds
¼ lb. broken pecans

Measure all fruit together and allow ¾ cup of sugar to each cup of fruit. Cook gently for 25 minutes. Add nut meats and cook 5 minutes longer. Seal while hot.

Pears That Blush

Second prize of $2 has been awarded to Miss Evelyn Wiesbacker, 4423 Eighth street northwest. Her recipe is either aimed toward shy eaters or toward fresh young fruits, because she has called her preserve "blushing pears." Since new young pears are suggested by Miss Wiesbacker, her quaint title seems justified.

Miss Wiesbacker.

Blushing Pear Preserves.

4 lbs. sweet young pears
2½ cups diced pineapple
pinch whole cloves
½ sliced lemon peel rind
½ sliced orange peel rind
1 cup diced maraschino cherries
4 cups brown sugar, or 5 cups of white sugar
dash of ginger

Wash and peel pears, dice. Combine all ingredients in large preserving kettle; cook slowly about 1¼ hours, or until clear and thick, stirring frequently. Pour into hot sterilized jelly glasses, paraffin at once.

Tropical Relish

Mrs. Minnie Levy, 69 New York avenue northwest, has been given a $1 prize for her tomato spice, tango preserves. She has used ginger, cinnamon and lemon in seasoning tiny yellow tomatoes. The addition of almonds supplies that "something to bite on," which doctor's claim is so important with sweet and sour foods.

Mrs. M. Levy.

Tango Preserves.

Wash and boil 5 pounds of small yellow tomatoes for 15 minutes. Mix 4 pounds of sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, 1 sliced lemon (remove seeds) and ¼ pound of almonds. Add 1 tomatoes and continue boiling for 1½ hours at a medium temperature. Stir now and then to avoid sticking. Pour in jelly glasses. This will yield approximately 12 glasses.

Nip of Autumn.

Mrs. Robert S. Norton, 6605 Eastern Avenue, Takoma Park, Md., has also received a $1 prize for her original Fall Festival Conserve. Mrs. Norton remarks "This is a favorite conserve at the Autumn fairs so popular in my native Middlewest." She expresses the expansiveness of Western plains in the amount of ingredients recommended.

Mrs. Norton.

Fall Festive Conserve.

26 peaches — 12 oranges
18 plums — 15 cups sugar
1 cup English walnuts

Peel and slice peaches and add five cups of the sugar. Stone the plums and cut rather fine with scissors and add five cups of the sugar to them, peel eight of the oranges but leave peel on four of them and chop fine and add the last five cups of sugar. Cook each fruit separately until tender, then, mix together thoroughly and cook until thick. A few minutes before the mixture is done add one cup nutmeats if desired. It is very good either way. Seal in hot sterilized jars. It will make about 10 pints.

Eastern Influence

Mrs. Jay Lawlor, 1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest, has won another $1 award for her chutney recipe. Chutneys are not as popular in this country as abroad, or in the Orient, possibly because there are a dearth of really palatable condiment recipes. Mrs. Lawlor, long active with her Post Food Page suggestions, has contributed this Peach Chutney of enticing flavor.

Mrs. J. Lawlor.

Peach Chutney.

4 pounds fresh peaches
1½ pounds brown sugar
½ pound raisins
2 tablespoons white mustard seed
3 cups vinegar
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 cup crystallized ginger
½ cup chopped onions.

Prepare fruit, onions, ginger and raisins. Put all through the food chopper. Add sugar, vinegar and spices. Pour into large pyrex dish or enamel pan and cook in oven, stirring occasionally, or cook on surface unit.

Too Many Teeth.

Before you buy a thing think twice;
Be sure that it is worth the price.
—Reddy Fox.

As I have told you before Reddy Fox is discreet. Had Jerry Muskrat been alone Reddy would not have hesitated to attack at once. He had a wholesome respect for Jerry's teeth and his ability as a fighter but he was himself much bigger and would have had no doubt that he would win the fight. But Jerry was not alone. Mrs. Jerry was right there beside him and her teeth were just as long and just as unpleasant to look at as were Jerry's. There were too many teeth. Yes, sir, there were too many long, sharp teeth. So Reddy was discreet.

At first Reddy had shown his own long sharp teeth, but almost at once he had changed what had been something very like a snarl to a grin. "Well, well, well, if it isn't Jerry and Mrs. Jerry!" he exclaimed. "What in the world are you folks doing so far from the Smiling Pool?"

To this Jerry and Mrs. Jerry made no reply save to snap their teeth together in a manner that was most unpleasant. Reddy pretended not to notice. "This is a most unexpected pleasure," he continued. "I wasn't looking for anything like this. I've never seen either of you looking better and I hope you feel as fine as you look. But tell me, what brings you so far from home and where are you bound for? Perhaps you are going the same way that I am and we can go along together. I would enjoy nothing more."

All the time Reddy was trying to think of some way in which he could separate Jerry and Mrs. Jerry. He didn't even notice that they made no reply to his questions. If he could just get them separated if only for a few minutes he might be able to kill one and after that the other. He had just as soon fight both, one at a time, but not together. He wished that Mrs. Reddy would happen along. He even barked once or twice in the hope that she might be within hearing. He did wish that those two Muskrats would stop showing their teeth.

Meanwhile Jerry and Mrs. Jerry, side by side, moved forward. If they could reach that slough ahead of them all would be well. They could laugh at Reddy then. So they moved forward, slowly at first and then with a sudden rush that took Reddy so by surprise that he hastily jumped backward. His grin vanished. A snarl replaced it. It was an ugly snarl and at the sound of it Jerry and Mrs. Jerry stopped. Reddy looked dangerous. They waited for him to attack and while they waited they growled and ground their teeth. That was a most unpleasant sound. It caused Reddy to hestitate. There were too many teeth. Yes, sir, there were too many teeth for any Fox to dare unless he was actually starving and so desperate. Reddy was far from starving and not at all desperate.

Seeing him hesitate Jerry and Mrs. Jerry made another unexpected rush forward. As before Reddy jumped back. This time Jerry and Mrs. Jerry kept right on after that short forward rush. They didn't advance fast but they did go forward steadily and in such a determined manner that Reddy must either fight or back up. He backed up. Then he tried circling around to try to get behind them. They stopped and faced about. Then they began to back and, of course, every backward step brought them nearer to that slough and safety. Reddy saw this and once more circled to get between them and the water.

"Well, well, well, if it isn't Jerry and Mrs. Jerry!"

Little by little they drove him back. Each time that he decided to attack he would look at those teeth and realize anew that there were too many of them. At last he felt wet ground beneath his feet and realized that he was on the edge of that slough where those Muskrats would feel quite at home and he wouldn't. A sudden rush forced him to leap aside. This time Jerry and Mrs. Jerry didn't stop their rush. They kept on. Two splashes that sounded almost as one told Reddy that he might as well forget that he had wanted a Muskrat breakfast.

"There was one set of teeth too many," he muttered as he trotted away.

Czechs Face United Front Of Minorities

Hungarians, Poles, Slovaks Back Sudeten Demand; Anger at Submission Among Bohemians.

By Walter B. Kerr.

Special Cable to The Post.

Prague, Sept. 8.—The Czech government, already forced by the British and French to offer concessions it now fears are too far-reaching, was faced with another headache today when the Nazi Sudeten Germans formed a united minority front with the Hungarians, Poles and some Slovaks.

Hereafter the political parties, which control at least 4,000,000 men and women, will work together with a common objective: Reorganization of the state along the line suggested by the Nazi leader, Konrad Henlein, in the eight demands he made at Karlsbad last spring. These parties have always been in the government opposition but the Hungarians, Poles and dissident Slovaks have trailed along, and let the Sudetens take the lead.

Czechs Protest Submission

The front was formed during the day when President Benes and Premier Hodza, facing fire from all sides, had acted to pacify the Sudetens for an incident which occurred yesterday at Maehrisch-Ostrau, where the Sudetens claimed that the government police had beaten, starved and kept in chains prisoners in that city's jail. The prisoners were accused of espionage and smuggling arms into the country from Germany for use against the state.

At the same time, Czechs throughout the country were protesting the government's latest offers to the Sudetens, offers which the government freely admits were forced upon it mainly by the British. To quiet them, newspapers have been instructed to tell the people that these offers are final and arrangements were made for Benes to appeal to the people for support in a radio broadcast at 6 o'clock Saturday night. He will speak first in Czech and then in German.

Opposition to his offer is strong and it will be ruinous if the offer is extended, but the government already has told the British and French that it will go no further. If it goes no further, and if the minorities do not back down, the deadlock will be unbreakable.

People Resentful

Today it was reported that more than a million signatures had been obtained on a petition urging the government to stand fir . Various political parties supporting President Benes held mass meetings in public squares throughout the country today. At Semily in the north, factories were closed and the townspeople sent telegrams to President Benes and Premier Hodza. At Iglau, the people appointed a delegation to visit the president.

The Social Democratic newspaper Pravo Lidu this morning said that it was no secret that the new proposals had been made under pressure from England but added that the new proposals were final and the Czechs would go no further.

Meanwhile, yesterday's incident at Maehrischostrau was making it possible for the Sudeten Nazis to hold up negotiations while at the same time pretending they were willing to negotiate on the basis of the government's offer with a view to obtaining all their demands. This morning the government suspended the two policemen involved yesterday when a crowd was dispersed before the courthouse and a Sudeten member of Parliament was hit with a riding crop.

Investigation revealed, however, that neither the member nor anyone else was injured. The crowd was gathered before the courthouse where 82 Nazis are being tried on charges of espionage and arms smuggling. Tonight the political committee of the Sudeten Nazi Party protested to the government that these prisoners have been treated badly and some of them injured. In an effort to settle the charges, the government sent five of them to a hospital at Olmuetz for examination.

Runciman Investigates

The Nazis are making a great deal of the affair and are striving to hold up negotiations until Hitler makes his address at Nuremberg on Monday. The unofficial British mediation mission headed by Viscount Runciman, which has little to do these days, has sent an investigator to the spot.

The Sudeten Nazis are claiming that one Albert Knoll, a minor party official, was murdered by the Czechs near the same city. The government says that Knoll, accused of espionage and arms smuggling, committed suicide by jumping from the train taking him to prison. Nevertheless, the Nazi Party has decreed Saturday as a day of mourning; large flags will be hung from the party headquarters, and the dead man will be given a martyr's funeral. All sympathizers must wear black ties and black arm bands so that the party will be able to recognize Germans who are opposed to it.

Il Duce Backs Sudetens

Rome, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—The Italian government tonight ended its long silence on the Central European crisis with a warning that Czechoslovakia must "surrender to the reality of the situation" if an even graver situation is to be avoided.

Italy, it was explained, is not directly involved in the Sudeten-Czech situation but is anxious for satisfaction of the Sudeten minority's eight-point autonomy program as laid down by Konrad Henlein at Carlsbad last April 24.

Thus Mussolini approved the Sudeten demands for full autonomy.

Japanese Take 3 Key Cities, Plan Hankow Entry Oct. 10

80 Miles Away, Columns Race to Be First in China's Capital; 25 of Chiang's Highest Officers Killed in Terrific Plane Attack On Base, Invaders Report.

By the United Press.

Shanghai, (Friday) Sept. 9.—Japanese armies today captured three key cities and advanced to within 80 miles of the Hankow tri-city area—traditional military heart of China.

So extensive were the Japanese advances that Japanese Commander Gen. Shunroku Hata and his associates planned a "triumphal entry" into Hankow October 10—China's "double 10" anniversary date which has marked outstanding events in Chinese history.

Columns north of the Yangtze River under Prince Higashi Kuni, a relative of Emperor Hirohito, were scoring the most spectacular advances and were expected to be the first to reach the capital environs.

Following the capture of Hwangmei and Kwangtsi, motorized Japanese units advancing along a highway today were cannonading Kishui, within 75 miles of Hankow and threatened soon to effect a junction with other Japanese columns fighting southward through the Tapieh Mountains toward Macheng.

Still farther north, a Japanese army spokesman said, Japanese forces fighting southward from the Lunghai Railway, reinforced by new units from Japan, had consolidated their positions around Kushih and captured Hwaiyang (sometimes called Chenchow) an important city 56 miles northeast of the Peiping-Hankow Railway stations at Yencheng and Siping.

On the south shore of the Yangtze, south of Japan's base in Kiukiang, huge Chinese and Japanese armies were locked in one of the bitterest battles of the war along an irregular line of the west shore of Lake Poyank to Tehan, gateway to China's great base in Nanchang.

Belated reports reaching Shanghai revealed that the Japanese aerial bombing of China's new military base in Kingshan, 70 miles northwest of Hankow, on August 27, was one of the most violent aerial attacks of the war.

Japanese military information said that 25 high Chinese army officers were killed and 25 wounded when an aerial torpedo destroyed a building in which a Chinese military conference was in session.

The dead included Gens. Yu Hsueh-Chung, Wei Li-Huang—who was known as "100 victories Wei" and gained fame by his determined stands against the Japanese in Shansi Province—and Li Ten-Min, a son-in-law of Gen. Li Tsung-Jen, general commander of Chinese armies in the military district around Suchow.

Yield, Italy Tells Czechs; Backs Hitler

Attitude Fixed in Parley With Fuehrer in May, Official Paper Says; Armed Action Hinted.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Sept. 8.—Italy, siding with Germany, advised Czechoslovakia semi-officially tonight to heed the autonomy demands of her Germanic minority.

The Italian position was outlined in Informazione Diplomatica, authoritative organ issued occasionally by the official Stefani News Agency. Diplomats attribute to it the importance of a government communique.

The semi-official statement refrained from saying what Italy might do in case Czechoslovakia refused to come to terms with the Sudeten German minority.

It cautioned Prague, however, of "a great crisis" unless the Czechoslovaks turned a deaf ear to counsels which it said came from French and Soviet quarters with the "perhaps hypothetical" possibility of aid.

"Fixed" With Hitler

Details of Italy's attitude were withheld beyond the statement it had been fixed in talks between Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini during the Feuhrer's visit to Rome last May.

When Hitler was here German sources asserted Mussolini promised him a free hand in Czechoslovakia, but expressed hope Germany would solve the problem "on her own strength."

The statement tonight said Italy had refrained from calling reserves to colors or other military action, presumably such as troop movements, because she believed an agreement in Czechoslovakia possible. It indicated, however, Rome was ready to face immediately any eventualities."

"The attitude of Italy has been and is, in conformity with the policy of the (Rome-Berlin) axis, clearly favorable to the demands formulated by Konrad Henlein and his famous eight points of Karlsbad (Karlovy Vary) demands, which, while requiring territorial autonomy for the minority, have never placed in discussion their belonging to the Czechoslovak state," the statement added.

Press Pessimistic

It said Henlein had not asked pure and simple separation of Germans from Czechoslovakia, and disclaimed for Germany any intention to wrest Sudeten territory from the war-created republic.

Rather, it added, such a "radical solution" had been suggested by newspapers, the statement naming the London Times and La Republique, of Paris.

The statement was followed by pessimistic editorials in the controlled Italian press.

Typical were those of the authoritative editor, Virginio Gayda, in Il Giornale d'Italia, and an editorial in Regime Fascista, of Cremona, believed to have been inspired from Nuremberg, Germany, by Roberto Farinacci, head of the Italian delegation to the Nazi congress.

"In 24 hours the situation has been overturned," Gayda said. He blamed the Czechoslovaks for "deliberate or unrestrained exasperations of open injury," which he said Germany would not suffer indefinitely.

Russian Prison Holds Rubens Pair 9 Months

'Robinsons,' Jailed as Spies, Rebuff U. S. Efforts to Free Them; America Still Watches Case.

By the Associated Press.

Soviet police took a young American woman to Butyrskaya Prison in Moscow nine months ago yesterday—and why she went to Russia, what she intended doing there and what has happened to her remains a mystery to American officials.

All they knew of her is that her name is Ruth Marie Rubens, born in Philadelphia; that she entered Russia under a false American passport in the name of Mrs. Ruth Norma Robinson, born in New York City, issued on the basis of a birth-certificate of a New York child who died at the age of 6. She was accompanied by a man whose passport, in the name of Donald Louis Robinson, (also issued on presentation of a birth-certificate of a dead child) showed him to be her husband. He also was arrested. The charge against both was suspicion of spying.

Mrs. Rubens disappeared from her hotel in Moscow last December 8, a couple of days after she had reported to the American Embassy that her husband had disappeared.

Notes Exchanged.

It took the embassy well over a month to pry loose from the Soviet government the fact that both had been arrested.

Many more weeks passed, punctuated by diplomatic exchanges between Secretary of State Hull and the Soviet foreign office, before an embassy official received permission to visit her in jail.

There, heard by Soviet officials, Mrs. Rubens professed entire ignorance of why she had entered Russia. She said her husband had handed her the false passport just before they arrived in the Soviet Union.

Furthermore, she said she did not want any help from the United States. She professed to be well treated in the jail.

U. S. Drops Case

Thus rebuffed, American officials have been unable to do anything further for her. They have ignored the arrest of her husband on the ground that there is no reason for believing him an American citizen.

Officials here and in Moscow are still keeping a watchful eye on Mrs. Rubens' case. Whatever may be the result of the Soviets' charge of suspicion of spying, officials say on the basis of their own investigation, that the Soviets have the right to sentence her on the charge of entering Russia on a false passport.

'Mystery Man' Pleads Guilty to Passport Fraud

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 8.—A cultured, well spoken man of Teutonic appearance, who after five months of extensive investigation by State Department agents, is as much a mystery man as ever, pleaded guilty today to obtaining a passport through false representations.

His plea was seen by authorities as an effort to curtail further investigation of his identity, his apparently fathomless resources and the purpose of his world travels.

The man, who has used the name Henry Huton and numerous other aliases, has refused to reveal any information regarding himself, either to his own lawyer or to Federal authorities. Agents who have trailed him since last April, have learned only that he has traveled the world over, living and spending lavishly, and that he started his travels in April, 1936, on a passport obtained here.

Judge Murray Hulbert fixed September 15 for sentence and sent the prisoner to the Federal House of Detention.

4 Hurt, 3 Badly, In Bus-Auto Crash

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 8.—Four persons were hurt, three seriously, when a Washington-bound bus with 25 passengers colided with an automobile here today. The injured, who were removed to McKinley Hospital, are:

Frank Wyzga, 30, of Hamilton Township, severe head injury.

Harry Koleski, 36, of Trenton, head injury.

Louis Bondsky, 62, of Baltimore, back injury.

Rose Lending, 42, of Scottsville, Va., lacerations of the knee.

2 Hurt, 7 Arrested As Fists, Hair Fly In Store Walkout

San Francisco, Sept. 8 (AP).—Swinging fists and sharp fingernails came into play today as flying wedges of non-strikers crashed union picket lines before many San Francisco department stores.

At least two persons were injured and seven arrested.

Scratching and hair-pulling marked the group movement of non-strikers through a picket line at one of the 35 stores affected.

Shoppers moved in and out of the stores but in numbers short of normal.

About 300 extra police, many of them mounted, stood watch.

Psychologists Prefer 'Free' City To Vienna

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—The American Psychological Association demanded tonight that the twelfth International Congress of Psychologists, scheduled to be held in Vienna in 1940, be removed from there, because of the nazification of Austria.

Delegates to the association's annual convention at Ohio State University adopted unanimously a resolution urging the committee in charge of the congress to arrange to hold it "in some other country where the progress of psychology as a branch of science is not hindered by a government hostile to the tradition of free and unimpeded scholarship."

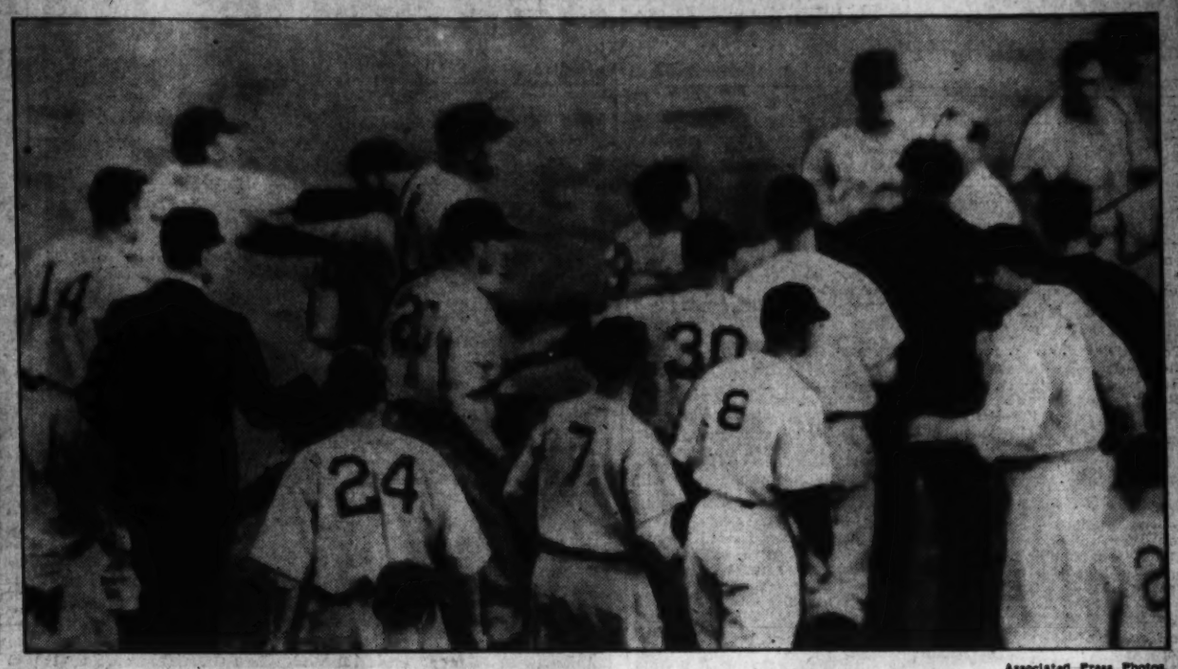
Buddy Myer Storm Center of Riot as Nats Defeat A's, 5-2

In sliding into home plate in the sixth inning of yesterday's game, Buddy Myer's spurs went high into the chest of Catcher Harold Wagner, of the Athletics, who was stunned and cut. Coming to bat in the eighth, Myer went to first when hit by a close pitch and in attempting to steal third he had difficulties with Werber, following which (right) photo was made as players from both teams started swinging fists while arbiters made futile attempts to restore order.



Associated Press Photos.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Underlying the fisticuffs at Griffith Stadium yesterday was the age-old and traditional contempt of the big league veteran for the busher.

Down in the Nats' dressing room after the game, Buddy Myer was still roiled. He had acquitted himself bravely enough in that free-for-all battle in the eighth inning. Outnumbered by the Athletics and attacked from all sides, he had fought back furiously and he was unhurt.

G. POVICH.

But he was fuming. "That busher asked for it," he said. He was referring to Al Wagner, rookie catcher of the Athletics. In the sixth inning, Myer precipitated the brawl by sliding into Wagner with spikes high and knees rigidly in front. He had planned to take all the best of the collision at the plate and he did. The unsuspecting Wagner was knocked flat, jarred out of his consciousness, dropped the ball and Myer was safe.

If Myer had any remorse for his act, he cleverly concealed it. "Why, that busher will get killed if he don't get smart," said the Nats' graying veteran. "He's breaking into this league in the wrong way. I never saw him before last week when he played against us in Philadelphia, and he started riding me right off the bat. I told him off then.

"He started it again yesterday, beefing at the umpire's decisions when I was up there at the plate. I told him to let the umpires run the game. And he said something he thought was smart. He'll learn about that if he stays in this league. I did."

Planted at the Plate

That slide by Myer was, indeed, a thing of vicious beauty if there can be anything beautiful about a slide that can maim or injure the target. It was the only kind of a slide that could reverse the obvious decision at the plate. Myer was out from here to there until he slid. The ball had beaten him to the plate for 6 feet and young Wagner was waiting for him.

But Wagner was not reckoning with an old-timer's contempt for a smart-talking rookie. He planted himself squarely in front of the plate where a more experienced catcher would have warily stepped to one side and tagged Myer as he moved past. In that position, Wagner was a set-up for the Nats' veteran second baseman.

Myer took off about 6 feet in front of the plate, and literally flew through the air with his knees doubled up in front. As he reached Wagner, he kicked out furiously and the impact knocked him out. Myer was safe, but untouched by the spectacle of the young catcher lying inert and apparently badly injured.

He merely brushed himself off and started to walk calmly away from the plate until Coach Earl Mack challenged him. "Teach that guy how to catch," Myer told Mack, and was willing to fight about it.

Myer was entitled to the baselines. It was the catcher's business to keep from getting hit. Ordinarily, Myer is not a vicious player. Ordinarily, he would not have crashed into young Wagner. But yesterday he chose to. It appeared to be uncalled-for, and the act induced even the Washington fans to boo Myer.

Boos Quick to Shift

When home-town fans boo a home-town player who has just scored a run for his team, as Myer did, something must be wrong. It was plain enough that they didn't like the way Myer crashed into the young catcher. And when he next appeared at bat in the eighth inning, the boos were even more vociferous.

But a moment later, Myer was forgiven. Because Bud Thomas' first pitch was as palpable an intentional bean-ball as ever was thrown. It was a head-high fast ball, aimed at Myer's skull and the booing was shifted to Thomas.

Because he was an old-timer, because he knew that the angry Athletics would be out to "get him" and with plenty of reason, Myer was not injured by that bean-ball pitch. It grazed his cap and knocked it off, but Myer had been on the alert. In the nick of time he fell on his face to get out of the way of the deadly pitch.

As we were saying, that pitch was as clearly a bean-ball as one could be, but Myer took it uncomplainingly. He didn't rage at Thomas, he didn't emit a squawk. In the same manner that he had picked himself up from the plate after knocking down Wagner, he picked himself up out of the dust and proceeded to first base as if Thomas were entitled to knock him down if he could.

Harris Does His Bit

Down in the dressing room, Manager Bucky Harris was still enjoying the brawl hugely. It was to Harris liking. Reared in the tough coal mine district where the bar-room stuff is a daily occurrence, Harris likes a fight, is not averse to doing a bit of fighting himself. He reached the scene of action with a furious sprint and was prominent in the milling.

"Some fun, huh?" was Harris' comment.

But Clark Griffith could see little comedy in the proceedings. With characteristic fervor he orated to the effect that the Athletics were entirely to blame, that Myer was in the right.

"How many times have they knoked down our catchers?" demanded Griffith. "Remember what they did to Bolton at Chicago. Put him out of the line-up for the season. And how about the time that that big Hendrix, of the Yankees, knocked Muddy Ruel way to the backstop and won the ball game that way? The catcher ought to know how to protect himself.

"I wouldn't have blamed Buddy for anything after they threw that bean ball at him. Why, it could kill him. That's going too far."

He didn't say so, but the impression was that Griff thinks the Athletics ought to be locked up.

Steinke and Dusek Steal Mat Show

Ernie Wins the Match To Take Spotlight From Lady Wrestlers Who Featured Card.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

With pretty much the same tactics of an autoist backing into a snug parking space, Ernie Dusek maneuvered the veteran Hans Steinke into defeat last night at Turner's Arena in full view of some 1,500 howling fans.

It was supposed to be Ladies' Night at the W street boiler factory, and the ladies—four of 'em,—were there. But with customary disregard for the rights of others and international procedure, the Duseks stole the show.

The other Dusek involved was Emil, who struggled 30 minutes to a draw with bronzed and handsome Ed Meske. This match probably had the fans more steamed up than the others, although it is difficult to single out a weak spot in the entire program.

Dolly Dalton, of Atlanta, pinned Billy Dewitt, of St. Louis, in 13½ minutes with a backdrop, and Babe Murphy, of Los Angeles, threw Jean Rogers in 12½ minutes with a merry-go-round spin. The victors will meet next week for the right to wrestle the 135-pound champion a week later.

But getting back to the principal disturbance, it was Steinke all the way until he clamped a punishing scissors on Ernie's bulging neck and threatened to decapitate the bulging Bohemian. Ernie was slowly sagging into defeat when he suddenly shifted gears, eased the towering Dutchman over on his shoulder blades, and held him in that position while Cyclone Burns gave him the three-count.

Emil and Meske really worked while they were in the ring, although all of Dusek's holds were not strictly cricket. He insisted on playing Jack Horner with Meske's eyes despite Burns persistent demands that he desist. Meske, however, finally got himself and Mr. Dusek straightened out with a few well delivered kicks in the midriff.

Chick Outfielder Sold to Browns

St. Louis, Sept. 8 (AP).—Joe Grace, 22-year-old outfielder, was purchased by the St. Louis Browns today from Memphis of the Southern Association. The price was not announced.

A right-hander and .300 hitter in his three seasons with the Chicks, Grace will report to the Browns next spring.

Stunned and wounded, Wagner is given first aid after the crash at the plate. The Macks' catcher was soon revived.

Yawkey Buys Louisville Club; Bush Goes In as Part Owner

Former Major League Pilot Leaves Helm at Minneapolis After Current Season to Take Charge.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 8.—Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of the Boston Red Sox, tonight dug down deep to purchase the Louisville Club, of the American Association, in a straight cash deal which will elevate Donie Bush, manager of the Minneapolis Millers, to the helm of the Colonels in the role of part-owner.

Eddie Collins, general manager of the Sox, said a considerable part of the unannounced purchase price had been put up by Bush, who will finish out the season with Minneapolis and then will take over active leadership at Louisville.

The deal takes in all real estate, including an up-to-date stadium, the club's franchise, and all the players. One of the bigger assets, Collins said, would be Shortstop Harold (Pee Wee) Reese, for whom several major league clubs already have offered $40,000.

The deal, made with the Knebelkamp interests, which controlled the last-place Louisville team, gives the Sox a Class AA team, the most important cog in their rapidly expanding farm system, and provides equal footing in the association with the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees, who control Columbus and Kansas City, respectively.

"We have had a working agreement with Minneapolis," said Collins, "but outright ownership of Louisville will provide the quantity and quality of players we need."

U.S. Retains Curtis Cup

By the Associated Press.

Manchester, Mass., Sept. 8.—Staring crushing defeat in the face, the American Women's Curtis Cup golf team rallied in astounding fashion at the Essex County Club today and retained possession of that international trophy by sweeping five of the six singles matches against brilliant British rivals for a 5½-to-3½ victory.

That triumph was the third the domestic forces have gained since the cup was donated eight years ago by the Misses Harriot and Margaret Curtis, both former national titlists and home club members, "to stimulate friendly rivalries among women golfers of many lands."

Never in its history has the bowl left its native shore, for the best the British women have done in its competitive history was a 4½-4½ deadlock at Gleneagles, Scotland, two years ago in the third of the biennial competitions. That draw entitled the American team to retain the trophy.

The visitors, headed by Mrs. Andrew M. Holm, the British champion, pulled into a commanding lead yesterday when, playing in the rain, they won two and halved the third of the Scotch foursome matches.

An inkling of the surprising American comeback was given in the first singles match, during which Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, the national titlist, overwhelmed Mrs. Holm, 6 and 5. The teams became tied shortly after when youthful Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, matched the 78, two over women's par, turned in by Jessie Anderson while defeating that 1937 British champion, 1 up.

Two years ago it was Miss Anderson who enabled the Britons to tie the United States team by sinking a curling putt.

An eagle 3 on the 414-yard sixteenth hole enabled Marion E. Miley, of Cincinnati, to gain a one-hole lead over Elsie Corlett, of England. Then the Ohio girl captured the seventeenth with a par 4 for a 2-and-1 triumph.

The best golf in the cup matches was played by Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, the many-times national

Vander Meer Beats League Leading Bucs

Johnny, Making 1st Start In a Month, Gives Up But 7 Hits; Rizzo Gets Homer in the 9th Inning.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Sept. 8.—Behind the seven-hit pitching of Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 3, tonight to cut their league lead over the Chicago Cubs to four games and the Reds to 4½.

The victory put Cincinnati in third place, one-half game ahead of the Giants.

Cy Blanton went the route for the Pirates and was touched for eight hits.

Vandy set the league leaders down for five singles in the first eight innings. Johnny Rizzo homered in the ninth, the only extra base hit for the Bucs, scoring behind P. Waner, who had singled.

This was Vander Meer's first start since August 10 when he was forced out of a series by boils in his ear.

Rizzo batted in all of the Pirate runs, but also was charged with three of four Pirate errors.

The McKechnie men scored first in the fourth as Frey, who had beat out a bunt, tallied when Young threw wild to first on McCormick's bounder. The Bucs tied it up in the sixth as the Waner brothers singled, Lloyd scoring on a fly.

The Reds scored 3 runs on three hits and an error in the sixth. Berger doubled and Lombardi was purposely passed for the second time. Craft loaded the bases with a liner back of third. Riggs' single scored Berger and Lombardi and when Rizzo kicked the ball into centerfield, Craft also scored.

The final Red tally came in the seventh on a walk, two hits and an eror.

The final game of the season under lights here was played to a capacity crowd of 29,043.

Keystoner's Slide Lays Wagner Cold; Fists Fly in Eighth

Fans Boo Buddy but Hiss Macks in 8th When Werber Knocks Him Down; Players Start Swinging After That; Chase Allows nly Six Hits as He Beats Mackmen.

By Shirley Povich.

Punches were thrown in great profusion, heads were battered and spikes flashed in a wild eighth-inning free-for-all at Griffith Stadium yesterday where the Nats won a 5-to-2 ball game from the Athletics.

Storm center of the fighting which brought every man in uniform to the scene of action at third base was Buddy Myer, Nats' second baseman.

On the fringe of a battle between Myer and Bill Werber, of the Athletics, a half dozen separate conflicts broke out as loyal teammates flailed away at the nearest enemy.

For five minutes the mob scene raged before police, umpires, Washington Club officials and cooler heads among the athletes quelled the uprising.

Tempers were short and hot blood in evidence back in the sixth inning when Myer, sliding into home plate with his spikes high and knees to the fore, knocked Rookie Catcher Al Wagner unconscious, causing him to drop the ball.

Wagner Bruised and Cut.

Angry Athletics, rushing from the dugout, threatened to mob Myer at that point, and there were belligerent gestures between Myer and Earl Mack, son of Connie Mack and coach for the A's.

Wagner, knocked out by Myer's slide, was given first aid by the Washington Club physician. He suffered bruises and cuts high on the chest.

The meager gathering of 1,000 Washington fans booed Myer at that point.

He was booed again by the Washington fans as he went to bat in the eighth inning.

And then the boos were unloosed toward the Athletics, for Pitcher Bud Thomas' first pitch to Myer was a head-high bean ball that grazed the button of Myer's cap and knocked it to the ground. Myer, on the alert for a bean ball, barely succeeded in ducking and was given his base.

A bit later in the inning Myer attempted to steal third as Rick Ferrell struck out and was nipped by Catcher Berry's throw to Werber. Werber, claiming that Myer had attempted to spike him, lashed out at the Nats' captain with both fists, one of which contained the ball. He landed one punch on Myer's ear.

Myer, still on the ground, lashed out furiously with both feet in an attempt to retaliate and in a twinkling there was a concerted rush to the spot from both dugouts.

Milan Vs. Werber.

Leading the charge of the Nats was the veteran coach Clyde Milan, who dashed in from his nearby post and flailed away at Werber.

From his catching position, charged big Charley Berry, former all-American football star, in the van of a horde of Athletics. Still wearing his chest protector, Berry engaged Myer in a toe-to-toe slugfest before reinforcements from both sides arrived.

Meyer, bareheaded and still on his feet, flailed away indiscriminately in an effort to protect himself, taking wild, round-house punches in all directions.

Goose Goslin engaged three angry Athletics in a private battle of his own.

But most prominent among the Nats in the proceedings besides Myer was big, bulky Joe Krakauskas who was among the first to reach Myer's side. On the theory that anybody in a gray uniform was eligible for his punches, the blond pitcher skipped from foe to foe, swinging as he moved.

Myer, Werber Ejected.

Big Berry slowed him up with a vicious sock on the chin, but Krakauskas was still swinging at the bell.

Both Myer and Werber were ejected from the game by the umpires.

As Werber walked to the showers, he displayed spike wounds on his right arm.

The brawl game was a breeze for Ken Chase and the Nats. While Chase was holding the Athletics to six hits, his colleagues were pounding Bud Thomas for an even dozen, including Zeke Bonura's nineteenth homer of the season.

The Athletics were off to a 1-to-0 lead after Moses and Werber singled in the fourth inning, but the Nats came up with two runs in their half of the session. Bonura's homer, a terrific blast into the left-center seats, produced the first run and in quick succession followed a

Cox and Walper Face Gibson and Beach in Benefit Match Sunday

Pairings Announced For Event

Indian Spring Course to Be Scene of Mather Benefit Exhibition; Tickets Are on Sale At Golf Shops.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro, and Leo Walper, Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion, will face the Maryland Open king, Scot Andy Gibson and Ralph Beach, Suburban's sectional P. G. A. president, in the top foursome of the Warner Mather benefit exhibition Sunday at Indian Spring.

Beach, captain of the Baltimore pros that will be underdogs against the team selected by the Washington sports writers, announced the pairings yesterday. Play will start at 2 p. m.

At 2:05 the visitors' long and short combination, lanky Johnny Bass, Clifton Park, and Charles Betschler, the popular representative from Hillendale, meet a like combination in Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam's long-distance mentor, and George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood.

Tickets on Sale

Fred McLeod, National Open champion just 30 years ago, will pair with Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, at 2:10 against William Schreiber, Mount Pleasant, and Carroll McMasters, Woodbine's pipe-smoking mentor.

Tickets for the match, played to aid Warner Mather, former professional at Rodgers Forge and Woodholme, who has been disabled for several years, are on sale at all local golf shops, and may be purchased on the gate at Indian Spring the day of the matches.

Prizes, listing among them a set of irons and woods, golf balls, shirts, rain jackets, golf spike sets, umbrellas and others, donated by various golf manufacturers, will be awarded the lucky ticket holders. The prizes are being exhibited in Al Jamison's golf shop at the host club.

The same six-man teams from the two cities will play the second of the benefits at Woodholme Club, Pikesville, Sunday, September 18.

Ticket sales for the match have been brisk at all the local clubs and a gallery of 1,000 is expected to see the matches.

5 Club Championships On Slate Sunday

Five club championships are on Sunday's card, either in match or medal play, with Argyle and Capital members in the first round of match play, while Beaver Dam, Kenwood and Indian Spring have 18-hole qualifying rounds on tap.

Lou Harrison's 68 should stand up for the medal at Indian Spring, while although only a few have turned in scores to date, Kenwood and Beaver Dam will both open their rounds with a new champion to be crowned at each club.

Post Golf Entries Close Today

Mrs. Robert L. Lacey, tournament chairman of the Women's District Golf Association, is accepting entries until 1 o'clock this afternoon for The Washington Post Cup Match Play Tournament, that starts Monday at Manor.

An 18-hole qualifying round will determine the 32 low net scores that will swing into match play on Tuesday. A field of more than 100 players is expected for the sixth annual tournament.

Pro-Amateur Play Scheduled Monday

William Schreiber will play host to the Middle Atlantic pros and their three amateur partners in a pro-amateur tournament Monday at the Mount Pleasant Course.

The event was originally a prolady at Suburban but due to the Post Cup event at Manor that would leave the local pros with few available partners, the tourney was changed to a pro-amateur at Suburban.

Insects Tie In 15 Frames

With 600 fans looking on and the city's semifinal insect championship at stake, Neon Lights and Consolidated Stores played a 15-inning thriller in Columbia League schedules yesterday, failing to eliminate one another in a 2-2 tie.

In another important elimination schedule, the Urciolo Realty Romans failed when they dropped a twin bill to Natie Brown's Cafe Bombers, losing the opener, 11-3, and the nightcap, 15-2.

First-Day Crowd of 6,000 Sees Miss Jacobs, Riggs Win in First Forest Hills Net Matches

By the Associated Press.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Helen Jacobs, who plays to win, and Bobby Riggs, who plays no better than he has to, did just that today as the combined men's and women's national singles tennis championships opened at the West Side Tennis Club before a promising first-day crowd of 6,000.

Berkeley Helen, top-seeded in her bid for her fifth United States title, used up only 25 minutes of the customers' time and dropped only 14 points in routing Anne Harrison, of Ruxton, Md., 6—0, 6—0. Riggs, on the other hand, dropped the first set and had to come from behind in each of the others to eliminate Peter Lauck of Wynnewood, Pa., 5—7, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

These results were expected, as were all the others with one notable exception. That was the four-set victory gained by blond Don McNeill of Oklahoma City over Bernard Destremeau of France. McNeil, who earned a No. 9 National ranking in 1937 largely on the fine showing he made against Baron Gottfried von Cramm, beat back the fourth-seeded foreigner, 6—2, 4—6, 6—1, 6—3, to advance in the same quarter of the draw with defending champion Don Budge.

Budge Plays Today.

McNeill's victory over the French Davis cupper, a tall, baby-faced blond, was more of a technical than an actual upset. Despite his seeding, Destremeau showed a glaring weakness in taking low, hard drives on his backhand. McNeill concentrated effectively on that weakness.

Except the Frenchman, all the other seeded stars came through. They included Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, Davis Cup spare and No. 3; Sidney Wood, of New York, No. 4; Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., No. 6, and Bitsy Grant, No. 8 in the United States list, and Adrian Quist, of Australia, Ferenc Puncec and Franjo Kukuljevic, of Yugioslavia, and Fumiteru Nakano, of Japan, ranked second, third, sixth and seventh on the invaders' list.

Dot Bundy Wins

There were no breaks in the women's seeded ranks, which saw Dorothy May Bundy, Gracyn Wheeler and Helen Pedersen, of the home-breds, and Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France; Nancye Wynne and Mrs. Harry C. Hopman, of Australia, and Margot Lumb, of England, join Miss Jacobs in the second round.

Berkeley Helen, playing her first tournament tennis since she hurt her ankle in the Wimbledon final with Helen Wills Moody, didn't seem at all bothered by her foot in blasting Miss Harrison off the court. She won entirely as she pleased in taking her first step toward a likely semifinal match with Mme. Mathieu, who put out Patrica Henry, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—0.

Riggs, seeded next to Budge, was 35 minutes late for his match and even when he arrived didn't show much interest. He was content to stay on the baseline and just bat the ball back. He probably will have to do more than that tomorrow, when he meets Intercollegiate Champion Frank Guernsey in one of the most promising matches of the day.

C. U. Squad In Initial Drill Today

By Jack Munhall.

A premature gander at what possibly will be Catholic University's greatest eleven in years may be taken this morning when 38 young Cardinals spread their football wings for the first time this season and flutter up to Coach Dutch ("Mother Bird") Bergman at 10 o'clock.

Bergman, dean of local coaches, will be starting his ninth successive season at the Brookland school and it's no secret that the wily, silver-thached mentor looks forward to a team that will overshadow his Orange Bowl champions of 1936.

With the advantages of a squad well-sprinkled with seasoned "set" seniors, experienced but still flash juniors and ambitious, unpredictable sophomores, Bergman has quite a task to perform before his charges meet American University in their opener on October 1.

All Jobs Are Open

Profiting by last year's experience with a big, powerful team, fresh from its New Year's Day conquest of Mississippi, which was a distinct disappointment, Bergman is determined with the new season not to allow any player to feel certain of a job.

When he addresses his boys today Bergman is expected to sound a solemn warning that there will be "No 1937 hold-over regulars" and that sophomores, if they justify the move, will step right into the line-up, displacing the vets. In other words sentimentality is out.

Begman plans a strenuous practice schedule with workouts to be scheduled two times daily, in the morning and afternoon. He points more for the game with American than for an ordinary opener because the power behind the Indians is none other than his old friend and close rival, Gus Welch.

Giants Win Third in Row, Beating Bees, 6 to 4

Gumbert Bests Turner in Mound Duel; Cuccinello Is Hitting Star of Game; Getting 3 for 4, Including a Home Run and a Double for Boston.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 8.—For the first time in two months the Giants today completed a winning streak of three games in a row by whipping the Boston Bees, 6 to 4, in the finale of their current series.

After Harry Gumbert and Jim Turner hooked up in a tight mound duel for seven innings, the Giants broke out with a seven-hit, four-run rally in the eighth to put the game on ice.

The Bees came back in the ninth with a three-run outburst, featured by Tony Cuccinello's homer, but portly Walter Brown was rushed in to Gumbert's relief and fanned Vince DiMaggio with the tying runs on base.

Cuccinello hit a double and single in addition to his homer and drove in three of the Boston runs.

Bill Ackerman

On Fishing

Over the past week-end Commodore Thomas Scott, of Miles River, Md., fishing at Ocean City with Capt. Rick Savage had a blue marlin on for three hours and lost it for want of a little more line. But then white marlin rigs were never meant for the blues. That it was a blue there is no doubt, for Capt. Bill Hatch and Paul Townsend were witnesses of the battle and close by when the fish, at one time, was brought to within 15 feet of the boat.

ACKERMAN.

An oddity, and good enough for the book, happened on the same day. An old battle-scarred white of 89 pounds was boated by Capt. Jim Lombard that at some previous time had lost its entire bill, and embedded in its side, more than 10 inches of the sword of a broadbill. These white marlin must be pretty good if they can get away in a scrap with a Xiphias gladius.

Another marlin has been caught off the coast of North Carolina. This time at Morehead City, and a white. It weighed 100 pounds and is the second to be caught off this coast this season. The first was the 439-pound blue marlin taken off Hatteras early in July by Hugo Rutherford.

The barracudas are still running strong off Southport. Many are being caught weighing up to 30 pounds. And now big amberjacks, up to 40 pounds, are consorting with them. At our old spring standby, Oregon Inlet, the bluefish are hitting to the tune of a hundred and a half to the boat. However, there is little need to go that far for bluefish, for you can do as good or better anywhere in the lower bay.

Catches at upper bay points during the past week have in no way been up to what might reasonably be expected at this time of the year. When you take into consideration, that in the same area the nets are lifting hundreds of tons of fish, mostly trout up to five pounds (one pound alone, off West River, in one day took 95,000 pounds, and received for the catch the munificent sum of a cent and a half a pound) it is hard to understand just why sport fishermen aren't doing better. We have had easterly, as well as westerly winds; the dark of the moon, and now, the waxing of a new one. That conditions do play a big part in the feeding of fish there is no doubt, but right now we are thoroughly stumped for the right answer. Also that the fish are here, is beyond question; so for this week just go to your favorite place and hope for the best, or maybe take a leaf out of Judge Snow's book and get in on that swell bottom spot fishing in the Patuxent.

Nine Ann Arundel County, Maryland, dove hunters were apprehended the first day of the season shooting over baited fields. Forty-seven birds were seized and turned over to Walter Reed Hospital. In addition, four members of the party are alleged to have used guns that were not plugged to limit the capacity to three shells.

The tough part about it is, these violators will pay a small fine, and probably be back by this week-end to pursue their illegitimate shooting.

Practically every bass stream in the Conowingo section was clear until the rain of Saturday, and many fine catches of smallmouth bass were brought in. It was riled considerable, but not enough to stop fishing altogether, as was the case in the Potomac above Great Falls.

The Susquehanna has been low and reasonably clear, with the bass taking minnows better than lures. Below the dam rockfish are more than plentiful, but like those lower in the bay, taking the lures sparingly.

A letter to this column, that seems to be the opinion of many: "For your angler readers, let's correct some fairy tales about the Rock Hall fishing. First, make it clear that the people of Hall were splendid in their entertainment and that, in season, the nearby bay has real rock fishing. But no local fishing captains were consulted about the time for the fair. They were much distressed that they should get a black eye by having it set in the middle of the off season, and in the dark of the moon. In June and July, and in the latter part of September and October, it is a real Mecca for large rock.

Lefty Gomez Gives Boston Only 5 Hits

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 8.—The Yankees moved to within 11 "wins" of their third straight American League pennant today by blanking the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 0, behind the five-hit pitching of Lefty Gomez.

Gomez, chalking up his sixteenth victory and fourth shutout of the year, gave up no more than one hit in any one inning. The only bright spot for the Sox during the afternoon came with the return to action of Lefty Grove, making his first appearance since his arm went dead a month ago for the second time this season.

Grove was summoned at the start of the eighth, after Bill (Hard Luck) Harris had beeen lifted for a pinch-hitter, and gave up only one hit and one run in the two frames he worked. The run, however, wasn't his fault, resulting from Ben Chapman's three-base muff of a fly ball in the eighth.

The Yanks collected eight hits off Harris and Grove, but one of these—Rookie Joe Gordon's twenty-second homer of the year, in the third inning—was enough to win the ball game. Lou Gehrig drove two more runs across with a timely single in the sixth, and Chapman's error and an infield grounder produced the final New York marker in the eighth.

tilist, while she was winning, 2 and 1, over Mrs. J. B. Walker, of Irieland. Mrs. Vare, a member of two previous Curtis Cup teams, was 39, 1 under women's outward par, when she made the turn with a two-hole lead on Mrs. Walker, who carded a 41. Then each won two holes and halved four others before their match ran out on the seventeenth green.

The British women had a chance to gain another draw when 21-year-old Clarrie Tiernan, of Ireland, the baby of the visiting team, gained a 2-and-1 victory over Maureen Orcutt, the seasoned New Jersey campaigner and a member of all four cup teams.

That opportunity was kept alive until the last twosome reached the tee all even. Then Charlotte Glutting, of Rock Spring, N. J., put together two woods that left her 15 feet beyond the pin as her opponent, Nan Baird, the 1934 Scottish champion, sprayed three shots and put her fourth into a brook.

double by Simmons, a single by Myer and a double by West.

By the end of the sixth, the Nats had a 4-to-1 lead. Myer, who had walked, attempted to score on West's double to left and apparently was out at the plate when Chapman's throw to Wagner beat him home. But he slid in high, knocked Wagner down with his spikes and knees, causing the catcher to drop the ball. West took third on the affair at the plate and Rick Ferrell's single fetched him home.

Chase gave a run back to the Athletics in the seventh when he walked Wright with the bases full, but he was never in trouble thereafter.

The Nats added their fifth run under the strangest circumstances in the seventh inning. Wright singled and Lewis made a cheap hit on a roller in front of the plate. Travis advanced the pair with a single. Thomas was in the act of purposely walking Bonura and had pitched three outside balls to him, but Zeke refused to accept the intentional pass, reaching far across the plate to hit a pitch-out. He grounded to Newsome, Wright scoring from third.

Tigers Whip Indians, 4-1

Benton Allows 8 Hits to Snap Foes Streak; Whitehill Beaten.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 8.—Alton Benton's eight-hit twirling allowed Detroit's Tigers to beat Cleveland today, 4-1, snapping the Indians' victory streak at nine games.

Both Benton and Earl Whitehill, the Cleveland starter, granted only eight hits but Cleveland didn't get more than one in any inning. The Tigers got two runs in the third—all they needed—on doubles by Chet Morgan and Hank Greenberg, following Benton's single.

Boston and Cleveland remained tied for second place.

Bond Works In Backfield

Former Huskie Quarterback Will Call Signals In Redskins' Opening Game Sunday.

Rink Bond, the former University of Washington quarterback, who was released by the Redskins and then brought back after Riley Smith's injury, played the quarterback post at Ballston yesterday in the team's first local workout since the defeats at Chicago and Dallas. They arrived yesterday morning.

Coach Ray Flaherty assigned Bond to the signal-calling position in Sunday's league opener in Philadelphia. He will play in the backfield with Sammy Baugh, Ernie Pinkert and either Max Krause or George Karamatic.

The team took a light workout in the afternoon, with a majority of the time devoted to signal drills, as the rookies are still weak in this department.

Bond, suffering an injury and getting little chance to show his wares, was released by the Redskins but recalled after Smith's injury. He coached the Renton team to the championship in the Northwest pro league in Washington State last year.

Corkran Wins State Seniors

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 8.—B. Warren Corkran, of the Baltimore Country Club, with a 39-41—80, won the senior championship of the Maryland State Golf Association at Green Springs Valley today. Dr. H. A. B. Dunning, of Baltimore Country Club, was second with an 84. Two net prizes were awarded, to A. G. Ogden, 89-14—75, and Warren G. Magruder, 88-12—76. Both are Baltimore Country Club members.

Only 20 golfers appeared for the competition. The only one from the Washington area was Bob Stead, of Chevy Chase, and he failed to turn in his card.

U. S. Seniors Lead at Golf

Canadians 3 Points Back With British Third in Toronto Competition

By the Associated Press.

Toronto, Sept. 8.—The 12-man team of the United States Senior Golfers' Association took a three-point lead over Canada with Great Britain trailing in the international triangular team match at the Toronto Golf Club today.

The advantage was gained in six two-ball foursome matches that opened the competition. Twelve singles matches tomorrow will be played before a winner is decided.

Three United States pairs scored double wins. R. W. Lee and C. W. Diebel defeated the Canadian team of R. M. Gray and R. C. Smith and the British team of Col. H. A. Boyd and Alan Patterson, capturing two points. The Canadian team defeated Britain, gaining one point.

Other successful United States teams were C. H. Jennings and R. H. Bourne, and Gen. W. D. Mitchell and W. L. Feart.

Seen From the Sidelines

New York, Sept. 8.—I don't know how the football game between the Giants and the Eastern All-Stars looked from the grandstands, but probably it lacked quite a lot in sustained interest. After the first quarter, in which the All-Stars had the professionals bottled in their own zone, the game probably became somewhat dull to the 40,000 spectators who looked down from the darkened stands onto the lighted field.

VIDMER.

But there were undercurrents on the sidelines that stirred the pulses and fired the imagination of those who were within sight and hearing. And there was never a dull moment in the sideshow, even if the main attraction bogged down toward the end and failed to excite the crowd to anything approaching hysteria.

This wasn't anyone's fault. It just turned out to be that kind of a football game. The defense overpowered the offense on both sides and the absence of long runs, touchdowns and any uncertainty as to the outcome may have left the spectators somewhat languid in their enthusiasm at the finish. But often the best football games, from a technical point of view, are the dullest in the spectator's eye, and just as frequently bad football often develops the most spectacular games.

But there were things going on outside the sidelines and beyond the end zones that held the interest at least of students of human nature.

Alexander Francis Wojciechowicz, All-America center from Fordham, stood in the dressing room before the game, gazing out of the window onto the scene. The stands already were filled with people, bands were playing, men were marching and the floodlights were focused on the gridiron, painting the green grass brighter, the chalk lines whiter. There was a hint of fall in the air and an atmosphere of expectation.

In a few minutes Alexander Francis Wojciechowicz would dash out there before all those people and hear their cheers of recognition. He had done it before and heard it before, but somehow this was different. Maybe it was the spotlight, maybe the realization that this was to be his first performance since last fall, maybe because it would be his last performance as a college player.

One Town's Hero

Anyway, he was visibly stirred and impressed by the situation and his surroundings. Suddenly he truned and asked a question:

"Did you ever hear of Michael Shemick?" he murmured, and then continued without waiting for a reply. "Probably not. But Michael Shemick is the fellow who made this all possible—for me. He made a lot of poor boys from our town realize that a college education wasn't something beyond their reach."

It seems that over in South River, N. J., generations of lads had thought of college as something unattainable. They went to high school and then to work, as their fathers had done before them. And when their own children finished their high school courses they had to go to work, too. There was no money for further education.

And then Michael Shemick came along. He was a fine football player in high school and someone suggested that he go to college at Thiel to continue his work—and play. But Michael explained that he didn't have any money to go to college. His family couldn't afford to send him.

But it seemed that there was such a thing as an athletic schol-

Pairings Announced For Event

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Wiffy Cox, Congressional pro, and Leo Walper, Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion, will face the Maryland Open king, Scot Andy Gibson and Ralph Beach, Suburban's sectional P. G. A. president, in the top foursome of the Warner Mather benefit exhibition Sunday at Indian Spring.

Beach, captain of the Baltimore pros that will be underdogs against the team selected by the Washington sports writers, announced the pairings yesterday. Play will start at 2 p. m.

At 2:05 the visitors' long and short combination, lanky Johnny Bass, Clifton Park, and Charles Betschler, the popular representative from Hillendale, meet a like combination in Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam's long-distance mentor, and George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood.

Tickets on Sale

Fred McLeod, National Open champion just 30 years ago, will pair with Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, at 2:10 against William Schreiber, Mount Pleasant, and Carroll McMasters, Woodbine's pipe-smoking mentor.

Tickets for the match, played to aid Warner Mather, former professional at Rodgers Forge and Woodholme, who has been disabled for several years, are on sale at all local golf shops, and may be purchased on the gate at Indian Spring the day of the matches.

Prizes, listing among them a set of irons and woods, golf balls, shirts, rain jackets, golf spike sets, umbrellas and others, donated by various golf manufacturers, will be awarded the lucky ticket holders. The prizes are being exhibited in Al Jamison's golf shop at the host club.

The same six-man teams from the two cities will play the second of the benefits at Woodholme Club, Pikesville, Sunday, September 18.

5 Club Championships On Slate Sunday

Five club championships are on Sunday's card, either in match or medal play, with Argyle and Capital members in the first round of match play, while Beaver Dam, Kenwood and Indian Spring have 18-hole qualifying rounds on tap.

Low Harrison's 68 should stand up for the medal at Indian Spring, while although only a few have turned in scores to date, Kenwood and Beaver Dam will both open their rounds with a new champion to be crowned at each club.

Post Golf Entries Close Today

Mrs. Robert L. Lacey, tournament chairman of the Women's District Golf Association, is accepting entries until 1 o'clock this afternoon for The Washington Post Cup Match Play Tournament, that starts Monday at Manor.

An 18-hole qualifying round will determine the 32 low net scores that will swing into match play on Tuesday. A field of more than 100 players is expected for the sixth annual tournament.

Pro-Amateur Play Scheduled Monday

William Schreiber will play host to the Middle Atlantic pros and their three amateur partners in a pro-amateur tournament Monday at the Mount Pleasant Course.

The event was originally a prolady at Suburban but due to the Post Cup event at Manor that would leave the local pros with few available partners, the tourney was changed to a pro-amateur at Suburban.

Insects Tie In 15 Frames

With 600 fans looking on and the city's semifinal insect championship at stake, Neon Lights and Consolidated Stores played a 15-inning thriller in Columbia League schedules yesterday, failing to eliminate one another in a 2-2 tie.

In another important elimination schedule, the Urciolo Realty Romans failed when they dropped a twin bill to Natie Brown's Cafe Bombers, losing the opener, 11-3, and the nightcap, 15-2.

First-Day Crowd of 6,000 Sees Miss Jacobs, Riggs Win in First Forest Hills Net Matches

By the Associated Press.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Helen Jacobs, who plays to win, and Bobby Riggs, who plays no better than he has to, did just that today as the combined men's and women's national singles tennis championships opened at the West Side Tennis Club before a promising first-day crowd of 6,000.

Berkeley Helen, top-seeded in her bid for her fifth United States title, used up only 25 minutes of the customers' time and dropped only 14 points in routing Anne Harrison, of Ruxton, Md., 6—0, 6—0. Riggs, on the other hand, dropped the first set and had to come from behind in each of the others to eliminate Peter Lauck of Wynnewood, Pa., 5—7, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

These results were expected, as were all the others with one notable exception. That was the four-set victory gained by blond Don McNeill of Oklahoma City over Bernard Destremeau of France. McNeil, who earned a No. 9 National ranking in 1937 largely on the fine showing he made against Baron Gottfried von Cramm, beat back the fourth-seeded foreigner, 6—2, 4—6, 6—1, 6—3, to advance in the same quarter of the draw with defending champion Don Budge.

HELEN JACOBS.

Budge Plays Today.

McNeill's victory over the French Davis cupper, a tall, baby-faced blond, was more of a technical than an actual upset. Despite his seeding, Destremeau showed a glaring weakness in taking low, hard drives on his backhand. McNeill concentrated effectively on that weakness.

Except the Frenchman, all the other seeded stars came through. They included Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, Davis Cup spare and No. 3; Sidney Wood, of New York, No. 4; Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., No. 6, and Bitsy Grant, No. 8 in the United States list, and Adrian Quist, of Australia, Ferenc Puncec and Franjo Kukuljevic, of Yugloslavia, and Fumiteru Nakano, of Japan, ranked second, third, sixth and seventh on the invaders' list.

Dot Bundy Wins

There were no breaks in the women's seeded ranks, which saw Dorothy May Bundy, Gracyn Wheeler and Helen Pedersen, of the home-breds, and Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France; Nancye Wynne and Mrs. Harry C. Hopman, of Australia, and Margot Lumb, of England, join Miss Jacobs in the second round.

Berkeley Helen, playing her first tournament tennis since she hurt her ankle in the Wimbledon final with Helen Wills Moody, didn't seem at all bothered by her foot in blasting Miss Harrison off the court. She won entirely as she pleased in taking her first step toward a likely semifinal match with Mme. Mathieu, who put out Patrica Henry, of Los Angeles, 6—4, 6—0.

Riggs, seeded next to Budge, was 35 minutes late for his match and even when he arrived didn't show much interest. He was content to stay on the baseline and just bat the ball back. He probably will have to do more than that tomorrow, when he meets Intercollegiate Champion Frank Guernsey in one of the most promising matches of the day.

C. U. Squad In Initial Drill Today

By Jack Munhall.

A premature gander at what possibly will be Catholic University's greatest eleven in years may be taken this morning when 38 young Cardinals spread their football wings for the first time this season and flutter up to Coach Dutch ("Mother Bird") Bergman at 10 o'clock.

Bergman, dean of local coaches, will be starting his ninth successive season at the Brookland school and it's no secret that the wily, silver-thached mentor looks forward to a team that will overshadow his Orange Bowl champions of 1936.

With the advantages of a squad well-sprinkled with seasoned, "set" seniors, experienced but still flash juniors and ambitious, unpredictable sophomores, Bergman has quite a task to perform before his charges meet American University in their opener on October 1.

All Jobs Are Open

Profiting by last year's experience with a big, powerful team, fresh from its New Year's Day conquest of Mississippi, which was a distinct disappointment, Bergman is determined with the new season not to allow any player to feel certain of a job.

When he addresses his boys today Bergman is expected to sound a solemn warning that there will be "No 1937 hold-over regulars" and that sophomores, if they justify the move, will step right into the lineup, displacing the vets. In other words sentimentality is out.

Begman plans a strenuous practice schedule with workouts to be scheduled two times daily, in the morning and afternoon. He points more for the game with American than for an ordinary opener because the power behind the Indians is none other than his old friend and close rival, Gus Welch.

Giants Win Third in Row, Beating Bees, 6 to 4

Gumbert Bests Turner in Mound Duel; Cuccinello Is Hitting Star of Game; Getting 3 for 4, Including a Home Run and a Double for Boston.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 8.—For the first time in two months the Giants today completed a winning streak of three games in a row by whipping the Boston Bees, 6 to 4, in the finale of their current series.

After Harry Gumbert and Jim Turner hooked up in a tight mound duel for seven innings, the Giants broke out with a seven-hit, four-run rally in the eighth to put the game on ice.

The Bees came back in the ninth with a three-run outburst, featured by Tony Cuccinello's homer, but portly Walter Brown was rushed in to Gumbert's relief and fanned Vince DiMaggio with the tying runs on base.

Cuccinello hit a double and single in addition to his homer and drove in three of the Boston runs.

On Fishing

Over the past week-end Commodore Thomas Scott, of Miles River, Md., fishing at Ocean City with Capt. Rick Savage had a blue marlin on for three hours and lost it for want of a little more line. But then white marlin rigs were never meant for the blues. That it was a blue there is no doubt, for Capt. Bill Hatch and Paul Townsend were witnesses of the battle and close by when the fish, at one time, was brought to within 15 feet of the boat.

ACKERMAN.

An oddity, and good enough for the book, happened on the same day. An old battle-scarred white of 89 pounds was boated by Capt. Jim Lombard that at some previous time had lost its entire bill, and embedded in its side, more than 10 inches of the sword of a broadbill. These white marlin must be pretty good if they can get away in a scrap with a Xiphias gladius.

Another marlin has been caught off the coast of North Carolina. This time at Morehead City, and a white. It weighed 100 pounds and is the second to be caught off this coast this season. The first was the 439-pound blue marlin taken off Hatteras early in July by Hugo Rutherford.

The barracudas are still running strong off Southport. Many are being caught weighing up to 30 pounds. And now big amberjacks, up to 40 pounds, are consorting with them. At our old spring standby, Oregon Inlet, the bluefish are hitting to the tune of a hundred and a half to the boat. However, there is little need to go that far for bluefish, for you can do as good or better anywhere in the lower bay.

Catches at upper bay points during the past week have in no way been up to what might reasonably be expected at this time of the year. When you take into consideration, that in the same area the nets are lifting hundreds of tons of fish, mostly trout up to five pounds (one pound alone, off West River, in one day took 95,000 pounds, and received for the catch the munificent sum of a cent and a half a pound) it is hard to understand just why sport fishermen aren't doing better. We have had easterly, as well as westerly winds; the dark of the moon, and now, the waxing of a new one. That conditions do play a big part in the feeding of fish there is no doubt, but right now we are thoroughly stumped for the right answer. Also that the fish are here, is beyond question; so for this week just go to your favorite place and hope for the best, or maybe take a leaf out of Judge Snow's book and get in on that swell Norfolk spot fishing in the Patuxent.

Nine Ann Arundel County, Maryland, dove hunters were apprehended the first day of the season shooting over baited fields. Forty-seven birds were seized and turned over to Walter Reed Hospital. In addition, four members of the party are alleged to have used guns that were not plugged to limit the capacity to three shells.

The tough part about it is, these violators will pay a small fine, and probably be back by this week-end to pursue their illegitimate shooting.

Practically every bass stream in the Conowingo section was clear until the rain of Saturday, and many fine catches of smallmouth bass were brought in. It was riled considerable, but not enough to stop fishing altogether, as was the case in the Potomac above Great Falls.

The Susquehanna has been low and reasonably clear, with the bass taking minnows better than lures. Below the dam rockfish are more than plentiful, but like those lower in the bay, taking the lures sparingly.

A letter to this column, that seems to be the opinion of many: "For your angler readers, let's correct some fairy tales about the Rock Hall fishing. First, make it clear that the people of Hall were splendid in their entertainment and that, in season, the nearby bay has real rock fishing. But no local fishing captains were consulted about the time for the fair. They were much distressed that they should get a black eye by having it set in the middle of the off season, and in the dark of the moon. In June and July, and in the latter part of September and October, it is a real Mecca for large rock.

Lefty Gomez Gives Boston Only 5 Hits

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 8.—The Yankees moved to within 11 "wins" of their third straight American League pennant today by blanking the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 0, behind the five-hit pitching of Lefty Gomez.

Gomez, chalking up his sixteenth victory and fourth shutout of the year, gave up no more than one hit in any one inning. The only bright spot for the Sox during the afternoon came with the return to action of Lefty Grove, making his first appearance since his arm went dead a month ago for the second time this season.

Grove was summoned at the start of the eighth, after Bill (Hard Luck) Harris had beeen lifted for a pinch-hitter, and gave up only one hit and one run in the two frames he worked. The run, however, wasn't his fault, resulting from Ben Chapman's three-base muff of a fly ball in the eighth.

The Yanks collected eight hits off Harris and Grove, but one of these—Rookie Joe Gordon's twenty-second homer of the year, in the third inning—was enough to win the ball game. Lou Gehrig drove two more runs across with a timely single in the sixth, and Chapman's error and an infield grounder produced the final New York marker in the eighth.

titlist, while she was winning, 2 and 1, over Mrs. J. B. Walker, of Irieland. Mrs. Vare, a member of two previous Curtis Cup teams, was 39, 1 under women's outward par, when she made the turn with a two-hole lead on Mrs. Walker, who carded a 41. Then each won two holes and halved four others before their match ran out on the seventeenth green.

The British women had a chance to gain another draw when 21-year-old Clarrie Tiernan, of Ireland, the baby of the visiting team, gained a 2-and-1 victory over Maureen Orcutt, the seasoned New Jersey campaigner and a member of all four cup teams.

That opportunity was kept alive until the last twosome reached the tee all even. Then Charlotte Glutting, of Rock Spring, N. J., put together two woods that left her 15 feet beyond the pin as her opponent, Nan Baird, the 1934 Scottish champion, sprayed three shots and put her fourth into a brook.

double by Simmons, a single by Myer and a double by West.

By the end of the sixth, the Nats had a 4-to-1 lead. Myer, who had walked, attempted to score on West's double to left and apparently was out at the plate when Chapman's throw to Wagner beat him home. But he slid in high, knocked Wagner down with his spikes and knees, causing the catcher to drop the ball. West took third on the affair at the plate and Rick Ferrell's single fetched him home.

Chase gave a run back to the Athletics in the seventh when he walked Wright with the bases full, but he was never in trouble thereafter.

The Nats added their fifth run under the strangest circumstances in the seventh inning. Wright singled and Lewis made a cheap hit on a roller in front of the plate. Travis advanced the pair with a single. Thomas was in the act of purposely walking Bonura and had pitched three outside balls to him, but Zeke refused to accept the intentional pass, reaching far across the plate to hit a pitch-out. He grounded to Newsome, Wright scoring from third.

Benton Allows 8 Hits to Snap Foes Streak; Whitehill Beaten.

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Sept. 8.—Alton Benton's eight-hit twirling allowed Detroit's Tigers to beat Cleveland today, 4-1, snapping the Indians' victory streak at nine games.

Both Benton and Earl Whitehill, the Cleveland starter, granted only eight hits but Cleveland didn't get more than one in any inning. The Tigers got two runs in the third—all they needed—on doubles by Chet Morgan and Hank Greenberg, following Benton's single.

Boston and Cleveland remained tied for second place.

Bond Works In Backfield

Former Huskie Quarterback Will Call Signals In Redskins' Opening Game Sunday.

Rink Bond, the former University of Washington quarterback, who was released by the Redskins and then brought back after Riley Smith's injury, played the quarterback post at Ballston yesterday in the team's first local workout since the defeats at Chicago and Dallas. They arrived yesterday morning.

Coach Ray Flaherty assigned Bond to the signal-calling position in Sunday's league opener in Philadelphia. He will play in the backfield with Sammy Baugh, Ernie Pinkert and either Max Krause or George Karamatic.

The team took a light workout in the afternoon, with a majority of the time devoted to signal drills, as the rookies are still weak in this department.

Bond, suffering an injury and getting little chance to show his wares, was released by the Redskins but recalled after Smith's injury. He coached the Renton team to the championship in the Northwest pro league in Washington State last year.

Only 20 golfers appeared for the competition. The only one from the Washington area was Bob Stead, of Chevy Chase, and he failed to turn in his card.

Down In Front ..... With Richards Vidmer

Seen From the Sidelines

New York, Sept. 8.—I don't know how the football game between the Giants and the Eastern All-Stars looked from the grandstands, but probably it lacked quite a lot in sustained interest. After the first quarter, in which the All-Stars had the professionals bottled in their own zone, the game probably became somewhat dull to the 40,000 spectators who looked down from the darkened stands onto the lighted field.

VIDMER.

But there were undercurrents on the sidelines that stirred the pulses and fired the imagination of those who were within sight and hearing. And there was never a dull moment in the sideshow, even if the main attraction bogged down toward the end and failed to excite the crowd to anything approaching hysteria.

This wasn't anyone's fault. It just turned out to be that kind of a football game. The defense overpowered the offense on both sides and the absence of long runs, touchdowns and any uncertainty as to the outcome may have left the spectators somewhat languid in their enthusiasm at the finish. But often the best football games, from a technical point of view, are the dullest in the spectator's eye, and just as frequently bad football often develops the most spectacular games.

But there were things going on outside the sidelines and beyond the end zones that held the interest at least of students of human nature.

Alexander Francis Wojciechowicz, All-America center from Fordham, stood in the dressing room before the game, gazing out of the window onto the scene. The stands already were filled with people, bands were playing, men were marching and the floodlights were focused on the gridiron, painting the green grass brighter, the chalk lines whiter. There was a hint of fall in the air and an atmosphere of expectation.

In a few minutes Alexander Francis Wojciechowicz would dash out there before all those people and hear their cheers of recognition. He had done it before and heard it before, but somehow this was different. Maybe it was the spotlight, maybe the realization that this was to be his first performance since last fall, maybe because it would be his last performance as a college player.

One Town's Hero

Anyway, he was visibly stirred and impressed by the situation and his surroundings. Suddenly he truned and asked a question:

"Did you ever hear of Michael Shemick?" he murmured, and then continued without waiting for a reply. "Probably not. But Michael Shemick is the fellow who made this all possible—for me. He made a lot of poor boys from our town realize that a college education wasn't something beyond their reach."

It seems that over in South River, N. J., generations of lads had thought of college as something unattainable. They went to high school and then to work, as their fathers had done before them. And when their own children finished their high school courses they had to go to work, too. There was no money for further education.

And then Michael Shemick came along. He was a fine football player in high school and someone suggested that he go to college at Thiel to continue his work—and play. But Michael explained that he didn't have any money to go to college. His family couldn't afford to send him.

But it seemed that there was such a thing as an athletic schol-

Smokers' Test showed Vintage Tobacco was easier on your breath

WHITE OWLS are definitely easier on your breath—scientific tests proved it. Every White Owl always has a filler of Vintage quality and—like a Vintage wine—nature made it exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast and unique crop-inspection system... classify all filler tobaccos into seven grades, using only tobacco of the top three for Vintage White Owls.

All this to give you a Vintage smoke. You'll like its taste—and ladies will admire your taste for choosing it. Try a White Owl today.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor... to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten popular brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

arship which provided for a boy's tuition and board and books and other expenses. It wouldn't cost Michael anything, nor drain his family's finances. Because he was a good football player he could get a free college education.

So Michael Shemick went to Thiel. He was the first boy from South River who managed to get beyond high school, and the possibilities for a good football player were revealed to the other boys in the neighborhood. Suddenly there was a wave of increased interest in football among the youngsters of South River.

"And since then," Alexander Francis Wojciechowicz concluded, pulling on his red leather helmet preparatory to taking the field, "a lot of boys from my home town have gone to college. Michael Shemick showed us it was possible. And even if he never made the All-American team or even if you never heard of him, he's a hero in our town."

And so, though the reformers howl about the overemphasis of the game, decry the practice of awarding athletic scholarships, perhaps football gives a great deal in return after all. It gave Wojie a college education, fame and the opportunity to do something more than go to work in a factory when his high school days were over. It gave him and many others the spotlight for a brief hour or two as 40,000 people looked down on the field at the Polo Grounds Wednesday night.

Player's Player

As I said, I don't know how the game looked from the stands, but it must have looked a little different from the sidelines. And the players must have looked different too. A committee seated high in the press box awarded the World's Fair Trophy to Andy Stopper, of Villanova, as the outstanding player in the game for the All-Stars. Maybe he was, but when the game was nearly over and Frank Souchak, Pittsburgh end, finally came off the field, those on the sidelines were pretty well convinced that he had worked as hard as anyone else in the cause of the Ex-Collegians.

He had grabbed passes, gone down under punts to make devastating tackles, smashed the interference when the Giants tried to turn his flank and played every minute he was on the field right through the sixtieth second.

And when he finally came off he flopped down in a seat beside his coach, put his head between his bare and muddy legs, shook his dripping brown curls and gritted his fine white teeth. He had tried two field goals and failed. He had seen Ward Cuff, of the Giants, kick two for the only score of the game.

"What a hell of a way to make points," he said. "They couldn't cross our goal line all night, but how can you stop a team that kicks from midfield?"

Morun, $5.40, Easy Winner of Sagamore at Timonium

Mare Takes Sprint With Late Speed

Miss Epe Is Second as 5,000 Watch; Victor Second Choice; Steel Dust Wins in Steeplechase.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Timonium Fair Grounds, Md., Sept. 8.—Mrs. Nell Wright's Morun made a show of a half-dozen opponents in the Sagamore Farm Purse, 6½-furlong feature, today, when she romped home by four lengths. She paid $5.40.

The crowd of 5,000 let Morun go postward second choice in the wagering. This despite the fact that she had won 7 of her previous 14 starts. She was in a running mood today and came from far out of it to whip Mrs. G. Hutchins' Miss Epe, with D. J. Scanlan's Rise and Shine third.

Bernard Bond's Sure Miss, 2-year-old bay daughter of Swift and Sure—Bare Foot, registered her third consecutive triumph when she led throughout the 4½ furlongs of the day's opener. Her score was expected, as she paid only $3.40.

Miss Elizabeth C. Bosley, recently granted a trainer's license, saddled her initial winner when she sent her sister's horse, Miss Sara Bosley's Steel Dust, postward in the Shawan Steeplechase. The gelding raced the 2 miles in 4:10, to whip a half-dozen opponents. He paid $25.70. Steel Dust led after the first mile and won by three lengths.

Fans coupling Steel Dust and Sure Miss in their daily double collected $69.80.

In hand for a half-mile, Harry Huff's Miss Symphony came with a rush when set down to land the 6½ furlongs of the third. She paid $8.60.

The track was drying out rapidly when the field went postward in the fourth. It proved to the liking of W. Ellis Johnson's Itsie Bitsie, who stepped 6½ furlongs in 1:23 1-5, to win by eight lengths. He paid $4.70.

A. S. Garthright sent his mare Best Policy postward for the twenty-sixth time, in the mile and one sixteenth of the sixth. She turned in her sixth score, when she raced the distance in 1:54 1-5, accomplishing the trick by coming from off the early pace made by Justa Giro. She paid 6.70.

Cubs Wallop Cards, 7-4; Demaree Star

Slaps Two Home Runs As Bruins Take 2d Straight From Patched-Up 'Gang;' Russell Is Winning Pitcher.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Sept. 8.—Frank Demaree's potent bat was the "difference" today as the Chicago Cubs clubbed the St. Louis Cardinals into submission for the second straight time, 7 to 4.

Frank got two hits—both of them for the circuit—to drive in four runs. His second broke a 4-all tie in the tenth, with Billy Herman scoring ahead of him.

The patched-up Gas House Gang was largely unable to solve the slants of Kirby Higbe, making his first start for the Cubs, but Joe Medwick got a double and Johnny Mize a homer in the fourth. Jack Russell, who followed the recruit on the mound after he retired for a pinch hitter in the seventh, proved just as much of a puzzle.

Six Democrats Face Jury in Pennsylvania

Guffey Heads Witness List In Investigation Into Charges of Blackmail, Bribery, Coercion.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 8.—Six men and a woman high in the councils of the Pennsylvania Democratic Party were listed today by District Attorney Carl B. Shelley as witnesses for the projected grand jury investigation of charges against high administration officials.

The Dauphin County prosecutor, continuing to lay before a legislative committee the material he gathered for the court inquiry, included among his witnesses:

United States Senator Joseph F. Guffey, who split with the State committee in the primary fight in which some of the campaign charges were hurled at Gov. George H. Earle and 13 associates. Later Guffey and the Earle forces reunited after Earle won the nomination for United States Senator and his running mate beat Guffey's choice for governor.

Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister of the Senator and Democratic National committeewoman.

Albert Greenfield, Philadelphia leader.

J. David Stern, Philadelphia publisher.

John B. Kelly, chairman of the Democratic committee in Philadelphia.

Carl K. Dean, secretary of the Democratic State Committee.

Edward R. Prendergast, secretary to the governor.

Shelley, in petitioning for the grand jury inquiry, had asserted that the men he accused "enriched themselves and the Democratic Party." The specific charges included bribery, blackmail and coercion.

As he read the names of the witnesses, claiming 300 or more and reading almost that many Shelley gave no indication what information he had expected to develop from any of them.

Included in the list was Charles J. Margiotti, former attorney general, who touched off the demand for the grand jury inquiry while campaigning for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Margiotti later was dismissed from Earle's cabinet.

The court investigation has been stayed until September 19, but the State Supreme Court ruled that Shelley had to disclose whatever information he had to the House committee set up by the Democratic Legislature to conduct its own investigation.

News of Capital Night Clubs

Dale Sherman, Manhattan singer, who will appear with Sande Williams' orchestra in the Shar-Zad Room of the Carlton beginning Friday, September 16.

By Mary Harris.

Madrillon will open on Sunday for the first time this fall on September 11. That's just the day after tomorrow, remember. Peter Borras assures us that there'll be literally wagonloads of hors d'oeuvres to be trundled around to all tables.

Put a big red circle around Friday, October 7. For that fancy annual event, the fall opening of the Mayflower Lounge, will occur on that date. There'll be a floor show imported from Manhattan, no end of gala, dancing to that impeccable Sidney music.

A similarly glistening party will mark the formal fall opening of Shoreham's Blue Room. No exact date on this, but it will probably be staged on either Friday, September 30, or Saturday, October 1.

In the same mail with the elegant announcement that Carlton's Shar-Zad will open next Friday, September 16, with Sande Williams, comes a letter from Sande's present boss, Robert Christenberry, manager of the Hotel Astor and the International Casino in New York. Bob says he may run down to Washington soon, recalls the hilarious days when he was a young United States vice consul in Vladivostok and used to write your columnist about the ungodly doings in the Bolshie night clubs, with snapshots inclosed to prove he wasn't lying!

Getting back to Shar-Zad—its future looks bright as an engagement ring. Sande Williams is a comedian as well as a crack music maker, his orchestra is known as one of the best in New York and that magnetic and pretty red-head, Dale Sherman, will sing.

Manhattan dispatch: Paul Kain, whose orchestra is now the star attraction at the Rainbow Room in Rockefeller Center, will return to Wardman's Metronome Room some time between October 15 and 30.

But between now and then you'll be able to enjoy Johnny Slaughter's fine music and the singing of Ernestine Gardner in the Metronome. The Slaughter arrangements, made by Fritz Maile, are as interesting and beautiful as any you'll ever hear.

Dick Reger is going to take a powder from Hi-Hat for a few days, beginning next Tuesday. For Dick is the impresario of the Shenandoah County Fair to be held in Woodstock, Va., next week and has booked Ralph Polio's orchestra into the fair as its chief musical attraction. The Polio ork is of the concert variety, but something tells us that when Monsieur Reger goes to work there'll be swing in the air.

Before returning to Hi-Hat Dick will take a run up to New York for new numbers, suggestions on changing his style. He says, "I'm leaving town a hill-billy. Perhaps I'll be a Spaniard when I come back." He has one new Spanish song for a starter, "Pedro, the Cocktail Shaker."

Short Takes:

Bebe Allen, Viennese-American canary, of the Hour Glass and the King Cole Room, spends all her spare time sight-seeing. She'd planned to walk up the Washington Monument—until she saw it.

Never say a harsh word about Minneapolis around Mayfair's singer, Perry Martin. He's a Minneapatriot.

So highly successful has been the appearance of little singer Katherine Goon at Bamboo Gardens that manager Huey Liang is figuring on introducing more Chinese talent into his floor shows.

Manager P. H. McGroary of the Rainbow Room has returned from his vacation. He meant to motor all around the country but, somehow, he just couldn't tear himself away from Washington Park.

Libby Frazier, singer at the Show Boat (Baltimore boulevard), wears a size nine frock. If she ever loses five pounds, she plans to wear baby dresses.

Would you like to be beautiful as a rose, healthy as an Olympic winner? And without dieting or taking more than five minutes' exercise a day.

Then you'd better go up to the Lotus next week and let Mary Twombley, Bernard MacFadden's "Miss Physical Culture, 1937," tell you how it's done. Miss Twombley comes to Washington direct from the New York State Fair at Syracuse.

Personals:

Dick Richards, head man at Pine Grove and standing 6 feet 3 inches, is the tallest night club manager in town.

Somehow the rumor's got about that Jack Torry, orchestra leader at Brinkley's, wore a grass skirt in the "clown parade" staged by the Marine Reserve up at Fort Ritchie. Oh, sure, he denies it.

There's the real flavor of the countryside about Griffith Farms Tavern on the Marlboro pike. But citified is the dance music of Sidney's Orchestra, the accordioning of Charlie Bates. The orchestra plays on Saturdays, and Charlie and his accordion are there on every other night.

Just two more nights of dancing at Glen Echo! Two more chances to swing to the rhythms of Little Joe Hart and his orchestra, to hear that Tone Martin type singing of Big Art Lund. Never let it be said that you missed!

WPA Rolls Reach Peak Of 3,066,953

20,800,000 Receive Public Help in July; Officials Fear Appropriations May Run Out.

WPA enrollment has reached an all-time high of 3,066,953, and some 20,800,000 persons were receiving public assistance in the United States during July, officials revealed yesterday.

Fear was expressed that the present WPA appropriation may be exhausted a full month before expiration of the period for which it was designed, unless business improvement reduces the load of public care.

At the same time additional PWA grants yesterday brought to $522,469,486 the total of grants for non-Federal PWA projects, which, coupled with allotments of $196,875,871 for Federal works, boosts the 1938 program of that recovery organization to 5,820 projects with an estimated construction cost of $1,367,169,089.

WPA officials disclosed their record enrollment, which compares with the previous high mark of 3,038,908 on August 25. Administrator Hopkins previously had set the maximum enrollment at 3,200,000, including the 200,000 jobs added in the South during the summer.

Southern Aid Boosts Load

The current appropriation of $1,425,000,000 was intended to provide jobs for 3,000,000 enrollees, until February 1, but addition of the 200,000 Southern jobs and raising of WPA wages in that section have combined to increase the probability of exhaustion of the funds before the date contemplated.

PWA Administrator Ickes told reporters 18 States have reached their quotas for allotments under his phase of the recovery drive.

Federal, State and local costs incurred for aid to the needy in July, including earnings on work projects of the WPA, amounted to $258,748,000, according to the Social Security Board.

The figures announced yesterday include amounts for the various programs as follows: Public assistance to the aged, blind and dependent children from Federal, State and local funds under the Social Security Act, and other public assistance of these special types, $42,615,000; earnings of persons employed on WPA projects $149,200,000; National Youth Administration, $3,220,000; other Federal agencies $5,727,000; Civilian Conservation Corps, $19,848,000; subsistence grants under the Farm Security Administration, $1,275,000; general relief in cash and in kind, by States and localities, $36,863,000. These sums represent substantially all public aid received by the needy persons in the continental United States, with the exception of aid to transients. Administrative costs are not included.

6.5 Million Homes Aided.

On the basis of reports received by the board it was estimated, after allowance for duplications, that in July approximately 6,500,000 households, probably comprising about 20,800,000 persons, received public aid of one or more of the types mentioned above. As compared with June there was an increase of less than 2 per cent in the number of households receiving public aid.

Earnings on WPA were more than 7 per cent higher in July than in the preceding month. The amount of obligations incurred for payments to recipients of old-age assistance, aid to the needy blind and aid to dependent children increased more than 1 per cent from June. General relief provided by States and localities for July declined about 1 per cent for the June total.

According to reports from States co-operating in public-assistance programs under the social security act, costs of $41,541,347 were incurred in July for payments from Federal, State and local funds to recipients of old-age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children. In July there were 1,713,253 recipients of old-age assistance in 47 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska and Hawaii, comprising approximately 22 per cent of the estimated population aged 65 and over. The average payment per recipient was $19.23 for that month, ranging from $4.95 in Mississippi to $32.34 in California.

Woman Accuses Bay Ship Waiter

Baltimore, Sept. 8 (AP).—Baltimore police investigated today a Norfolk, Va., matron's report of being assaulted and robbed of $50 by a colored waiter during an overnight trip from the Virginia port aboard a Chesapeake Bay steamer.

The accused waiter, 22, was turned over to police by Capt. John L. Marshall, commander of the steamer, who made his investigation of the charge before the boat docked.

The woman, 35, remained at a police station after questioning by Police Capt. John Carroll.

Europe Adds $90,000,000 To Idle Money

Gold Influx From Abroad Reason for Week's Increase to a Total of More Than 3 Billion.

By the Associated Press.

The flow of European gold to the United States increased idle funds of the banks $90,000,000 to a total of $3,030,000,000 in the week ended September 7.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that the influx of $102,000,000 worth of the metal during the week was the principal reason for the rise, although Treasury spending was another.

Next week, however, the supply of idle money, as indicated by excess reserves of banks, will drop more than $700,000,000 due to Treasury borrowing and collection of quarterly income tax payments. The board's statement said:

"During the week ended September 7 member bank reserve balances increased $90,000,000. Additions to member bank reserves arose from a decrease of $159,000,000 in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks and increases of $102,000,000 in gold stock and $7,000,000 in reserve bank credit, offset in part by increases of $78,000,000 in money in circulation, $99,000,000 in Treasury cash and $3,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts. Excess reserves of member banks on September 7 were estimated to be approximatly $3,030,000,000, an increase of $90,000,000 for the week."

Power Output At Year's Peak

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Electric power production in the United States for the week ended September 3 totaled 2,148,954,000 kilowat hours, largest output thus far in the year and a gain of .7 of 1 per cent over 2,134,057,000 in the preceding week, the Edison Electric Institute reported today. Production, however, was 7.4 per cent below the 2,20,982,000 kilowatt hours produced in the like 1937 week.

The gain, which was not seasonally expected, carried the Associated Press index of power production to a new high for the year at 113.6. The index, which is based on 1929-1930 as 100 and is adjusted for seasonal and long term trend, stood at 112.5 last week and 125.2 a year ago.

Percentage declines from a year ago according to major geographic areas were reported as follows by the institute: New England, 4.8; Middle Atlantic, 5.2; Central Industrial, 13.8; West Central, 9.1; Southern State, 1 of 1; Rocky Mountain, 20.7; Pacific Coast, 1.7.

Wheat Prices Give Way in Late Trading

Decrease of 1 3-8 Cents Follows Winnipeg's Cue as Demand for Export Nears Zero.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept 8.—Taking a cue from Winnipeg market tumbles, Chicago wheat values late today slid down 1⅜ cents, with North American export demand reduced virtually to zero.

Announcement that Hitler had given permission for a renewal of Sudeten German negotiations with Czechoslovakia prepared the way for wheat price setbacks, as indicating to some degree a turn for the better in the European political situation. Added impetus toward lower prices came from big receipts in Canada and from pressure of Russian shipments, nearly 4,000,000 bushels this week, the largest total in some time.

Russia was reported as underselling abroad both Canada and the United States. No business of any consequence appeared to have developed from an increased subsidy on flour exports from this country.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅜@1⅜ cents lower compared with yesterday's finish, September, 60½@60⅝; December, 61⅜@61½; corn unchanged to ⅜ higher, September, 50¾; December, 48⅝@48¾; oats ⅛@¼ advanced, rye showing ⅛@⅜ drop, and provisions varying from 2 cents setback to 7 cents gain.

The Market

Closings Are Lower After Ups and Downs Following European Developments.

New York, Sept. 8.—Stocks followed the course of events in Europe today, declining in early dealings on reports that Czechoslovakian negotiations had been broken off, and recovering later when the news said Hitler had ordered discussions resumed. Moderate net losses in all groups predominated at the close.

Weakness in wheat markets probably contributed to a check in the rallying tendencies of securities late in the day. Chicago prices were off ⅝ to 1⅜ cents a bushel on postponement of war fears. Cotton ended about even, ignoring the Government's lowered estimate on the crop, announced before the noon hour. Foreign exchanges drooped fractionally against dollar rates with a little more gold engaged in Britain for shipment here.

Selective buying was in evidence during the better moments of the stock market, with motor and allied shares featuring the rally and building issues in request on current Government predictions of a boom to come in that industry. Crane Co., Holland Furnace, United States Gypsum, National Gypsum, Flintkote and Certain-teed issues were among 20 big-board stocks which recorded new highs. Motor shares failed to hold their best levels on the day, General Motors being down ⅛ net and Chrysler 1⅜. In the active categories, Graham Paige, leader of the list, closed a small fraction to the good, and Electric Auto-Lite, American Radiator and Sanitary, and Walworth Co. held small advances.

Steel Issues Lower.

Steel issues were inclined to sag all around, Steel common giving up 1⅜ and Bethlehem ¾. Chemicals and utilities were resistant, but lost a bit of ground, while the rails gave a mixed performance on light dealings.

Interest in rubber shares, which was rather marked at certain stages of the session, was stimulated by trade and private estimates that stocks of automobile tires in the hands of manufacturers have been reduced to the basis of not more than two and one-half months' supply at current demand levels, and increased use of new tires for the 1939 models is due soon. Rubber companies are also expected to show substantial inventory profit at the year end against heavy write-downs at the close of 1937.

U. S. Bonds Yield

United States Government securities showed declines to ¾ point in the listed bond market today, owing to the generous terms offered on the new flotation of $700,000,000 bonds and notes. Outstanding issues were marked lower mainly on offerings by holders who wanted to switch into the new securities, which were in excellent demand. Bond experts expect the applications for the issues to total something like $7,000,000,000.

Listed bonds otherwise were quiet and irregularly lower. The turnover of slightly more than $4,000,000 occurred mainly in speculative bonds. Trading in Treasury issues were confined almost entirely to the counter market, as usual. Best grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds dipped by small fractions, with attention concentrated on the $30,000,000 Youngstown Sheet & Tube offering.

Among speculative carrier bonds a slow downward drift was the rule. Changes were chiefly in fractions, however, even among the borderline rails. Holding company issues were dull, and communications bonds drifted lower. The local tractions resumed their decline, while other special groups were quiet.

In the foreign section, Czech bonds fell 2 to 3 points, while Italians had a weak spell that drove almost all issues to lows of the year. The Japanese group remained firm. Best grade foreigns were neglected, and the default issues held to former levels.

General Motors Sales Are Lower for August

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—The General Motors Corporation reported today that its sales of automobiles and trucks to consumers in the United States last month totaled 64,925, against 78,758 in July and 156,322 in August, 1937. The month-to-month drop was less than some automotive observers expected, in view of the imminent shift to production of 1939 cars.

General Motors dealer sales for August amounted to 34,752, compared with 61,826 in July and 157,000 in August, 1937. Overseas shipments and Candian business brought the dealer total to 55,431, compared with 90,030 in July and 188,010 in August, 1937.

Canada's Wheat Crop Best in Six Years

Winnipeg, Sept. 8 (Canadian Press).—Described as the best crop in six years, the 1938 wheat yield on the prairies is estimated at 324,744,000 bushels in the sixth and final report of the Winnipeg Free Press, issued today.

In Manitoba the crop promises 52,049,000 bushels, closely rivaling the banner crop of 1928. Rust and grasshoppers combined to prevent Saskatchewan making the comeback indicated by the splendid stand of grain early this season and the estimate for this province is 128,558,000 bushels, the report said. The grain filled excellently during the latter part of the season in Alberta, which will surpass Saskatchewan in total yield with the estimate placed at 144,127,000 bushels.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Sept. 8.—The tendency of the stock market was easier today and the turnover remained restricted, traders awaiting further developments in the Czech-German situation. Transatlantic securities finished fractionally higher and British funds were unchanged to ⅛ down. Foreign bonds continued unsettled, with the tendency lower, while textile issues moved upward. Industrials, oils and mining shares were featureless.

Paris.—Final quotations in the bourse showed fair-size losses on the day. Royal Dutch was down 15 francs, Suez Canal 40 and Bank of France issue lost 75 francs. French rentes moved irregularly and closed 10 centimes up to 75 lower. Industrial shares finished below Wednesday's finals.

Liverpool.—After selling higher early in the day, wheat futures eased on large Black Sea shipments and increased offerings of wheat at cheaper prices. Final quotations were unchanged to ¼d lower. Cotton futures closed 3 to 5 points up, advancing in the late dealings after the issuance of the United States Government crop estimate. Short covering and hedging against outside growths were also factors during the early part of the session.

Make Banking A Life Career, Laws Advises

District Associate Justice Commends A. I. B. Group for Promotion Of Education.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Advising young bankers to regard their professions as a career, Bolitha J. Laws, Associate Justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, commended last night the American Institute of Banking for promotion of an understanding of banking affairs.

Justice Laws, principal speaker at an annual dinner meeting held at Columbia Country Club by the educational committee of Washington chapter of the institute, told chapter members that to attain the heights in any line of endeavor, it is essential that an individual should make his business or his profession a life-time career.

"I do not recall anywhere in history where a great outstanding person has been a Jack-at-all-trades," he reminded. "A man who emerges on one line of business, then changes to an entirely different field for a limited time, and perhaps later, lured by the possibility of increased earnings, turns to yet another line of work, will never make a genuine success.

"If you, having chosen banking as your life's career, shall devote all your energies toward doing effective work in banking circles, you will have better opportunities to contribute to the public in general and also to building for yourself a monument which will endure."

Open to All.

In other days he recalled, it was almost universal practice that a banking business would be handed down from father to son, from son to grandson, and so on, but today when the business of banks has become so widespread and intricate and the problems so many, the man thoroughly prepared in banking has opportunity to progress regardless of family connections or associations.

He said he had noticed any number of cases where members of the American Institute of Banking have become prominent banking officials by reason of the education and experience they have secured through the institute and the inspiration to larger fields which they obtained while students.

"Let no man believe that in the present day he can pursue his profession without continuous study and research," was his advice. "The lawyer finds it necessary not only to practice his profession, but to read and study constantly, and lately affairs handled by lawyers have become so diversified, it has been necessary to conduct courses of lectures which they have found it advantageous if not necessary to attend."

The banker, likewise, has a great need to study constantly and the American Institute of Banking, in the speaker's opinion, has been rendering an outstanding service to the banking fraternity in making it possible for bankers to keep abreast of developments in their profession.

"My urge to use as persons engaged in the profession of banking," Justice Laws concluded, "is to make a decision, if you have not already done so, to start on building a career and in the building of it, let the outstanding virtues of high and ethical character, profound education and understanding dominate. The opportunity is readily available for you. If you embrace it, you surely will deserve success, and more than likely, you shall achieve it."

William H. Laughlin, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman of the educational committee, presided. The speakers list also included: Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, Second National Bank, chapter president; Francis E. Robey, Bank of Commerce and Savings, first vice president; Raymond L. Jones, National Metropolitan Bank, chief consul; Herbert D. Lawson, jr., Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman of the membership committee; Hilleary G. Hoskinson, Riggs National Bank.

Talks to Young Bankers

BOLITHA J. LAWS, associate justice of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Cotton Steady On Crop Report

New York, Sept. 8 (AP).—Today's Government estimate for a cotton crop of 11,825,000 bales was so close to average expectations that prices held within one of the narrowest ranges for a "bureau day" in recent years. December, which had recovered from 8.08 to 8.17, closed at 8.11 with final prices 1 point net higher to 2 lower.

The market opened 1 point higher to 3 lower. During the morning prices moved narrowly in evening up for the bureau estimate at noon. Following the trading recess to receive the figures, the market reopened practically unchanged but ultimately worked up to net gains of 5 to 7 points on trade and scattered buying. Toward the close a little more local and Southern selling appeared.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil showed early gains today on covering in advance of the cotton crop report, but eased later under heavy realising and commission house selling, promoted by the easiness of some allied markets. Final prices were a little above the lowest, but still 1 to 2 points net lower. Sales, 268 contracts. Cotton Estimate 11,825,000 Bales.

The Crop Reporting Board yesterday forecast a 1938 cotton crop of 11,825,000 bales, a decline of 163,000 bales since its August report which it attributed bool weevil damage. Such a crop would compare with last year's record production of 18,946,000 bales and a 1927-36 ten-year average of 13,201,000 bales.

The board said that probable loss from the boll weevil was now expected to be consistently heavier than last year, but about the same as the average during the ten-year period. In Virginia, yields were said to have been reduced more by weevil than in any previous years, and in the Carolinas and Georgia a larger than average loss was forecast.

3 Generals Assigned to New Posts

Brig. Gens. Peyton, Major And Gardner Involved In Important Shifts of Army Command.

Secretary of War Woodring yesterday announced three important changes in the Army high command.

Brig. Gen. Fulton Q. C. Gardner, commander of the 4th Coast Artillery District, Fort McPherson, Ga., has been ordered to command of the Hawaiian Coast Artillery Brigade, Fort DeRussy, T. H. He succeeds Brig. Gen. Philip B. Peyton who has been named commander of the 21st Infantry Brigade at Schofield Barracks, T. H.

The present commander of the 21st Brigade, Brig. Gen. Duncan K. Major, jr., has been placed in charge of the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, succeeding Brig. Gen. Robert S. Abernathy, who retired last month.

Has Served in Capital

Gen. Gardner, a native of Mississippi and a West Point graduate, has completed the primary and advanced courses at the Coast Artillery School, Fortress Monroe, Va. He was assistant to the chief of Coast Artillery in 1912 and was again on duty here during the World War when he was attached to War Plans Division of the General Staff. He also has been secretary of the General Staff.

A graduate of the Army War College, Gen. Gardner was assistant commandant of the Coast Artillery School from 1935 until 1937.

Gen. Peyton, after graduation from Virginia Military Institute, served his first tour of duty in the Army at Fort Myer, Va.

In the World War he commanded the Sixtieth and Sixtry-first Infantry regiments in France, where he participated in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. After the Armistice he was graduated with distinction from the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and returned to the National Capital in 1930 to study at the Army War College.

On China Expedition

After service as executive officer of the Civilians Military Training Camp at Fort George G. Meade, Md., he attended the Army Tank School there and then was attached to the War Department General Staff from 1932 until 1936.

Early in his military career Gen. Major participated in the China Relief Expedition with the Fourteenth Infantry.

He was graduated from the Infantry-Cavalry School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.; the Army War College and the L'Ecole de L'Intendence, Paris, France, before the World War. During the war he was chief of staff of the Twenty-sixth Division, at headquarters of the Services of Supply and deputy chief of staff of the American Embarkation Center, Le Mans, France.

After the Armistice Gen. Major was on duty here in the war plans division of the general staff. He also has served here as a member of the operations and training division of the War Department general staff and as War Department liason officer with the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Wage Inquiry Pleas Flood Headquarters

Scrawled Letters in Pencil Tell of Pay as Low as 5 Dollars a Week for 80 Hours Work.

Beseeching letters from all over the country are pouring in to the office of Elmer F. Andrews, wage-hour administrator, written by people whose working hours run to 80 a week and whose wages are as low as $5 a week, the Andrews office said yesterday.

These letters, many written in pencil and nearly all with grammatical and spelling errors, are receiving the personal attention of Andrews, who reads them all. His correspondents, telling of their lot, plead for remedy.

Source of Complaints

Enforcement of new wage-hour standards is slated to come largely from complaints such as these on working conditions. Andrews has said there will be no army of enforcement agents but inspectors will examine establishments suspected of violating the law.

"We are dropping you a few lines to see why wages we are supposed to have for factory work we work eight hours per day and only get payed $1.50," said a letter from Ohio. "We are working aufell hard and we wood like for you to come and investigate and see if you could get better wages for we can't live at them wages and if you come they probly won't want you to come in and talk to the wimmin. But be shure and go on every floor and talk to every woman. Nine wimmin work and office girl and she has to hold office job in factory for $7 per week. Pleas if you come to investigate don't let this letter be seen because maby they wood reconise hand rite."

$20 a Month.

"We are working 11 and 12 hours a day and seven days a week for a salary of $40 per month," a California hotel employe wrote, "and most are getting only $20 per month with meals—the kind they want us to have, and that isn't much."

"I work from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m.," wrote a clothing store clerk in Illinois, "and Saturday to 11 p. m. This amounts to about 65 hours of actual working time per week without considering the Christmas period, when the weekly hours are 75 to 80 per week."

A Pennsylvanian writes: "There don't seem to be a law for the janitors, the man that is asked to do most anything under the sun and is considered nothing. There are two janitors at the——Building that have to work 68 to 84 hours a week, never get a day off with there families."

In an almost illegible scrawl a Virginia worker writes President "Rosevelt" of the wages in the furniture factory where he is employed. "My dear dear President," he said, "You understand all this. I got finger cut off last Sat. I no how hard it is to get up money. Not let eny one here no all I told you on wages hours bissines or get me in trouble I sincerely think you are friend to working man. Do all you can for needy."

"I am right these few lines," a Baltimore worker wrote, "to let you no how people get along where I work. The people thats been there the longs get 5 dollor a week the other people get 4 dollor a week and the boss take one cent off each dollor. Please try to help us. If you want to you send someone down there we work from 7:30 in the morning until 5:30 in the evening. Please see what you can do. I have got to work but working for nothing is bad. I got to eat and my children is got to eat and have something to wear. I have three children my rent is 3 dollor a week I can't feed them off of 96 cents a week."

Mrs. Johnson, Retired Store Buyer, Dies

Funeral Services Set for Tomorrow Morning for Former Department Store Executive.

Mrs. Mary A. Johnson, 78, one of the first employes of Woodward & Lothrop's department store, who served for many years in the hosiery department as a buyer, died yesterday in George Washington University Hospital.

For the past several years, Mrs. Johnson, who lived at 916 H street northwest, had been in failing health, and some time ago she suffered a fracture of her hip in a fall.

Back in 1880, in the era of bustles, Mrs. Johnson began her service. The firm then was only three months old. Twelve years later she became a buyer for the hosiery and knit wear department. She held this post until her retirement July 1, 1928. She saw styles change through the decades and what was chic yesteryear, before the word was invented, become obsolete and frumpy. She was an expert on knit goods. During her service she made numerous trips to Europe for the store.

A charter member of the Twenty-year Club of the firm, Mrs. Johnson at one time served as its vice president, and she remained prominent in its activities until last year.

Surviving Mrs. Johnson is a son, Joseph R. Johnson, of Washington. Requiem high mass will be celebrated tomorrow at 9 a. m. in St. Patrick's Church by the Rev. Lawrence J. Sheehan. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Lafount, Idaho Native, Dies Here at 54

Mrs. Alma Robinson Lafount, wife of former Radio Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, died yesterday at the Washington Sanitarium.

Born at Montpelier, Idaho, 54 years ago, Mrs. Lafount was graduated from the Utah State Agricultural College at Logan, Utah. For many years she lived at Salt Lake City where she was active in various auxiliary organizations of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. She was also active in behalf of the Children's Hospital of that city.

Since 1927 Mrs. Lafount had been a resident of Washington.

H. H. Clear Rites Set Tomorrow

Funeral services for Harry H. Clear, 36, an auditor in the General Accounting Office, who died Wednesday in Garfield Hospital, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in the St. Francis Xavier's Church, 2806 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

A native of this city, Mr. Clear had been in the Government service five years. Two years ago he entered the General Accounting Office.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice A. Clear; a daughter, Mary Lorraine Clear and a brother, Christopher H. Clear, of Nokesville, Va. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Funeral services for Miss I. Malinde Havey, national director of the American Red Cross Public Health Nursing Service, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. William Curtis White officiating. Burial with military honors will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

MISS HAVEY.

Miss Havey, 51, died Wednesday in Boston after an illness of three months. Red Cross officials here were informed of her death by Miss Cora E. MacKenzie, a friend, who was at her bedside. Brief services were held in Boston yesterday.

Internationally known for her public health work, Miss Havey lived at 3200 Idaho avenue northwest. She had been associated with the Red Cross since the entry of America into the World War, when she was sent overseas with Army Base Hospital, No. 36, from Chicago.

Honored by Powers

She served two years abroad, and was decorated by the French and British for bravery under fire.

In 1918 Miss Havey became assistant chief nurse at the Army Base Hospital at Compeigne. The Royal British Red Cross Medal, first class, was conferred upon her personally by the Prince of Wales.

Miss Havey was graduated from the Illinois Training School for Nurses in Chicago in 1910. She attended the University of Wisconsin and the Lewis Institute in Chicago, and obtained her public health training in the Chicago School of Civics and Philanthropy and Columbia University.

In 1919 she became Red Cross supervising nurse for Michigan. Shortly afterward she was assigned as regional director covering the Lake Division of the Red Cross, with headquarters in Cleveland. In 1922 she became assistant National director of the Public Health Nursing Service here, and in 1929 she was made National director. The Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick Service was also placed under her direction later.

Worked in 1927 Flood.

Miss Havey was responsible for the direction of the work of the nurses in the Mississippi flood of 1927, the hurricane in Puerto Rico in 1928 and the Ohio-Mississippi Valley last year. She played an important part in bringing relief and aid in many other disasters.

Miss Havey served as a member of the governing body of several national nursing organizations. She belonged to the American Nurses Association, the National Organization for Public Health Nursing and the National League for Nursing Education. She also was a fellow of the American Public Health Association. She was a member of the Women's Overseas Service League and the Zonta Club, of Washington, of which she served as president in 1935-36.

Surviving are her mother, Mrs. L. O. Havey, of Madison, Wis.; two sisters, Mrs. Claude Sullivan, of Washington, and Mrs. B. M. Pederson, of Walkermine, Calif., and two brothers, Orvin T. Havey and Nicholas H. Havey, both of Madison.

Red Cross nurses in uniform will form a guard of honor at the church and the cemetery, and an Army firing squad will fire a salute.

Her associates of the Red Cross executive staff will act as pallbearers. They will include DeWitt C. Smith, W. Carl Hunt, Howard J. Simmons, Robert E. Bondy, Walter S. Gard and J. Blaine Gwin.

Bob Burns Says—

I suppose if a little rooster could see New York wake up and start its early morning hustle and bustle, he would think it was because he crowed. Connected with the chamber of commerce of almost every big and little town in California, there is somebody who has written a little pamphlet on the wonders of California and each one probably thinks it was his individual pamphlet that is bringing thousands of people into the State every day.

One day Rev. Tweedle noticed an intelligent lookin' man who had attended his church several Sundays in a row so he came right out and asked the man why he came to his church. The man said, "Well, I like to relax on Sundays and it ain't often I can find such a comfortable seat with so little to think about."

Traffic Safety Plans Near Completion

Commissioners' Advisory Group to Adopt Final Draft Today; Accidents Already on Decline.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

With a new District safety record already to its credit, the Commissioners' advisory committee on accident prevention meets today for final drafting of long range plans to curb the city's casualty toll.

Since Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen declared war on Washington traffic troubles, accidents, injuries and deaths have shown a steady decline, police records revealed yesterday.

City-wide safety activities—which began with appointment of the advisory committee August 12—have resulted in a decrease of 125 accidents over a 25-day period. From August 12 to September 6 last year, 895 crashes were reported. This is against 769 mishaps for the same time this year.

Traffic injuries have decreased by 40 and fatalities by 2. Credit for the reduction was given by Commissioner Hazen to continuing work of the advisory committee.

18 Killed in Previous Month

In the month just prior to appointment of the group—from July 13 to August 12—the traffic tabulation was: Deaths, 18; accidents, 808; injuries, 276.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard and chairman of the committee, cited a "new public attitude toward traffic problems and complete co-operation of the press" as largely responsible for the improvement.

The committee's recommendations for "long-range" safety planning—scheduled for adoption at today's meeting in the National Guard Armory—will be immediately submitted to the Commissioners for approval, Gen. Cox said.

Courtesy Urged.

The proposed remedies will touch on all phases of the current traffic problem, concluding with the following sharp rebuke for both motorists and pedestrians:

"Your committee adopts as a final recommendation that in its opinion the most important difficulty confronting the motorists of the District is the absence of courtesy upon the part of drivers and pedestrians.

"Your committee recommends that every effort be made to instill in the minds of the motoring public in particular and also in pedestrians the importance of constant practice of courtesy, which if carried out will go far to eliminate a large percentage of the traffic accidents occurring on the streets and highways of the District.

The committee's report on its investigation of accident causes throughout the city said violations of the right-of-way rule resulted in the largest number of crashes.

Urging greater penalties for accident-causing violations, the committee pointed out that a total of 1,018 accidents last year were caused by failure of motorists to yield the right of way.

A close second was ignorance of the rule governing left turns at intersections, the group reported.

Co-operating with the safety program, six motion picture theaters announced yesterday that the March of Time film "Man at the Wheel," a picture devoted to solution of highway accident problems, will be shown during the coming week.

Theaters exhibiting the film will be the Capital Heights, Ambassador, Fairlawn, Colony, Avalon and Home.

Meanwhile, enrollments in The Washington Post-Junior Board of Commerce Safety Institute—scheduled to open the first week in October—will be accepted in room 200 at The Post. Application may be made in person or by clipping the enrollment blank in today's paper.

The institute will be open to both private and commercial drivers. Its programs includes an open forum "traffic quiz," sound motion pictures and nationally recognized safety experts as speakers. Enrollment is free.

There were no serious mishaps on Washington streets yesterday, although Elijah Jackson, colored, Washington PWA worker, received fatal injuries in a triple collision on the Richmond highway, 3 miles south of Alexandria.

According to police, a car driven by Jackson's brother, Overton Jackson, of 1314 First street southwest, collided with a truck and then with another car. Passengers in the other cars escaped injury. Coroner C. A. Ramson, of Fairfax County, issued a certificate of accidental death.

Three-year-old Alma Little, colored, of 1235 Carrollburg place southeast, suffered cuts and bruises when she ran into the street and was struck by a passing car near her home. She was treated at Providence Hospital.

Two Men Injured

An unidentified white man, about 27 years old, was in Casualty Hospital last night in critical condition with head injuries after, police said, he walked into the side of a street car at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast last night. The car was operated by George Rozicier, 42 of 1118 Twenty-fifth street northwest.

Vohan Arslan, 48, of 1519 Wisconsin avenue northwest, received a fractured right leg and possible brain concussion when he was struck by an automobile at Massachusetts and Wisconsin avenues. Police said the automobile was operated by Ormond W. Ewing, of Chevy Chase, Md. Arslan was taken to Georgetown Hospital.

$30,000-or-Bust Bandit Faints As Police Arrive

New York, Sept. 8 (U.P.).—A mild-looking young man walked into the Emigrant Bank at Fifth avenue and forty-second street today, held up a satchel and said:

"There is enough dynamite and nitroglycerin here to blow up the bank. If you don't give me $30,000 I'll do it."

Thomas P. Daly, a clerk, told him:

"You'll have to wait a minute until we get the money from the safe."

The young man smiled and said, "all right—but be sure it is in small bills."

"Certainly," said Daly, and went into a rear office and called police.

Detective John Kaiser soon rushed into the bank. The young man took a look at the detective's badge and fainted. At the observation ward at Bellevue Hospital papers in his pockets gave the name of Louis Friedman, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The satchel contained dynamite.

Neoplastic Experts Hold Meeting Here

Surgeons, pathologists and radiologists from throughout the Nation assembled at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday for the three-day meeting of the American Association for the Study of Neoplastic Diseases in which they will "swap knowledge" on treatment of tumors and malignant growths. Dr. Eugene R. Whitmore, of Washington, is secretary of the association. The subjects up for discussion are highly specialized, Dr. Whitemore said, citing a paper entitled "Endometrial Patterns in Metorrhagia and Menorrhagia."

Va. Boy, 2, Dies From Bruises; Brothers Beat Him

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 8 (AP).—The death today of a 2-year-old Lynchburg boy as the result of a brutal beating about the head and body was being investigated by Amherst County authorities.

Commonwealth's Attorney Carter said no arrests had been made in connection with the death of Ralph Howard Moon.

The child was dead when brought to a hospital. He had been beaten until his body and head were swollen and blue with bruises.

Carter said the child's mother told him the child had been injured in a fall from bed and had also been beaten by his two brothers, Edward Eugene Moon, 7, and William Gilbert Moon, 9.

225,000 Pass By Bier of Cardinal Hayes

Special Dispatch to The Post.

New York, Sept. 8.—Patrick Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York, past whose bier 120,000 persons filed today, will be buried in the well of the high altar of St. Patrick's Cathedral tomorrow after a requiem mass attended by the largest number of Roman Catholic prelates ever to assemble in New York.

The throng of mourners, which moved for a time at the rate of 20,000 an hour, brought to 225,000 the number of persons who have gazed upon the cardinal since Tuesday as he lay in state.

More than 1,700 masses will be said for Cardinal Hayes tomorrow throughout the ten-county archdiocese of which he was head until his death Saturday night at his summer camp in St. Josephs, near Monticello, N. Y.; 200 of them will be recited in St. Patrick's Cathedral before the funeral mass.

Hopkins to Attend

The funeral will begin with a 40-minute outdoor procession into St. Patrick's Cathedral, where the mass will begin at about 11:10 a. m. More than 4,000 persons, most of them clergymen, will be in the line. Among them will be George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, celebrant of the mass; Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia; Roderick Cardinal Villeneuve, of Quebec, and 72 other prelates. The recession will begin at about 1:15 p. m. Burial will be about 3 p. m.

Gov. Lehman, Works Progress Administrator Hopkins, Postmaster General Farley, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Newbold Morris, representing Mayor LaGuardia; Brig. Gen. Evan H. Humphrey, representing the United States Army; Admiral Clark H. Woodward, representing the United States Navy, and 1,200 other prominent laymen and representatives of foreign governments, branches of the Federal, State and city government, and large organizations, also will be present at the mass.

Not more than 2,000 will be able to enter. A public-address system will carry the proceedings to the tens of thousands of others who are expected to crowd the streets around the edifice.

The cathedral will be cleared after the end of the funeral mass and Cardinal Hayes' burial will be seen only by about 200 close friends and a few newspapermen.

The throng which gathered today to walk past the catafalque was larger than that of the first two days combined.

Among the crowds which poured past the bier from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m., in an unending stream, were 3,500 nuns and 700 brothers.

Man Seeking 'Highest' Bridge Kept From Leap

Two Washington men yesterday prevented a Baltimore man from jumping off Key Bridge after he asked them if the bridge was "the highest in town."

Taken into custody by Seventh Precinct police, the man gave his name as Edward Tyler Chambers, 34, living in the 2300 block of Calvert street, in Baltimore.

Elmer Whitney, 217 Nineteenth street northeast, and Harvey Baricom, of the 1300 block Isherwood street northeast, told police they were walking along the bridge when they were accosted by Chambers. He asked them first if "this is Chain Bridge." When they told him it wasn't, he asked if it was the highest in town.

Meanwhile a third man, W. C. Harper, of the 5600 block of Thirtieth street northwest, put in a call for police. Chambers was charged with being drunk and later taken to Gallinger Hospital for observation.

W. & L. Applicants Set All-Time Record

Lexington, Va., Sept. 8 (AP).—Washington and Lee University this year has the largest number of applicants for admission in its history, Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president, said today.

"Washington and Lee, which operates on a fixed quota, reached its approximate numbers early in July," Dr. Gaines said, "but there has been unusual pressure from the largest number of applicants in the history of the institution and it is possible that the number will go slightly beyond the established enrollment of 225."
